Ambassador Gerard's New Book: "Face to Face With Kaiserism"

"The Personal Side of the German Emperor as I Have Known Him"

For Years He Has Fed His Ambition by Imagining Himself Entering Fallen Cities With the Keys to Their Citadels and Treasure Repositories Borne Humbly Before Him.

"Others Have Failed, but I Dreamed a Dream of German World Empire and My Mailed Fist Will Succeed"---He Loves the Pomp and Circumstance of War.

WILLIAM THE SECOND, the present German Emperor, might well be called the Restless Emperor. He is never satisfied to remain more than a few days in any place or in any occupation. He commands his armies in person. He has won distinction as a writer and a public speaker. He is an excellent shot. He has composed music, written verses, superintended the production of a ballet, painted a picture; the beautiful Byzantine chapel in the Castle of Posen shows his genius for architecture; and, clothed in a clergyman's surplice, he has preached a sermon in Jerusalem. What ruler in all history has exhibited such extraordinary versatility? In my conversations with the Emperor I have been struck by his knowledge of other countries, lands which he had never visited. He was familiar not only with their manners, customs, industries and public men, but with their commercial problems. Through his conversation one can see the keen eye of the Hanseatic trader looking with eager envy on the trade of a rival merchant.

This is one of the few photographs of the German Emperor in civilian attire. It is a snapshot and was made in the Island of Corfu, off the Grecian coast, when he was on a visit to Achilleion, his great estate there, that formerly belonged to the murdered Empress Elizabeth of Austria. The Emperor does not often appear in civilian clothing because he realizes that he cuts a disappointing figure in it. In uniform his appearance is imperial, but in mufti he is really quite ordinary, looking not at all the part of the Kaiser of the Germans.

This is the first installment of Mr. Gerard's new book, which will be printed in full in the Post-Dispatch. An installment will appear daily, including Sundays, until the entire volume is presented. Mr. Gerard did not use half of his observations and experiences while at the German Court in "My Four Years in Germany" (which the Post-Dispatch printed in serial form also), and his new book will be quite as interesting as was his first.

CHAPTER I.

TO the American mind the Kaiser is the personification of Germany. He is the arch-enemy upon whom the world places the responsibility for this most terrible of all wars. I have sat face to face with him in the palace at Berlin where, as the personal representative and envoy of the President of the United States, I had the honor of expressing the viewpoint of a great nation. I have seen him in the field as the commanding General of mighty forces, but I also have seen him in the neutral countries through which I passed on my return home and in my own beloved land—in the evidence of intrigue and plotting and which is today "the Thing," as President Wilson calls it, which has brought the American people face to face with Kaiserism in the greatest conflict of all history.

What manner of man is he? What is his character? How much was he responsible for what has happened? How much his General Staff?

What of the Crown Prince and what of the neutral peoples and their rulers whom Germany has intimidated and would fain subjugate if it suited her purpose? These are the questions I shall attempt to answer out of my experiences in Germany and my contacts with the rulers of other countries in my journeys to and from Berlin and Washington.

To illustrate the craft of the Kaiser, I believe I can perform no better service to Americans than to reveal an incident which has not hitherto been published. It occurred at the New Year's reception of 1914, when the Ambassador's of all the foreign countries represented at the German court were ranged in a large room at the palace. They stood about six feet apart in the order of their residence in Berlin. The Kaiser and his aids entered the room, and the Emperor spoke a few minutes to each envoy. He tarried longest with the Turkish Ambassador and myself, thereby arousing the curiosity of the other diplomats, who suspected that the Kaiser did more than merely exchange the greetings of the season. He did.

Kaiser Personally Strove to Sow Discord Between U. S. and Japan

What the German Emperor said to me interests every American because it shows his subtlety of purpose. The Kaiser talked at length to me about what he called Japan's designs on the United States. He warned me that Mexico was full of Japanese spies and an army of Japanese Colonels. He also spoke about France, saying that he had made every effort to make up with France; that he had extended his hand to that country, but that the French had refused to meet his overtures; that he was through and would not try again to heal the breach between France and Germany!

All this was in 1914, six months before the outbreak of the European war. Little did I know then what the purpose was back of that conversation, but it is clear now that the Emperor wished to have the Government of the United States persuaded through me that he was really trying to keep Europe at peace and that the responsibility for what was going to happen would be on France. The German is so skillful at intrigue that he seeks even in advance of an expected offensive to lay the foundation for self-justification.

But the reference to Japan and alleged hostility against us on the part of fanciful hordes of Japanese in Mexico made me wonder at the time. There were many evidence subsequent to that New Year's day reception of an attempt to alienate us from Japan; as a climax to it all as a clarification of what the Emperor had in mind came the famous Zimmermann note—the instructions to the German Minister in Mexico to align both Japan and Mexico against us when we entered the war against Germany!

Plotting and intriguing for power and mastery! Such is the business of absolute rulers.

I believe that had the old Austrian Kaiser lived a little while longer, the prolongation of his life would have been most disastrous both for Austria and Hungary. I believe after the death of Franz Ferdinand at Sarajevo and after a year of war the German Emperor and autocracy were brooding over a plan according to which, on the death of Francis Joseph, the successor should be allowed to rule only as King or Grand Duke of Austria, the title of Emperor of Austria to disappear and German Princes to be placed upon the thrones of Hungary and of a new kingdom of Bohemia. These and the King or Grand Duke of Austria were to be subject monarchs under the German Kaiser, who was thus to revive an empire, if not greater, at least more powerful, than the empires of Charlemagne and of Charles the Fifth. Many public utterances of the German Kaiser show that trend of mind.

Predicted He Would Succeed Where Alexander, Caesar and Napoleon Failed

Emperor William deliberately wrote and published, for instance, such a statement as this: "From childhood I have been influenced by five men: Alexander the Great, Julius Caesar, Theodoric II, Frederick the Great and Napoleon. Each of these men dreamed a dream of world empire. They failed. I have dreamed a dream of German world empire and my mailed fist shall succeed."

Could any declaration of a life's ambition be more explicit? It seems impossible for human ambition to stand still. Either a man loses all stimulus of self and becomes as spiritless as a fagged animal or ambition drives him always on—he is never content with any success achieved. The millionaire, to whom the first million, when he was a boy, seemed the extreme limit of human wealth and desire, presses on insatiably with the first million in his pocket, more restless, more dissatisfied, than the hungry farmer's boy who first carries his ambitions to the great city.

When these zealous, scheming men gain the power of kingship they usually bring disaster to their country. Their subjects find no compensation in the personal ambitions which hurry a nation into the miseries of war. Better Charles II dallying with his ringleted mistresses than an Alexander the Great; better Henry the Fourth of France, the "ever-green gallant," than Frederick the Great bathing his people in blood. "Happy nations have no history."

William the Second, the present German Emperor, might well be called the Restless Emperor. He is never satisfied to remain more than a few days in any place or in any occupation. He commands his armies in person. He has won distinction as a writer and a public speaker. He is an excellent shot. He has composed music, written verses, superintended the production of a ballet, painted a picture; the beautiful Byzantine chapel in the Castle of Posen shows his genius for architecture; and, clothed in a clergyman's surplice, he has preached a sermon in Jerusalem. What ruler in all history has exhibited such extraordinary versatility?

Puts on His Nightshirt and Sleeps Two Hours Every Afternoon

In my conversations with the Emperor I have been struck by his knowledge of other countries, lands which he had never visited. He was familiar not only with their manners, customs, industries and public men, but with their commercial problems. Through his conversation one can see the keen eye of the Hanseatic trader looking with eager envy on the trade of a rival merchant. The Emperor incidentally, while instinctively commercial, has an inborn contempt, if not for the law, at least for lawyers. In October, 1915, for instance, he remarked to me: "This is a lawyer's war—Asquith and Lloyd George in England, Poincare and Briand in France."

In appearance and conversation Emperor William is very manly. His voice is strong, with a ring in it. He is a good rider. Following the German custom, he puts on his nightshirt every afternoon after lunch and sleeps for two hours—for the German is more devoted to the siesta than the Spaniard or Mexican. The hours of the Berlin Foreign Office, for example, were from 11 to 1 and 4 to 8. After a heavy lunch at 1 o'clock all officials took a nap for an hour or two. Also, the hours of the bank where I did business were from 10 to 1 and from 4 to 6. This meant that after 6 o'clock the clerks had to sit until perhaps 8 making up the books for the day.

In 1916 the Olympic games were to have taken place at Berlin, and in September, 1913, before sailing for Germany I attended a luncheon at the New York Athletic Club given by President Page, with the members of the German commission who had come to America to study athletics and to see what could be done in Germany so that the Germans could make a good showing at the games in their own city.

After my arrival in Germany one of the members of this commission told me that it was impossible, he believed, to organize the Germans as athletes until German meal and business hours had been changed. He said that with us in America young men leaving business at 4:30, 5 or 5:30 had time in which to exercise before their evening meal, but that in Germany the young men ate so much at the midday meal that they required their siesta after it and that they did not leave their offices until so late in the evening that exercise and practice were impossible.

Rarely Wears Civilian Dress, Does Not Look Imperial When He Does

On the Emperor's table his wine glasses, or rather cups, are of silver. Possibly this is because he has been forbidden by his physician to drink wine. The Germans maintain the old-fashioned custom of drinking healths at meals. Someone far down the table will lift his glass, look at you and smile. You are then expected to lift your glass and drink with him and then both bow and smile over the glasses. As the Emperor must reciprocate with everyone present, his champagne and wine are put in silver cups in order that those drinking wine with him do not see that he consumes no appreciable quantity of alcoholic liquor on the occasion of each health drinking. Some people in America may have often wished for a similar device.

The Emperor is out of uniform only on rare occasions. Occasionally when in a foreign country he has appeared in civilian dress. He appears to much better advantage in uniform than in civilian attire. Although uniformed while at sea as an Admiral, his favorite uniform is really that of the Hussars.

In conversation, the Emperor reminds one very much of Roosevelt, of a polite Roosevelt, talking with the same energy, the same violence of gesture and of voice so characteristic of our great ex-President. When the Emperor talks all his attention is given to you and all his mental energy is concentrated on the conversation. In this violence of manner and voice he seems not at all German. The average German is neither exuberant nor soft-spoken, but mild-mannered.

His favorite among his ancestors is William of Orange. Once he attended a fancy dress ball in costume and makeup copied from the well-known picture of that Prince. The Emperor is strongly built and is about 5 feet 9 inches tall. He sits well on his horse and walks, too, with head erect and shoulders thrown back—a picture of military precision.

A friend of mine who was present at Kiel with his yacht in 1910 tells me that when all the yachts and warships had been assembled along the long narrow waterway which constituted that harbor, with the crews lined up on deck or manning the yards, with bands crashing and banners floating, the Hohenzollern slowly steamed into the harbor and passed lazily and majestically through the waiting ships. Alone on the upper bridge there stood the monarch, attired in full military uniform, with white coat and tight breeches, high top boots, shining silver breastplate and silver helmet, surmounted by an eagle, the dress of the Prussian Guard Regiment, so dear to those who portray romantic and kingly roles upon the stage, a figure on whom all eyes were fixed, as splendid as that of Lohengrin, drawn by his fairy swan, coming to rescue the unjustly accused Princess. And, alas! the Germans like all this pomp and splendor. It appeals to something in the German heart and seems to create a feeling of affection and humility in the German breast.

When I talked at length one day with President Wilson on my visit to America in October, 1916, he remarked, half to himself, in surprise at my tale of war: "Why does all this horror come on the world? What causes it?" "Mr. President," I answered, "it is the King business."

I did not mean nominal Kings as harmless as those of Spain and England. I was thinking of the powerful monarchs. A German republic would never have embarked on this war; a German Congress would have thought twice before sending its own sons to death in a deliberate effort to enslave other peoples. In a free Germany teachers, ministers and professors would not have taught the necessity of war. What German merchant in a free Germany would have thought that all the trade of the East, all the riches of Bagdad and Cairo and Mosul could compensate him for the death of his first-born or restore the blind eyes to the youngest son who now crouches, cowering, ever the fire, awaiting death? For there was no trade necessity for this war. I know of no place in the world where German merchants were not free to trade. The disclosures of war have shown how German commerce had penetrated every land, to an extent unknown to the best informed. If the German merchants wanted this war in order to gain a German monopoly of the world's trade, then they are rightly suffering from the results of overweening covetousness.

No More Autocratic Ruler in the World Than the Emperor

Experts in insanity say that the Roman Emperors, as soon as they attained the rule of the world, were made mad by the possession of that stupendous power. The scepter of Emperor William is mighty. No more autocratic influence proceeds from any other monarch or ruler. But, you will say, how about our President in time of war? Great power can safely be given to a President. Our Presidents have all risen from the ranks. Usually they have gone through the school of hard knocks. And there are ways of keeping them abreast of the people.

It is told that hidden from public view, crouched down in the chariot in which the successful Roman Proconsul or General drove triumphantly through the crowded streets of Rome, was a slave celebrated for his impertinence, whose duty it was to make the honored one feel that, after all, he was nothing more than an ordinary mortal blessed with a certain amount of good luck. Probably as the chariot passed by the forum the slave would say, after a thunderous burst of applause from the populace: "Do not take that applause too seriously. That is the T. Quintus Cassius Association, whose chief received a hundred sesterces from your brother-in-law yesterday, on account, with a promise of a hundred more in case the association's cheers seemed loud and sincere."

So in America the press, serious and comic, takes the place of the humble Roman and throws enough cold water on the head of any temporarily successful American to reduce it to normal proportions. Besides, the President knows that some day he must return to the ranks, live again with his neighbors, seek out the threads of a lost law practice or eke out a livelihood on the Chautauqua circuit in the discomfort of tiny hotels, traveling in upper berths instead of private cars and eating on lunch stools in small stations instead of in the sumptuous surroundings of presidential luxury. These are sobering prospects.

Monarchs Look Upon Their Subjects as Their Own Personal Property

Kings, on the other hand, come to look on their subjects as toys. A postcard popular in Austria and Germany showed the old Emperor Francis Joseph, seated at a table with a little great-grand-nephew on his knee, teaching the child to move toy soldiers about on the boards; and it is unfortunately true that the same youngster—should the system of the Central Empires be perpetuated—will be able to move his subjects across the map of Europe just as he did the toy soldiers on his great-granduncle's table. He will be able to tear men from their work and their homes, to seize great scientists, great chemists, great inventors—men who may be on the eve of discoveries or remedies destined to rid the human race of the scourge of cancer or the white plague—and send them to death in the marshes of Macedonia or the fastnesses of the Carpathians, because some fellow King or Emperor has deceived or outwitted him.

In a monarchy all subjects seem the personal property of the monarch and all expressions of power become personal. This extends throughout all countries ruled by royalty.

When, for example, a member of the royal family dies, even in another country, it must be lamented by the court circle of other lands. Here is the official notice sent to all diplomats and members of the Imperial German Court on the occasion of the death of the Queen of Sweden:

"The court goes into mourning today for her majesty the Queen Mother of Sweden, for three weeks, up to and including the 19th of January, 1914.

"Ladies wear black silk dresses for the first 14 days, including Jan. 12, with black hair ornaments, black gloves, black fans and black jewelry; the last eight days with white hair ornaments, gray gloves, white fans and pearls.

"Gentlemen wear the whole time a black band on the sleeve. Civilians wear with the embroidered coat, during the first 14 days, including Jan. 12, on occasions of 'grand gala,' black buckles and swords with black sheaths. During the last eight days bright buckles; on occasions of 'half gala,' gold or silver embroidered trousers of the color of the uniform and in the one as in the other case, gold or silver embroidered hat with white plume; with the 'small' uniform, however, black trousers (or knee breeches, black silk stockings, shoe with black bows and the 'three-cornered hat with black plume). During the first 14 days gentlemen wear black woolen vests and black gloves, in the last eight days black silk vests and gray gloves.

"Berlin, Dec. 30, 1913.

"The Ober-Ceremonienmeister,
"GRAF A. EULENBURG.

"By command of his majesty the Emperor, mourning will be suspended for New Year's day and the 17th and 18th of January."

Royalties a Close Corporation With Word My Ever on Tongues

So it is apparent what a close corporation all the royal families make and the peoples are simply viewed as the personal property of the ruling Princes. In his telegram which the German Kaiser wrote to President Wilson on Aug. 10, observe how all is personal. The Kaiser says: "I telegraphed to his majesty the King, personally, but that if, etc., I would employ my troops elsewhere. * * * His majesty answered that he thought my offer. * * *" He speaks of the King of the Belgians "having refused my petition for a free passage." He refers to "my Ambassador in London."

This telegram shows, on the other hand, another thing—the great ability of the Kaiser. Undoubtedly he knew why I was coming to see him—to present the offer of mediation of President Wilson—but from our conversation I do not think that he had even in his mind prepared the answer, which sets forth his position in entering the war.

He said: "Wait a moment; I shall write something for the President." Then taking the telegraph blanks lying on the table, he wrote rapidly and fluently. It was a message in a foreign language, and, whatever we may think of its content, at any rate it is clear, concise, consecutive and forceful.

The personal touch runs through that extraordinary series of telegrams in the famous "Willy-Nick" correspondence between Kaiser Wilhelm and the last of the Romanoffs, discovered in Petrograd by Herman Bernstein. These reveal, moreover, the surpassing craft of the German Kaiser. He was the master schemer. Touting for German trade, always for his advantage, he twists the poor half-wit of the Winter Palace like a piece of straw.

Emperor William was not satisfied with a quiet life as patron of trade. As he studied the portraits of his ancestors he felt that they gazed at him with reproachful eyes; demanded that he add, as did they, to the domains of the Hohenzollerns, that he return from war in triumph at the head of a victorious army, with the keys of fallen cities borne before him in conquering march.

One-tenth of Frederick the Great's people fell, but to the poverty-stricken peasant woman of Prussia, lamenting her husband and dead sons, did it matter that the rich province of Silesia had been added to the Prussian crown? What was it to that broken mother whether the Silesian peasants acknowledged the Prussian King or the Austrian Empress? Despots both. And what countless serfs fell in the wars between the King and the Empress! I once asked Von Jagow when this war would end: "An old history of

LETTERS FROM THE PEOPLE.

"Letters to Our Boys in France."

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

In regard to an article in your paper recently announcing that Gen. Pershing urges all relatives and friends of our boys in France to write to them as often as possible, for he says it helps to make them better soldiers, I wish to say that for the past five months I have been writing to France to a very dear and close friend of mine at least three times a week. But, nevertheless, he continually writes, saying he does not hear from me. Yet I receive letters from him regularly. Now, isn't there something to be done to prevent this annoying state of affairs?

Are all letters from here going to the bottom of the sea? Surely we cannot accept this for an answer. If we comply with Gen. Pershing's request to write to the boys as often as possible, is it not worth while for the Government to see that the letters we write reach them safely?

He received just one letter from me during the month of January, whereas, according to the number of letters I wrote in the month of December, he ought to have received at least 12.

Surely there is something to be remedied somewhere, and the sooner it is adjusted the better it will be for all concerned.

A New Order With New Managers.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

Our chaotic condition of today is the reaction of not applying the Golden Rule more extensively to our affairs in the past. There have been too many bosses (kings and capitalistic despots) who run the world's affairs for their own conveniences and selfish ends—men who thought they could beat God in running the world.

The boss ssytem is on its last pegs. A few more "schoolmasters" like Mr. Wilson will replace those bosses with real managers—managers who will recognize our natural heritage to live; managers who will shape our interests so as to bring home to our tired hearts and souls the essences of beauty and peace—a haven of rest on earth.

Let us forget that we are individuals and let us recognize the fact that "your interest is my interest and my interest is your interest." Nature is striving to bring this equable condition about among men, therefore it is essential, in order to assist nature in its beneficent efforts, to replace the world bosses with real world managers—managers who can do big things and who are possessed with moral sentiment enough to overcome the principle of cold and despotic business methods.

A perfect society is devoid of snobbery and degeneracy. Let us humble ourselves to the true fact that a perfect society is made up of workers, not drones. Give us real managers in the new order of things and our troubles will end.

Dodging Citizenship.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

The great number of aliens in our midst, as revealed by the recent investigations incident to the war, is a matter of surprise to our citizens as is also the fact that there is no law to compel those who come here from other countries to become citizens or return to their beloved fatherlands. It is certainly unfair that people should be allowed to settle here, compete with our citizens for employment or business, while retaining their allegiance to foreign rulers and evading the duties and responsibilities of citizenship. War or no war, the revelations show that it is high time such a law should be enacted.

After one, or at most two years' residence here, all but those who are diplomatic representatives of other countries should be compelled to "fish or cut bait."

OBSERVER.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

I believe that the American Red Cross is one of the best institutions ever founded in the name of humanity, because it recognizes no creed, class or color and therefore it should have the utmost support of everyone.

I would suggest for your consideration that the Red Cross place Red Cross cans in every public place in this country, and those who have coupons from cigarettes, soap, gum, etc., should donate them to the Red Cross, and I believe that in course of a year the Red Cross will be the gainer.

I know from personal experience that I have seen eight or ten tags lying around and have seen men buy gum and throw the wrapper away. These wrappers should be saved and the Red Cross could convert same into cash.

PUBLIC UTILITY NEEDS.

Secretary McAdoo's appeal, approved by the President, to city and state authorities to grant increased fares and other relief to public utilities, wherever it is needed and possible, in order to assure good service, has a basis of justice.

The Secretary urges the necessity of maintaining continuous good service on the part of public utilities, in order to assure continuous, efficient work in war industries and business necessary to the successful prosecution of the war. He cites the increased cost of materials and the increased cost of living, which necessitates higher wages in all lines of labor, as reasons for liberal treatment of public utilities.

This is true. Maximum efficiency in the service of public utilities is essential to war work and the welfare of the country. In St. Louis we have had experience of the deadly effect of a brief cessation of street railway service, on war industries and all lines of business, not to speak of public comfort and convenience. If the wages of employes have not been increased sufficiently to meet increased living cost, they ought to be, and, in the end, they must be, to prevent labor troubles and to retain capable employes.

The President and Secretary, however, refer to the actual needs of the public utilities on a sound basis of honest finance and economical management. They do not propose that the people shall be burdened with increased cost of service to pay returns on accumulations of water-logged securities, to make plunder good and to meet the cost of dishonest charges or across-the-table contracts or other financial juggles or abuses which suck up the earnings of many public utilities, leaving insufficient funds out of ample gross earnings for decent wages and good service.

Public utility corporations asking for equitable relief of city authorities or State Public Service Commissions must come with clean hands. They must show a sound financial basis for their securities, and economical and efficient management. They must show that under these conditions they are unable to meet increased cost of service and maintenance.

Granting these conditions and the need of increased fares or rates to maintain efficient service, the people will submit cheerfully to added burdens for the purpose of keeping the public utilities going at a maximum efficiency. The people of the cities would be willing to have taxes reduced or all special revenue taken from public utility earnings eliminated if the money is actually needed and used for maintenance and service and is not absorbed as loot through juggled finances, watered securities, excess salaries or graft contracts.

The first necessary step to reduction of taxes or increase of charges or both, on the part of public utilities, is an exhibit of honest finances and efficient management. They must prove that they have clean hands and an honest ground for their pleas of relief or they must clean-up. When this is done the people will approve liberal measures of relief.

ABSENTEE CAMPAIGNING.

Henry Allen, a Kansas editor, is trying an experiment in campaigning. One day he announced his candidacy for the Republican nomination for Governor and the next day he departed for France on a special mission for the Red Cross. He was selected for the trip to France because of the things that he accomplished on a previous trip and he did not hesitate to accept when asked to return.

His candidacy before the State primary was a later incident and it arose after the leaders of the Republican party had failed at their annual dinner to select a slate that looked favorable to all concerned. Friends of Allen insisted that he was the man for the governorship and he let them decide. He left the nominating to them.

But, after all, Allen may not have made such a strange choice. It was known in Kansas for some time prior to his departure that he was going to France, and mothers, sisters and fathers of Kansas soldiers, now fighting in France, came to him with messages and with money and other commissions. He accepted all of these and promised to see every man if it was physically possible. Those who helped him with this list say that it exceeded 2000 names. And these mothers and sisters, and the mothers and sisters of other soldiers, will vote in this primary.

FARMERS AND LIBERTY LOANS.

The Federal Reserve Banks in the West and South are seeking new soil for the sale of the Third Liberty Loan bonds, which are to be issued some time this spring. The first steps of this campaign have been to subscribe for the country papers and a publicity agent and advertising man will be put in charge of a campaign that will appeal especially to this section of the country's press. The idea is that the small towns and farm communities have not, as a rule, absorbed as many of the bonds as the proportionate wealth suggests.

At the same time there is evidence from the farm sections that farmers view the war from the financial point of view. In Washington last week John A. Simpson, president of the Oklahoma Farmers' Union, testified before the Senate Agricultural Committee that a fixed price of $3 for the next wheat crop was necessary to bring a maximum production of that grain. He said that many "thin fields" would be plowed up and planted to corn if the higher price was not allowed. He rejected the suggestion of $2.50, which the committee later recommended.

A. A. Elmore, head of the farmers' organization in the State of Washington, took the same view.

Probably the attitude of these men will be resented by many farmers. It must be said that many rural districts have worked well for the Red Cross and that many counties have shown commendable interest in the thrift stamps. It is believed that the great mass of the farmers will respond when the Liberty Loan facts are made clear to them.

MORE WAR GARDENERS.

The call to arms for the war gardners was sounded at New Orleans last week and the early reports indicate an increase of more than 25 per cent of spade and hoe soldiers against the Kaiser.

The call was sounded a week earlier in parts of Texas and the managers of the campaign in that State are so encouraged by early enlistments that they predict that by the time that entire State gets to the garden season, for it takes several weeks for the planting season to extend entirely over Texas, that more than 500,000 war gardens will be planted. The term "war gardens" is used to distinguish the emergency gardens from the plots of those who raise gardens every year, either for sport, exercise or economy. These 500,000 war gardens, the leaders estimate, will produce more than $12,000,000 worth of vegetables. It is notable that the early sales of seeds in both of these communities have run largely to beans, cabbage and other forms of food that might be considered meat substitutes. Last year the war gardners gave preference to lettuce, radishes and other articles that may be regarded as luxuries.

A warning has been sounded for an economy of seed. There is danger of a scarcity of many kinds of seed, it is reported. Also it is said that some seed houses have distributed their stocks to local dealers pro rata to communities, and have no reserve. The State committeemen in both Louisiana and Texas are doing their utmost to conserve seed. They say there will be plenty if it is carefully used, but none must be wasted. Also, they advise gardeners to carefully estimate their needs, by planning ahead, and then buying early, but not more than they intend to plant.

The advertisement published by a local shirt factory for "one gore girl and one feller," and another calling for an "experienced bonaz," in an embroidery establishment, suggest the need of a glossary for the enlightenment of readers of the want columns. We hazard the guess that the "feller" will be a girl, employed perhaps in felling seams. But "bonaz" is a case for special research, and we have no theory to offer regarding it.

A POET'S GENEROUS MIND.

If the late unpleasantness between American critics and the English poet, William Watson, has not been entirely forgotten, Mr. Watson, at least, doesn't carry the grudge, judging from the nice things he is saying about our President.

We quarreled seriously with Mr. Watson, several years ago, about his poem, "The Woman With the Serpent's Tongue," although it perhaps was none of our business, strictly speaking. It will be remembered that the poet said some extremely unchivalrous things about a woman and it was supposed at the time that he was referring to the wife of a distinguished British statesman. We didn't think it at all gentlemanly of him, and we did not hesitate to say so—indeed, some of us said so with rather more heat than the matter seemed to warrant.

However, bygones are bygones, especially in these wartime days. We are quite willing to take back some of the harsh reflections we once made upon Mr. Watson's poetry, as poetry. Reading his recent lines on President Wilson we are inclined to believe his gift of poetical expression has been somewhat underrated. They are:

"* * * and at your head the famed, the trusted,
"The hated and revered one; he whose speech
"Is hazeless sister unto cloudless thought;
"Who, flooding with bland light all his theme,
"Can, when the hour craves gallant archery,
"Unquiver none the less a deadly lightning.
"A mind 'twixt wariness and boldness poised,
"Wide-watching and far-scouting, subtle and sage;
"Cool, as a pine at its firm heart is cool,
"Though secretly a colleague with the sun,
"And living by his fire; a soul erect
"Ev'n as the pine itself is: and although
"Towering amid the forest of your life
"O'er all beside, still of that forest, still
"One only of a hundred million trees

The British are so literal-minded. When they tried to prevent the world war the Kaiser, in effect, said to them: "Go to Jericho." Now they've gone and done it.

AFFILIATED TEN-HEN CLUBS.

They are forming 10-hen clubs in New England. Article I, section 1, of the constitution of each club provides that every member must keep 10 hens.

The scope and purpose of the organizations have been so shaped and defined as to place them well within the limitations of the dweller in congested areas of large cities. Eggs being sold by the dozen, it might be supposed that chicken raising under associated auspices would naturally appear in the form of 12-hen clubs, thus affording easy titular transitions to the dozen-and-a-half hen club, the two-dozen hen club, etc. A sifting of data, however, showed that 10-hen clubs would rest on a much broader basis in eligible membership than clubs of greater than 10-hen power. The crumbs from the average city dweller's table would maintain 10 hens in plumpness, but 12 in only emaciation. Ten hens might with care be provided with space on the premises of an average city dweller, but a mezzanine back yard would be required for 12 and fractional hens positively cannot be considered. Ten hens, taking one week with another, will lay just about eggs enough for the dietary needs of the average city-dwelling family, but eight hens couldn't lay enough.

So the 10-hen club it is, and among the countless organizations for which the war furnishes at least an excuse when it doesn't furnish an acknowledged field of usefulness, what other can we think of that has greater promise? For the benefit of members, all poultry lore is to be reduced to the 10-hen basis. Even a standardized type of chicken house, with accommodations for 10 hens—no more, no less—is to be used.

In putting down the Potsdam outfit, the 10-hen clubs can be of substantial assistance. By the time there are enough local branches to form county, state and national federations of 10-hen clubs, Prussianism will realize that something has struck it.

"THE HEART O' YE."

AYE, th' night croons i' th' wisp o' dreams
An' swoons i' th' twilight's hush;
A' cosy th' lark lies i' her nest
I' th' forest, hedge or bush;
An' th' moon's a-lilting a sad love rune
To th' heart o' th' list'ning sea,
While th' part o' ye is th' heart o' ye
A-callin' th' heart o' me.

Th' rose dreams thro' th' spangled night
O' th' bees that kissed her lips,
A' th' ghost sails spread o'er lonely seas
O'er th' wraiths on phantom ships;
Th' weird songs quaver on morphic breeze
Where th' night-folk frolic free—
Aye, th' heart o' ye is th' part o' ye
That beckons th' heart o' me.

I' th' ebon cloak th' sere wold dreams
Where th' shades o' th' passing fly,
'Till th' wanton-Night, a' th' stars have slain
While her demons whip th' sky;
Croon dirge, O, waves! Chant dirge, O, winds
O'er th' tomb by th' wrathful sea!
There th' part o' ye is th' heart o' ye
That is breakin' th' heart o' me!

F. A. KERR.

Curious to know how far Mr. Kerr had succeeded in imitating Patience Worth, we sent the poem to Mr. and Mrs. Curran for criticism. The following letter is from Mr. Curran:

Dear Mr. McAdams:

I am returning Mr. Kerr's poem "after Patience Worth" which Mrs. Curran and I have read with pleasure. It is rather a pleasing thing, even though he makes the moon "lilt" and talks of the shades of the passing fly.

As to the language; Patience never uses "i' " or "th' " or "thro' " or "an' " except in character dialect conversation. In her poetry in the Scotch she uses "a' " for all, and the other usual abbreviations; but her late poetry is modern with a few idioms of her own. We have had hundreds of purported Patience Worth writings shown us, but not one was even near like hers. It seems almost impossible to imitate her. For instance, Patience would not use the word "morphic" as in this poem.

A Washington avenue sign:

Wanted—Girls to sew pants
on a power machine.

This is the first intimation that power machines on Washington avenue are wearing pants. We are glad to hear it.

The following sign appears in Little Rock, Ark.

Al Kines

However, our sign hunter was somewhat taken back to learn, upon inquiry, that Al Kines was the name of the merchant, and not, as he supposed, what sign hunters are looking for.

WINE AND OTHER THINGS.

SOMEWHERE IN FRANCE.

IF you do not sling the French lingo well and want to say "dry dock," and don't know the word for dry, say "thirsty dock" and the Frenchman will comprehend your meaning—and laugh, too.

That laugh of his makes up for a great scarcity of bath tubs. While you're here you may have to brush your teeth in wine or lemonade—but you can at least buy the wine without hiring a lawyer and fixing the grand jury.

Then, there's the heated question of cold rooms in which to arise in the A. M.

It's a problem—if you have not already decided that no room was ever made to get up in early in the A. M.

Wait for your place in the sun!

The movies are a passion with the French, but it's a question of how popular they would be were it not for the fact that they open when the wine shops close.

Where an American would think of putting a front porch on his house, the Frenchman knocks out the wall, buys a cask of "Dago Red" and opens up a tiny "zig-zag" parlor hardly large enough to hold the average St. Louis brewery driver, and with not as much stock as he can easily hold.

The wine shop in France is a side line. If business is dull with a cobbler he sells his soul to the devil.

This is one place where Billy Sunday would have a hard time, for as reported to you before, the colored First Sergeant has stated "There be's no Sundays."

All days look alike to Sammy, except pay day.

The French have solved the problem that perplexes the Maryland Car Line Protective Association—in the matter of shortage of gas masks for the home guard.

They don't use the inside of the cars!

The interior is just a bluff—just to make it look like a street car. At each end of the car are immense platforms and thereon—squeezed together tighter than the W. K. sardines, are men, women, children and lady conductors.

Perhaps if the U. R. used lady conductors enough male passengers would keep them company to give seats to the less susceptible.

More of France later. Au Revoir!

WIND OF THE WEST.

WIND of the West, come over the sea—
Wind of the cream white sail—
Wind come sing in my willow tree,
Tell me he cannot fail.
Wind—from the western front where he
In the land of dying, fights gallantly.
Wind of the west, come over the sea,
Bring him home safely to me.
Wind in the night, come over the sea,
Wind of the pale white moon.
Wind come whisper softly to me.
Say that he'll sail home soon.
Wind on the western front does he,
When the moon drifts low, then think of me?
Wind in the night, come over the sea,

WORLD ASPECTS OF BOLOISM.

From the Christian Science Monitor.

THE somewhat sordid tragedy of Bolo is, however, of far less interest than its indication of the extent to which treachery is prevalent in the world today. Never, probably, since the Italy of the later Emperors or of the Borgias has there been the same record of shameless treachery and brutality as has been revealed since the war began. The Romans never treated a conquered province worse than Serbia and Armenia have been treated in the nineteenth century of the Christian era; the Borgias never developed a system of treachery which could compare with that spun by the Wilhelmstrasse. But the worst part, almost, of the whole thing, is the justification extended to these acts in civilized countries. History has shown that whenever luxury has mastered a people this people has become deadened to a sense of Principle. This is why the story of the Renaissance, with all its wonders of art and literature, is stained with the record of a Christian paganism and a social animality illustrated by the careers of men, otherwise such poles asunder, as John Tiptoft and Benvenuto Cellini.

Today a recrudescence of the Renaissance luxury has brought about a recrudescence of the Renaissance blood-guiltiness. On no other grounds would it be possible to explain the general indifference of the world to such acts as the gradual murder of a nation in Serbia or in Armenia. It is quite true, of course, that an enormous number of people are horrified at what has occurred, but if that horror had been anything like universal, as it should have been, the very beginnings of those tragedies would have been also the end of them. Less than 300 years ago a threat from Cromwell was sufficient to halt the Piedmont massacres. But today evil thinks itself strong enough to commit atrocities in the full assurance that it can trust to the shortness of the world's memory, or to the world's indifference, if everything else should fail.

When Abdul Hamid turned loose the butcher of Adana on the defenseless Armenians the world shuddered, but Abdul was a mere tyro in crime compared with Enver, Talaat or Djemal "the hangman." But the Turkish triumvirate were only improving on the example set them by Germany in Belgium, and by Austria in Serbia, and their torturings and murderings could have been stopped by Austria or Germany, at any moment without trouble. But the Christian countries which approved and permitted the declaration of Islam of a Holy War, with all the horrors it would have included, had no interest in saving the Armenian, the Syrian, Christian or the Jew. It was, indeed, to stave off the penalty for these things, and to endeavor to intrench more firmly the alliance responsible for them, that Bolo Pasha, with his portmanteaux of bank notes, was sent to Paris.

The mission of Bolo was to procure the treachery of France, as the treachery of Russia was to be procured. He was to purchase newspapers and politicians for the purpose of influencing French public opinion, and so betraying the nation into a separate peace. It was a desperate scheme, but there were certain elements in French politics which made it far from hopeless. Anyway, it was only part of the policy of intimidation and intrigue which was being carried on all over the world, a policy which has failed with Norway and Brazil, but been entirely successful, so far, with Argentina and Spain. Of course, the greatest failure of all has been in the United States. But even in the United States what could not be effected, in a large way, by terrorism, has been effected, in a petty way, by treachery. What the hint of the Lusitania could not do, arson, in a limited way, has achieved. Count von Bernstorff may have gone, but "the German with the match" remains.

Sabbath Made for Man.

From the Springfield Republican.

NOT only should Maj. Henry L. Higginson's bill to allow soldiers and sailors in the service of the United States to play baseball and football Sunday afternoons be given favorable consideration on Beacon Hill, but it would be well to make the tolerance so desirable in that case apply to amateur sports generally. The Sabbath was made for man, not man for the Sabbath. It is to be hoped that the spiritual side of Sunday will never depart and surely experiences through which the world is passing are making men more responsive to it. Changes in the social order have tended to make man require more of Sunday than the old order supplied. Refreshment must enter into the day of rest if it is to yield the best results. When Maj. Higginson said the young men in the camps needed some recreation after six days of routine he stated an obvious fact. Chaplain Stone of the Charlestown navy yard testified that "Sunday is one of the worst days in the service. Something positive must be given the men to do after they attend service and finish the day's work." The evil possibilities of the present situation under such circumstances need not be dwelt upon. That which is said of soldiers and sailors applies to others. Workers need exercise on Sunday afternoons, and why not open the way to such wholesome use of that opportunity as has been proposed? No abuse is suggested, but such employment of idle time as will help and not injure soldiers and sailors and the rest of us.

Benefit Performances, With the Automobile Show and Some Weddings Hold Attention of the Week—Much Interest Being Taken in Support of Soldiers and Sailors' Club—Red Cross Society Is the Beneficiary in a Number of Events.

THE principal events of the week to hold the attention of society were several benefit performances, with the automobile show as a welcome diversion. The metamorphosis of the old Southern Hotel, which has become almost historic, into an exhibit building, seemed strange to the older generation and a flood of reminiscences were evoked. For many, it was difficult to reconcile the fact that the place where the automobile was paramount was once the scene of some of the most brilliant social events this city has ever witnessed, and that in the corridors where engines, radiators and cylinders were the topic of conversation, the wit and beauty of St. Louis among the belles and beaux of a former generation held sway.

Many fashionable weddings were celebrated at this famous old hostelry, among them that of Miss Clara Busch when she became the bride of Paul von Gontard, which was said to have been the most elaborate and lavish wedding that has ever been seen in St. Louis. The Home Circle, that exclusive club which was a forerunner of the Imperial, held a number of balls there also, and many other social affairs of note took place within its walls.

AMONG the patriotic benefit entertainments to which society lent its presence was the recital given by Mme. Peroux-Williams at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Edward A. Faust of 1 Portland place, on Thursday evening, with Mrs. Max Kotany and Mrs. Luther Ely Smith in charge of the affair. The proceeds, which were considerable, were donated to the St. Louis Chapter of the American Red Cross.

Washington's birthday was the occasion of the lecture by John Masefield for the benefit of the Kingdom House Settlement, and society was out in numbers to greet the warrior-poet and to make the evening a successful one.

That same evening the Jefferson Chapter, D. A. R., sponsored a pageant entitled "The Drawing of the Sword," given at the Missouri School for the Blind, the students of the school taking part.

The money realized from this entertainment will go toward war relief work in which this chapter is interested, and include the rehabilitation of the town of Tilloloy, in France, and the Soldiers' and Sailors' Club of St. Louis. The Jefferson Chapter has devoted all of its time this year to war relief work and much good has been accomplished

TWO recitals at which nearly 200 well-known women of St. Louis will act as patronesses will be given at the St. Louis Woman's Club, the first one on Monday, March 4, and the other the following Monday, March 11. Estella Neuhaus, pianiste, and J. Howe Clifford, Shakespearean reader, will be the artists. One-third of the proceeds from these recitals will go toward Edith Wharton's war charities in France, which include American hospitals for women refugees and a rescue committee for the children of Flanders.

Mr. Clifford is a reader of unusual ability and interprets Shakspeare with true dramatic art. Miss Neuhaus is well known as a pianiste and has given recitals in nearly all the largest cities of the United States. With the list of patronesses, these musicales promise to be social as well as artistic entertainments.

THE ST. LOUIS MATERNITY HOSPITAL is an institution that has been a vital factor for good in the community ever since its establishment some years ago, and just now its capacity has been taxed, as well as its resources as never before, owing to the fact a number of soldiers' wives are being cared for within its doors. Some of the most prominent society women in the city are interested in this institution and are members of the board, and they have planned a series of afternoon and evening entertainments for the purpose of raising money to help defray the expenses of the work they are doing.

These entertainments will consist of four Saturday afternoon matinee picture show performances for children, at which pictures will be shown especially selected and censored to appeal to the young. They will be given at the Lorelei on Olive street near Taylor avenue, the first one on March 9 and the three succeeding Saturday afternoons. On Friday evening, March 8, will be the first evening affair for the grown-ups and it is planned to have a well-known speaker as an attraction, the name will be announced later, and another evening of the same kind will be given shortly afterwards.

Some of the women who are working for its success are Mrs. Allen T. West, the president, Mmes. Dwight Davis, Benoist Carton, Clarence Stratton, D. B. Hussey, Emmett Myers, John Holliday, Joseph Singer, Lester Goldman, Edgar Niggeman, Ewing Hill Jr., Lon Hocker, J. I. Epstein, Ben Chapman, Harold Kauffman, John C. Roberts, George Marion Brown, Firmin Desloge and others.

THURSDAY evening at the Wednesday Club Auditorium, the Morning Choral Club will give a concert to help in financing the Soldiers' and Sailors' Club of St. Louis. This will be the first time in the history of the Morning Choral that they have deviated from the rule of giving nothing but subscription concerts with relatives and friends as guests.

The concert Thursday will be substituted for the usual fancy dress frolic which the club has always given as a feature of its annual season, and will be styled "Old-Fashioned Songs of All Nations," and will be participated in by the entire club strength of 100 trained voices acting as principals and chorus, attired in costumes for the period from which the songs are drawn. The feature of the evening promises to be the processional, in which Mrs. Archer O'Reilly, the club president, will lead the club while it renders the ever-inspiring chorus, "Scotland's Burning."

Among the prominent women who will take part in the program are Mmes. Archer O'Reilly, Taylor Bernard, C. Mueller, R. M. Milligan, H. D. Holman, Carol Smith, Charles Stanley, C. Dawson, E. H. Macy, Charles W. Allen, J. W. Hopkins, Arthur L. Dickie, T. F. Liese, J. J. Kessler, W. T. Jones, Arthur N. Schisler, J. H. Moorehead, J. Davie, Hector Pazmezoglu, W. O. Reeder, W. B. Weston, Willard Bartlett, H. J. Symons, R. H. Ogle, William Roth, E. G. Payne and W. L. Ricker, and Misses Mildred Wallace, Elizabeth Bradley, Blanche Herrick, Olga Hembuecher, Marietta Schumacher, Adelaide Logan, Lorine Haueisen, Marie Becker, Olga Bates, Florence Grant and Edna Wagner.

SOCIETY will be represented at the Municipal Athletic Association carnival at the Coliseum next Saturday night, which is for the benefit of the Soldiers' and Sailors' Club of the War Camp Community Service Board, 1137 Olive street, and financed by various women's organizations of the city. The hostesses of the club will act as patronesses at the carnival and include: Mmes. Robert Burkham, J. D. Perry Francis, J. C. Ballard, John G. Lonsdale, A. B. Donnelly, Harry Stegall, Lee Van Cleave, H. W. Soper, Ben Chapman, Harry Langenberg, A. N. Gaebler, O. N. Von Schrader, J. S. Fuqua, W. A. Stickney, E. V. Papin, A. B. Ewing, Frank C. Blelock, J. N. McKelvey, Isaac Hodges, C. M. Talbert, T. K. Niedringhaus, E. R. Kinsey, H. Watson, John Gundlach, A. D. Nortoni, J. A. Hooke, John Schmoll, Henry W. Kiel, Peyton Carr, Harry Block, C. H. Fisk, W. A. McCandless, Martin J. Collins, N. A. Doyle, George Dieckmann, O. P. Meyer, J. G. Cahill, C. Dewitt Lukens, W. E. Rolfe, Herbert Parker, Rubens Humphrey and Charlton Messick and Misses Sarah Tower and Carlotta Glasgow.

The entertainment of the evening includes exhibitions by the Turners societies, drills by the Grotto Zouaves and the De Andreis Council, Knights of Columbus, a human flag formation by Sunday school children, a wall scaling exhibition by Boy Scouts, a tug of war between the Police Department and the Division of Parks and Recreation, a bayonet drill and broadsword maneuvers by the Y. M. C. A. and a number of other events.

THE members of the St. Louis branch of the American Fund for French Wounded have established a North Side headquarters at 2904 North Vandeventer avenue, the formal dedication having taken place on Thursday afternoon, when a card party was given to raise funds to help purchase gauze for the surgical dressings, as well as other hospital supplies that the members are engaged in making. Classes will be held in the new quarters every Monday, Wednesday and Friday afternoon from 2 to 5 o'clock and will be in charge of Miss Elise Boeckeler, Mrs. William Stuart Culbertson and Mrs. Edward A. Limberg. Miss Ellanore Scott is the chairman of the quarters.

At the party Thursday Mrs. Thomas McKittrick made the opening address and Mrs. Frank Crunden told of the work of the society. The main headquarters are at 3621 Washington boulevard and many women give much of their time to the work which is being accomplished by this war relief society. Mrs. Leo de Smet Carton is one of the prominent workers in this cause and every Tuesday evening she conducts a class at the Union Methodist Church, where surgical dressings and hospital supplies are made.

The male members of the church are just as interested in this work apparently as the women, and about 25 men belong to this class. Last Tuesday evening from 8 until 10 o'clock more than 600 surgical dressings were made. Donations are requested to this fund. No matter how small, they will be gratefully received to help carry on a work which is so important at this time.

THE Red Cross is to benefit from the concert arranged for Sheldon Auditorium, Thursday evening, March 7, in which Mrs. Martin Lammert will be heard for the first time in public recital. She has a beautiful soprano voice and up to the present Mrs. Lammert's friends alone have had the privilege of hearing her sing in the home, but the opportunity to substantially serve the Red Cross prompted her to participate in the concert. On the program with Mrs. Lammert will be H. Max Steindel, first cellist of the Symphony Orchestra; David Earle, pianist, and Tyrie W. Lyon at the organ.

Miss Harriette Krause of the Netherby Hall apartments entertained with an informal tea on Thursday afternoon in honor of Miss Harriet Price, one of the season's buds. Miss Elizabeth Kennard poured and among the guests were Misses Marion Bridge, Vesta Reed, Amy Rule, Frances Orrick, Eleanor and Nancy Chase, Dorothy Phillips, Mary Frances Price, Edith Skipwith, Crenshaw and Elizabeth Waller, Mary Skeen.

THE knitting teas which are given by the St. Louis Woman's Club on the first Thursday in each month are looked forward to with pleasure by the members. One was given last Thursday, the date having been changed for this time. Mrs. John Ockerson, chairman of the Hospitality Committee, assisted by the members of the committee, Mmes. Ashley D. Scott, Oscar Niedringhaus, D. B. Hussey, John Wallace and Edwin S. Puller, had charge of the afternoon. The women have done much toward contributing warm garments for the sailors and soldiers.

Next Thursday the club will entertain with a current topics luncheon at 1 o'clock, when the guest of honor will be Mrs. Charles Humann, who will give a talk on some of her personal experiences in France during the war.

Miss Charlotte Sharp, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Sharp of 3827 Botanical avenue will depart today for Tampico, Mexico, where she will become the bride of Frank A. Tillman Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. F. A. Tillman of 3853 McRee avenue, upon her arival there. Mr. Tillman formerly resided in St. Louis and attended the St. Louis University, but is now located in Tampico with the Huasteca Petrol Co. Miss Sharp will be accompanied by Miss Rose Simmons of New York, who will wed Mr. Randolph Sessman, formerly of that city, who is also in Tampico. Miss Sharp graduated from the Central High School and has been one of the popular members of the South Side younger set.

Adjutant-General Harvey C. Clark and Mrs. Clark are expected in St. Louis Tuesday for a short stay and while here will be much entertained by their St. Louis friends. Gen. Clark is coming to make an address before the Relatives' Auxiliary of the St. Louis National Guard Tuesday afternoon at the Y. W. C. A., 1411 Locust street, and is to represent Gov. Gardner at a meeting of the Advertising Club of St. Louis. Gen. and Mrs. Clark will visit their son, Edward Clark, who is a student at Washington University. Among the affairs planned in their honor is a dinner Tuesday night at the Mercantile Club at which Mrs. Carl O. Houseman, president of the Relatives' Auxiliary of the St. Louis National Guard, will be hostess.

The wedding of Miss Margaret Drey and Dr. J. Louis Swarts on Thursday was one of the interesting weddings of the week. The ceremony was performed at the home of the bride's mother, Mrs. Lizzie H. Drey, 4543 Westminster place, at 6:30 o'clock followed by a bridal dinner. Mrs. Randall Tilles was her sister's only attendant and Dr. Moyer Fleisher served as best man. The bride was graduated from Hosmer Hall and was an honor graduate at Vassar College two years ago. Dr. Swarts is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Swarts of the Hanley road, and is a Harvard graduate. After a honeymoon trip to Excelsior Springs the couple will be at home in the Warwick court apartments after March 15. Mr. and Mrs. Walter Drey, of New York, and Mr. and Mrs. Howard Heydon, of Newark, N. J., came on to attend the wedding.

Miss Edna McFadden of New York, the guest of Miss Ellen Parle of 325 North Taylor avenue, has been much entertained during her visit. Miss Leslie Price of 26 King's highway, entertained in her honor, also Misses Jessamyn Ferguson, Lucile Musick, Marion Cronk, Carrie Belle Atkins, Emily Ryan and many others.

An engagement of interest recently announced is that of Miss Dorothy Ferneding and J. E. Charles Lohn. Miss Ferneding is the niece of Mr. and Mrs. Emil S. Clauss of 3670 Flora boulevard, with whom she resides. She was graduated at the Sacred Heart Convent at Maryville and made her debut two years ago. Since then she has been one of the most popular girls on the South Side. Mr. Lohn is from Essex, England, and resides at the Buckingham Hotel. The wedding will take place in April.

The marriage of Miss Jessie Bell Sanders and Clinton A. Pickett was one of the weddings of the week, taking place on Wednesday evening at 8:30 o'clock, at the residence of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. C. C. Sanders of the Hanley road. Miss Martha Sanders, a cousin of the bride, was maid of honor, and Miles Hinton served as best man. Little Natalie Chadsey Sanders, a niece of the bride was flower girl. After a wedding journey Mr. and Mrs. Pickett will be at home at 5193 Vernon avenue. The bridegroom is a son of Mr. and Mrs. H. C. Pickett of Altamont, Ill.

Monday Garland's Tomorrow

A Sensational Coat Event!

A Sale that will, we are satisfied, look like the impossible, from the viewpoint of the average woman. That will cause every store in the Middle West (or any other part of the country) to take notice and marvel—and lead every coat manufacturer in America (except the one who made these coats) to wonder HOW such coats can be produced, in these high-cost times, to sell at the prices we are going to sell these Coats for tomorrow.

This Manufacturer however, is always doing the unusual—and WE have a habit of springing the unusual, with frequency, upon an appreciative public—and this IS UNUSUAL. In fact, it's the BIGGEST COAT event, in the way of variety of styles, materials, colors and VALUES, we have ever announced. From the present market conditions, and the future outlook we doubt if a Coat opportunity like this will, or can be duplicated in the near future.

The Actual Values Range Up to $45.00
The Sale Prices Will Be
$13.95, $16.95 and $26.50

And Your Color Preference?

We were just as careful on that point as in materials. We made sure that there would be nothing lacking when the crowd came and nearly every one asking for a different color or shade.

If you want a Spring-weight Velour you'll find it in one or the other of these 3 groups:

Burella did you say? or Covert—or Silvertone—or Duvet de Laine—Wool Poplin—or Serge—or Broadcloth—or Cordurex? They're here in one of the groups, and a number of other fabrics which we cannot call to mind now, or that have not yet been removed from their cases. Every taste in material has been provided for.

There are light shades, dark shades and medium shades. There are high colors and dull, soft, subdued shades: Shannon rose (new), castor, fawn, taupe, beet, brick, banana, Roman gold, brass, wine, maple, canteloupe, grass green, reseda, tan, golden brown, apricot and other new shades which have not yet been given a name—that's how new they are. And don't forget the ever staple and popular blues and black. All here in one or the other of the 3 groups.

Style after style—SO many we'll not try to enumerate them. Styles for miss and matron, all new, all with the stamp of individuality revealed in every line, drape and hang.

MUSICAL COMEDY AND MINSTRELS THIS WEEK

"Rambler Rose" Vehicle for Julia Sanderson and Joseph Cawthorn.

After a week monopolized by classical drama under the leadership of Robert B. Mantell, the theater resumes its function of light entertainment tonight with a musical comedy at the American Theater and a minstrel show at the Jefferson. The former is "Rambler Rose," presenting Miss Julia Sanderson and Joseph Cawthorn, and the latter is a Gus Hill blackface offering, headed by George Wilson.

"Rambler Rose," with book by Harry B. Smith and music by Victor Jacobi, tells the story of an American girl, immured in a fashionable girls' school in England, who rebels against the matrimonial plans arranged for her by others, and follows to Paris and Deauville a young artist upon whom she has set her heart, with the aim of compelling him to propose. She, in turn, is followed by a bashful suitor who turns horseman, poet, sculptor and "sport" in a vain effort to win her affections.

Miss Sanderson has plenty of opportunity for singing and dancing, and in the latter her partner is John Goldsworth. Cawthorn is said to be extremely funny as the diffident wooer, and to him falls the most comical song of them all, an interpolated number by Irving Berlin, entitled "The Poor Little Rich Girl's Dog." Others in the cast are Ada Meade, Stewart Baird, George E. Mack, Jean Newcombe, W. H. Bentley, Ethel Boyd and Doris Predo. The play is a Charles Frohman production.

The "Ziegfeld Follies" will open at the American next Sunday night, with 150 in the cast and the usual sumptuous settings. Among the familiar entertainers will be Will Rogers, Bert Williams and Miss Fannie Brice.

The minstrel show at the Jefferson boasts 60 performers, two interlocutors and two brass bands. George Wilson was formerly a partner of Primrose & Dockstader, and prior to his engagement with this troupe had a long and successful engagement at the Hippodrome in New York City.

Another burnt-cork favorite in the company is Eddie Mazier. It is promised that the entertainment will be of the old-fashioned minstrel sort.

"Thirteenth Chair" Returns.

"The Thirteenth Chair," Bayard Veiller's thrilling melodrama, will play a return engagement at the Jefferson, beginning next Sunday night. The drama was presented at the Shubert-Garrick Theater a few weeks ago, but had a collision with a blizzard which cut down the attendance.

At the Orpheum this week Nan Halperin, impersonator and character singer, who was headliner of the bill which opened this theater at the beginning of the present season, will return in a new sketch by William B. Friedlander. Among the other acts will be a playlet, "The Question," by Aaron Hoffman, presenting Sam Mann in a character role; "The Four Mortons," introducing two new members of this stage family; a program of dances, under the name of "Five Foot Fancies," by Lester Sheehan and Pearl Regay, and the usual comedy and acrobatic features.

At the Imperial, beginning with a matinee this afternoon, J. M. Busby's Minstrels, with a cast of negro entertainers, will disport themselves this week. One feature is a burlesque boxing match between "Joe Gans" and "Tham Langford." A Chicago Winter Garden Revue, led by Billy and Edith Adams, and the Belle sisters will be the topliner at the Columbia. The second attraction on the list is a one-act playlet by the late Paul Armstrong, entitled "To Save One Girl." "Flirtation," a musical satire on college life, will hold the stage at the Grand Opera House during the week, featuring Dorothy Van and Frank Ellis. At the Gayety this afternoon will open Joe Hurtig's "Bowery Burlesquers," headed by Billy Foster and Frank Harcourt.

PERSON FOR EVERY JOB, SAYS FEDERAL EXPERT

W. R. King Tells St. Charles War Conference There Is No Shortage of Labor.

"Given satisfactory wages, satisfactory working conditions and satisfactory living conditions and there is no difficulty whatever in finding plenty of men and women for every job," said W. R. King, United States Department of Labor, immigration service, St Louis district, yesterday at St. Charles County War Conference, held under the auspices of the St. Charles Chamber of Commerce and the St. Charles County Council of Defense.

King, in his address on "Labor," pointed out that the Federal and State Employment Bureau in St. Louis, a joint service, has been able to furnish many times more than the number called for, provided satisfactory working conditions are offered. The speaker showed how, through the Postoffice and other agencies, the Employment Bureau is helping the farmer and other employers get men, always putting stress on the fact that good working conditions are necessary to secure laborers.

T. J. Talbert, Assistant Food Administrator of Missouri, discussed the food situation and Dr. John L. Roemer, president of Lindenwood College, talked on "Patriotism."

X. P. Wilfley, Election Commissioner of St. Louis, spoke on the fuel situation, while A. O. Wilson, president State National Bank of St. Louis, discussed "Finance." Mrs. Edmund Brown, director of women's work, Southwestern Division American Red Cross Society, outlined that organization's work. J. C. Willbrand, chairman of the St. Charles County Council of Defense, presided at the conference attended by several hundred people from St. Charles and St. Charles County. Mayor John H. Steinbrinker spoke a word of welcome for the city.

English Aviator Killed in Texas.

FORT WORTH, Tex., Feb. 23 (By A. P.).—James G. Ringland, aged 27, Royal Flying Corps, is dead, and another royal flier, whose name could not be learned, was injured as a result of a collision between two airplanes near Benbrook Field yesterday. Ringland's home was Dover, England. The planes collided at an altitude of about 1000 feet.

AMERICAN PROGRAM AT SYMPHONY 'POP' TODAY

Miss Gladys Stevenson of Webster Groves, Pianist, Is Soloist.

The Symphony Orchestra will observe Washington's birthday at its "pop" concert this afternoon by presenting a program every number of which, save one, is by an American composer. Two of the authors represented are St. Louisans, Ernest R. Kroeger and John T. Hall.

The soloist will be Miss Gladys Stevenson of Webster Groves, a young pianiste just out of high school, in whom Mrs. H. H. A. Beach, the celebrated composer and pianiste, has shown much interest. Miss Stevenson is a descendant of a signer of the Declaration of Independence. She has received all of her instruction from her mother, Mrs. Mary Bakewell Stevenson.

One selection on the program is the third movement of Henry Hadley's symphony, "North, East, South and West," which was played for the first time here at a recent pair of regular Symphony concerts. Kroeger's contribution is the suite, "Lalla Rookh," and Hall's is the waltz, "Wedding of the Winds." The program follows:

March, Louisiana	Van der Stucken
Prelude to The Delectable Forest	Ballantine
Symphony No. 4, D Minor, Op. 64 (North, East, South and West) third movement only	Hadley
South, scherzo; allegretto giocoso.
Concerto for piano, No. 4, D Minor, Op. 70 (first movement only), moderato—	Rubenstein
Suite Lalla Rookh	Kroeger
Cavalcade, Dance of the Girls of the Pagoda, Wedding Festival.
Waltz, Wedding of the Winds	J. T. Hall

There will be no Friday and Saturday concerts this week, and the next event in the orchestra's program is the "pop" of next Sunday, when a request program will be presented.

Eddy Brown, American violinist, engaged to fill the place left vacant by Julia Culp, soprano, will be heard at the next pair of Symphony concedts, March 8 and 9.

FORMER AMBASSADOR GIRARDS NEW BOOK ON KAISERISM

the Seven Years War concludes, 'The King and the Empress were tired of war, so they made peace.' That is how this war will end." Will it? Will it end in a draw, to be resumed when some King feels the war fever on him? No, this war must end despots, and with them all wars!

It is all such a matter of personal whim. For instance, before Bulgaria entered the war on the side of Germany, even the best-informed Germans predicted that King Ferdinand would never join Germany because of an incident which occurred in the Royal Palace of Berlin. This is how it happened:

Kaiser Angered Bulgarian Czar by Spanking Him in Jest.

It is the custom for one monarch to make his pals in the King business officers of his army or navy. Thus the German Emperor is General Field Marshal and Proprietor of the Thirty-fourth "William the First, German Emperor and King of Prussia" Infantry and Seventh "William the Second, German Emperor and King of Prussia" Hussars, in the Austro-Hungarian army: Chief of the "King Frederick William III St. Petersburg Life Guards," the Eighty-fifth "Viburg" Infantry and the Thirteenth "Narva" Hussars, and the "Grodno" Hussars of the Guard, in the Russian army; Field Marshal in the British army, Hon. Admiral of the British fleet and Colonel-in-Chief First Dragoons; General in the Swedish army and Flag Admiral of the fleet; Hon. Admiral of the Norwegian and Danish fleet; Admiral of the Russian fleet; Hon. Captain-General in the Spanish army and Hon. Colonel of the Eleventh "Numancia" Spanish Dragoons, and Hon. Admiral of the Greek fleet.

The King of Bulgaria was Chief of the Fourth Thuringia Infantry Regiment No. 72, in the Prussian army. As per custom, on a visit to Berlin he donned his uniform of the Thuringian Infantry. He had put on a little weight, and military unmentionables, be it known, are notoriously tight. So as he leaned far out of the palace window to admire the passing troops, he presented a mark so tempting that the Emperor, in jovial mood, was impelled to administer a resounding spank on the sacred seat of the Czar of all the Balkans. Instead of taking the slap in the same jovial spirit in which it was given, the Czar Ferdinand, a little jealous of the self-assumed title of Czar, became furiously angry—so angry that even the old diplomats of the Metternich school believed for a time that he never would forgive the whack and even might refuse to join Germany. But Czar Ferdinand, believing in the military power of Germany, cast his already war-worn people in the war against the allies, much to the regret of many Bulgarian statesmen, who, having been educated at Robert College, near Constantinople, a college founded and maintained by Americans, and having imbibed somewhat of the American spirit there, were not over pleased to think of themselves as eventually arrayed against the United States of America.

But there is no monarch in all Europe who is more wily than Czar Ferdinand. At a great feat in Bulgaria at which Emperor William was present, Czar Ferdinand toasted the Emperor in Latin and alluded to him as "Miles Gloriosus," which all present took to mean "glorious soldier," but the exact Latin meaning of "gloriosus" is "boastful," a meaning well known in Berlin, where, at the "Little Theater" in a series of plays of all ages, the "Miles Gloriosus" of Plautus had just been presented—a boastful, conceited soldier, the "Miles Gloriosus," the chief character of the comedy.

Nothing illustrates more vividly the belief of the royal families of the Central Empires in their God-given right to rule the plain people than those few words of Maximilian, written before his ill-fated expedition to Mexico. Speaking of the Palace at Caserta, near Naples, he wrote:

"The monumental stairway is worthy of majesty. What can be finer than to imagine the sovereign placed at its head, resplendent in the midst of these marble pillars—to fancy this monarch, like a God, graciously permitting the approach of human beings. The crowd surges upward. The King vouchsafes a gracious glance, but from a very lofty elevation. All-powerful, imperial, he makes one step toward them, with a smile of infinite condescension. Could Charles V, could Maria Theresa appear thus at the head of this ascending stair, who would not bow their heads before that majestic, God-given power?"

What was the condition of the people under Maria Theresa, whom Maximilian spoke of as possessing a power that, according to him, was so God-given that no one could fail to bow the head before her majestic presence? The peasants, under her rule, were practically slaves, as they could not leave the lord's lands or even marry without his permission, nor could they bring their children up to any profession other than that of laborer. In other words, the children of the slave must remain slaves.

Poor Maximilian! He was a brother of the late Emperor Francis Joseph and a member of the Kaiserbund and royal system which, while America was busy with domestic difficulties between the North and South, sought to wrest from Mexico her liberty. I wonder if the Mexicans have forgotten the incident and its implications.

But one-man power always fails in the end. No man, King or President, whatever he may himself think, has a brain all powerful and all knowing. There is wisdom in counsel. Too much of some favorite dish may lead to indigestion and that to bad judgment and disaster at a critical time. Napoleon III, just before 1870, was suffering from a wasting disease and so allowed himself to be ruled by the beautiful, narrow, fascinating, foolish Spanish Empress, whom he gave to the French in a moment of passion, because, as she said to him, "The way to her room lay through the church door." Col. Stoffel, the French Military Attache to the Berlin embassy, wrote confidentially report after report to the Emperor telling him of the immense military strength of Prussia and of her readiness for immediate war. But most of these reports were afterward found unopened in the desk of the doting, sick and fallen Emperor.

For, after all, however divine the King, Emperor or Kaiser may consider himself, he is but a vulnerable human being—and no accident of birth should give even a small number of people on this earth into the hands of a single mortal.

He said in the letter, which was dated Jan. 26, that he expected to go to France within a week for further training.

The students are quartered in the dormitories at Oxford University, which he describes as being devoted almost exclusively to the aeronautical school. The day's work begins at 6 a. m. and ends at 11 p. m.

Depth Bombs Killing Big Fish.

BASE AMERICAN FLOTILLA IN BRITISH WATERS, Feb. 23 (By A. P.).—Enormous destruction of fish is done by every depth charge dropped by a destroyer. An American destroyer brought home a 10-foot codfish the other day, killed in this way. A week ago a huge fish, at first taken for a specimen of the thresher shark, was washed ashore near the American base. It measured 16 feet in length and its girth around the head where it was thickest was five feet.

"St. Louis and the West Is Prosperous."

Why is there more prosperity and better business now in the cities west of the Mississippi River than in the Eastern cities?

We have offices and salesrooms in both New York City and Grand Rapids, Michigan, so we are in a position to compare and will give reasons why business out here is better than east of here.

There is not the shortage of coal and other necessities that they have East, because we have less freight troubles and terminal congestion.

The West not only shares with the East in having all its great manufacing plants busy, many working night and day, but it has a larger prosperous agricultural country with big crops and splendid prices for these crops.

This store is preparing for the biggest year in its history and will serve you even better this year.

New System of Fat Reduction

Here's a new way for all fat people to laugh together at that old bugaboo—Obesity. The saying that "there is nothing new under the sun" does not now apply to fat people any more. Here is something new for them—a new sensation, a new pleasure, a new and graceful figure, easily found by anyone who is passing beyond the limits of slimness. Everyone has heard of the Marmola Prescription, that harmless combination of fat-defying elements which has become known as the most successful of all reducing treatments. Now there comes another idea—the idea of condensing these same pure, harmless ingredients into a pleasant little tablet. Taken after eating and at bed-time, they help the stomach to dispose of all the fatty foods, converting them into compact, solid flesh, muscle and energy, without dieting or exercise. Marmola Prescription Tablets regulate the entire system—do for you what bodily exertion and self-denial cannot do, and the fat, once routed, is gone for good. You can prove all this at a trifling cost. Marmola Prescription Tablets are sold by all druggists or sent postpaid by the Marmola Co., 864 Woodward Av., Detroit, Mich. 'ALLIES CAN BLAME ONLY THEMSELVES FOR LOSS OF RUSSIA'

Post-Dispatch Petrograd Correspondent Charges Entente Diplomats Have Failed.

FAILED TO STATE AIMS

Russian People Are Eager to Get What the Americans Want.

The following article by Arno Dosch-Fleurot, the Post-Dispatch's staff correspondent in Russia, was brought to this country from the Russian capital by special messenger. The article is important, because of the illumination it gives to the underlying causes of the successful Bolshevik revolution leading to the move for a separate peace with Germany and Russia's total defection from the war.

By Arno Dosch-Fleurot,
A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

PETROGRAD, Dec. 31.—If the allied Governments, including our own, do not like what has happened in Russia since the successful Bolshevik October-November revolution —and, of course, they do not—they have only themselves to thank for it. For the Bolshevik revolution would not have taken place, a separate armistice would not have been signed with Germany, with the possibility of a separate peace, if it had not been for a whole series of mistakes on the part of the allied Governments in relation to Russia. I do not say these mistakes were not quite natural, but really good diplomacy would have avoided them.

Signs of certain trouble have been for months as plain as the moon in the sky. Ever since the Miliukoff crisis on the first of May the two chief questions on which the Russian situation was finally wrecked have been sticking up like sore thumbs. Miliukoff had to go because he refused to make new treaties with the allies, but insisted on sticking to the old. Result: First, the Bolshevik finally printed all the secret treaties and correspondence they could find, and made a great scandal of it. Second, the fall of Miliukoff was accompanied by the fall of Minister of War Guchkoff. Guchkoff had to go because he insisted on trying to make the army go on fighting the old fight. The army has finished with that affair by signing a separate armistice.

Immediate peace and the end of secret diplomacy have been the Russian slogans all summer. The only reason they have not long since resulted in a separate peace is the fidelity to the allied cause shown by the successive ministries which have centered around the figure of Kerensky. They staved off the inevitable as long as they could with the support of the people dwindling at every change. In the end they got so far out of touch with the masses of the Russian population that the only bayonets Kerensky had with him when he fled from the Winter Palace were in the hands of the Women's Battalion and the boys from the military schools. For the moment the Soviet (the Council of Soldiers' and Workmen's Delegates) withdrew their support and the Government fell to pieces. The Soviet had everything so firmly in its own hands in Petrograd that Kerensky could hardly get enough gasoline for the automobile in which he fled.

Failure to Understand the Soviet.

It was the obvious commonplace of the Russian situation that the Government could only stand as long as it had the Soviet behind it. The barometer was the Soviet, Russia's allies could not afford to take their eyes off it for a moment. But, instead, they kept their eyes on the Government. Otherwise they would have done some rapid footwork, particularly the last weeks before the Bolsheviki drove Kerensky out of town.

To have misjudged the situation earlier in the summer was, perhaps, natural enough. None of us could think of anything but how to keep the Russian army in some kind of fighting form, and those Russians who had the same interest at heart we regarded as our support. But that was no excuse for overlooking the fact that they were a small part of the population, and when they ceased to be an influential part allied diplomacy had no time to lose, but apparently had no idea what it ought to be doing, or it would not have made so many mistakes.

If the allies had had any conception of what the people were thinking in Russia, they would have done one thing at all cost. They would have called the conference on the aims of the war. Not to do it was diplomatic stupidity. And if by not doing it they handed the Bolsheviki ammunition to use against Kerensky, thereby causing his downfall, they have, as I say, only themselves to thank.

The calling of that conference was absolutely necessary. It was obviously not agreeable to call it, but it had to be done. The fact that the allied Governments did not call it showed either they were badly informed or stubborn, either of which is inexcusable in the face of the fact. It is easy enough to understand the human weakness which caused the allies to act as they did. They took the attitude that Russia must live up to her obligations. Well and good. A man who was fighting in the trenches in France might be excused for getting very sore about it, and looking no farther. But their Governments should have known the Russians had no intention of living up to these obligations, or, to put it more correctly, the great masses of the Russians decided they had no such obligations. The allies had a condition, not a theory, before them. But they insisted on considering it theoreticaly. It will probably be a surprise for the rest of the world to learn that the Bolshevik revolution got under way when Bonar Law got up in the House of Commons, in October, and said he did not know anything about a conference to be held on the aims of the war. He was answering a question of some Radical members of the House and, as his remark was printed here, he replied that there was soon to be a general allied conference at Paris on the means of carrying on the war to a successful conclusion, but he was unaware that this conference was to take up the aims of the war.

"ALLIES CAN ONLY BLAME THEMSELVES FOR LOSS OF RUSSIA"

Bonar Law Was Badly Informed.

To begin with, Bonar Law was apparently very badly informed on Russian public opinion, or he would never have made such a statement in public. He could not have told the Russians more plainly to stop talking about secret treaties and get back to the trenches, and that was about all the Russians needed to explode. They exploded, too, and one of the most curious things about it is that Mr. Bonar Law probably does not realize to this day that he had anything to do with the Bolshevik revolution.

Granted that the Russians chose a very unfortunate time for talking about secret treaties—doubt the good faith of it if you like—but there was one unescapable fact, the Russians had been talking about hardly anything else for six months or more. So it was perfectly apparent that the matter had to be taken up in one way or another. In fact, the Paris conference was originally agreed upon for August, and whatever mental reservations there may have been about it in the minds of other people, in the minds of the leaders of the Soviet that conference was going to spend a good share of its time on the question of the aims of the war. But that conference kept being put off, and put off, until the Soviet had pretty well lost patience. And then, at that unhappy moment, Mr. Bonar Law made his few remarks.

To get this clear, let us consider the whole question of secret treaties as regarded in Russia, since the revolution. For that was the mainspring of the Bolshiviki revolution, and was so important to its success that Trotzky had to deliver and print those treaties immediately following the revolution, or the strength of the new Government would have been very much lessened. I have sometimes wondered what would have happened if Trotzky had had to search through the thousands of papers in the Ministry of Foreign Affairs to find them. Fortunately for him he did not have to search. Mr. Neratoff, the bureaucratic head of the Ministry of Foreign Affairs, came and showed him where they were. Mr. Neratoff, by the way, was a holdover from time to time of the empire. Why did he help Trotzky find them? He certainly had no revolutionary reasons for wanting to see them printed. Those who are making grimaces over the publishing of these documents might do well to give a little thought to the part in their publication played by Neratoff.

But this is aside from the main point. The important consideration is the revolution was only a month old when the Soviet spoke up in decame forthwith, its program of "peace without annexations or contributions and the right of nations to decide their government and allegiance for themselves." Ever since that has been one of the two chief points in revolutionary minds. The other is "land to the people." The land question was the older, but the peace program has been the instrument with which they upset Governments, within a few days of its annunciation, as soon as Miliukoff replied he was going to stand by the treaties as writen, they ran him out of office. It was the big issue of the first all-Russia Soviet held in June. All during the summer it provided the material out of which was built up the sentiment against the "imperialistic allies." And when the Soviet came into its full growth in the reaction following the Korniloff afair you hardly heard anything else in all Russia.

At any time during this six months' period all talk about the "imperialistic allies" could have been ended by simply calling off the old treaties. It would not have even been necessary to print them, though that, too, might as well have been done, as the actual publication made the allies appear much less imperialistic than the vague hints that went before. In fact, the publication was something of a let-down, and the masses had an idea England and France intended to swallow Germany and Austria whole.

All this misunderstanding could have been avoided if the allied Governments had been able to orient themselves fast enough to the Russian situation. There was no material advantage to be gained by keeping them alive. The actuating motive of most of them, the acquisition of Constantinople by Russia, which was obviously distasteful to Russia itself. They could simply have been done away with enough published to satisfy curiosity and new treaties with revolutionary Russia could have been signed.

If this had been done there is very little doubt that Russia would not at this moment be considering the terms of a separate peace with Germany.

We have all been brought to this sorry pass because we did not even try to understand the workings of the Russian mind. There was a brand-new situation in diplomacy to handle and there did not appear to be anyone to handle it. For this we are now paying, and if in telling of the Bolshevik success I scold at allied diplomacy, it is because that is the most important angle for us. Whatever Bolshevikism may mean for civilization in general, coming about as it did, it certainly played havoc with our plans for upsetting German autocracy. Whether the Bolsheviki upset it another way is another question. What interests us chiefly at this moment is that they have increased the difficulties for us to finish it our way. So its most important immediate aspect is in relation to the war.

The fundamental mistake about the Russian revolution, the mistake which all citizens of allied countries in Russia, myself among the number, persisted in making, was that the Russian army could be induced to fight. We believed it in spite of our better judgment. We believed it because we wanted to believe it, because it was desperately important for us that Russia should fight. But we ought to have known better. We were in the position of the man who bets on the home team even when he knows it can only win on a fluke.

There was some excuse for thinking so, it is true. Plenty of Russians persisted in thinking so, too. Kerensky's efforts to put fire into the soldiers' tired hearts was an extraordinary performance. The attack he induced them to make in Galicia, was a forensic feat and the initial success gained before the spirit went out of the thing is hardly less extraordinary. Looking back now on my memories of that southwest army and the way it rallied to a fight for which it had no stomach, I cannot now feel that the debacle was anything but the natural consequence of an artificially stimulated assault.

Kerensky was a good friend of the Allies—too good. So were the other men who supported him. Tereschenko, who was in the closest touch with the Allies, deceived them at the same time he deceived himself. Tereschenko evidently did not know his own countrymen and is lying on his cot now in the Fortress of Peter and Paul, trying to make out what happened. He cannot understand what he did to be imprisoned—and probably never will, for he committed the fatal mistake of misunderstanding his own people. For us he was the worst of good friends. He sang us lullybies when we should have been wide awake and doing.

But I hold that for Kerensky, Tereschenko and other Russians to make the mistake was more excusable than for us to make it. They were in the internal fight, to which we were only anxious onlookers. The limits of the excuse that can be made for us was that the moment the Bolshiviki gained control of the Petrograd Soviet, when we did not wake up and get very busy a few days later at the downfall of the conservative leaders—Tchaidzle, Tseretelli & Co.—in the Central Committee of the all-Russia Soviet, we sim-

Fatal Delay in Stating War Aims.

These two events took place more than a month before the Bolsheviki revolution. We had five or six weeks in which to turn around, but we bungled ahead in the same blind way until the revolution gave us a jolt there was no mistaking.

There was just one thing to do once the Bolsheviki with their immediate peace programme captured the Petrograd Soviet in September. Call an immediate conference on the aims of the war without delay. It was not only not done, but the situation was much aggravated by the discussions in that wobbly institution, the Council of he Republic, on whether Skobelev, the representative of the Soviet, should be allowed to go to Paris at all. Tereschenko made it worse by making a stereotyped pro-ally speech, not that anybody objected to his pro-ally sentiments, but by his speech he showed he was still following the policy of Miliukoff, and intended to stick by all treaties as written. Then Bonar Law doused all hope of reconstructing treaties as demanded by the Soviet, and that touched off the whole thing.

Looking back on my cable files, I see that on Oct. 20, three weeks before the revolution I sent a cable to the Post-Dispatch indicating that there would be a revolution and an immediate offer of peace to Germany. A week later I sent the same information more definitely, stated in an interview with Trotzky; in fact he carried out later everything he told me in that interview.

Before that interview was put on the cable, I learned later from the censor, it was shown to Tereschenko who decided to let it go. I do not know why he passed a cable foretelling his own downfall; perhaps out of a sense of fairness; perhaps because he had helped off the Bolsheviki revolution so long he was tired of it and was willing to have a showdown. Undoubtedly, he thought the provisional government would win, though he had no reason for thinking so.

The whole story of Tereschenko's delusion—and the delusion of the allies—lies in comparison between the unsuccessful Bolshevik revolution of July and the later successful Bolshevik revolution. The July revolution, which had the same purpose and the same leaders as the later revolution failed because the Soviet was against it. In those days the Soviet was in the hands of the Minshiviki. The Bolsheviki bolted once from the all-Russian Soviet held shortly before in July, but they did not have the support of the masses at that time, and had to go back. The masses were still following the more moderate course of Tchaidse, Tseretelli, Sokoloff and company, and were giving them a substantial majority in the Soviet. So when the uprising of July commenced they squelched it.

Scandal of the Secret Treaties.

The important point is that it was the Soviet which put down the Bolshevik revolution of July. It passed resolutions supporting the provisional Government and it ordered troops to come here from the front.

But during the summer and early fall the demand for immediate peace, the publishing of treaties, and a radical Socialist platform became so strong that the Bolshevik party grew steadily in power until, at the end of September, it gained a majority in the Petrograd Soviet and proceeded at once to make sweeping changes. It brought Lenine out of hiding where he had been all summer and elected him president.

Anyone who knew anything at all about the Russian Revolution knew what that meant. The comparison was too striking to be overlooked. The Bolsheviki had the masses with them this time and they were going the limit.

So far as the United States is concerned, I find that many Americans in Petrograd lay the blame for our lack of understanding on the Root Mission. It was here at the time of the first all-Russian Soviet and was still in Russia at the time of the July revolution, so there was no excuse for it not understanding what was going on. I might say, however, it did not know, or would not know, what was going on. My personal conversations with the members of the mission at the time convinced me they had not grasped that the real government of Russia was the Soviet. They pooh-poohed the idea and evidently regarded me as a radical person who did not understand the finer points of politics. Charles Edward Russell, the only member of the political side of the mission who seemed to understand the mass-movement of the Russian population, I remember, was regarded in the mission as a well-meaning crank. Mr. Root himself, despite his long political career, misjudged the political forces completely, and was under the delusion that the moderate Socialist leaders and the cadets could hold the balance of power.

The willful blindness of the mission in the face of events which were happening all around them, was to me very exasperating, as it was certain to lead to a false understanding in America. I have in my desk a bitter criticism I wrote at the time, but did not send out of a mistaken sense of politeness.

From Americans who have come to Russia since I have learned that the effect on the Root mission on America was all that I feared it would be. It was soothing syrup.

Where the Root Mission Failed.

An excuse for this may be found in that they were perhaps betting on the Kerensky Government as the only chance to keep an army on the Russian front, but that should not have made them blind to facts. If they had sounded the political depths they would have known the Kerensky Government could stand only so long as it had the Soviet behind it, only so long as the Minsheviki were in command of the revolt. The moment the Minsheviki lost command of the Soviet, the moment Lenine was elected President of the Petrograd Soviet and Tschaidze, Tseretelli, Sokoloff, Dann, Linber, Gotz lost control of the Central Committee (the permanent executive committee) of the All-Russian Soviet, the Kerensky Government was doomed, and there was no time to waste finding out why.

At that particular time the whole fight was centered around the Paris conference and the question of the aims of the war. Russia was stubbornly repeating its allies must take a categorical attitude for "no annexations, no contributions, and the self-definition of peoples." In fact, they have hardly been able to think of anything else since, and their delegates trying to arrange peace with Germany are right now having a stiff fight trying to make Germany accept them.

But all this seems to have transpired without our understanding it at all. We let ourselves be befuddled by questions of leaders, the influence of German propaganda, the violence of revolution—when the only thing that counted was the demand of the Russian people as a whole, and that found what expression it could in the Soviet.

And the tragedy of the whole thing is that at heart the Russian people want just exactly what the American people want—a just, enduring peace. In everything they have said, in everything they have done Trotzky and President Wilson have shown they are struggling for the same kind of a peace. Trotzky wants to go on afterward, or before, for that matter, and upset capitalism, establishing Socialism. But as far as practical action is concerned that is not in question.

If the Germans get an advantage out of it we have only ourselves to blame. The Germans took the trouble to understand clearly and they did not confuse issues.

Which reminds me of a remark Serge Shidlovsky, president of the progressive bloc in the Duma, once said when a revolution in Russia was hardly thought of:

"The Germans," he said, "are the only people who have ever taken the trouble really to study and understand us Russians."

They will certainly profit by it if they take a principle which is ours, as well as Russia's, and turn it against us.

FAMOUS YACHT COMES TO U. S.

Seized From Head of Krupp Works and Sold for $50,000.

LONDON, Feb. 22 (By A. P.).—The famous steel racing yacht Germania, formerly owned by Lieut. Dr. Gustav von Bohlen und Halbach, head of the Krupp Works, but seized at Cowes at the beginning of the war and sold as a British prize, has now gone to the United States, it is announced. Incidentally, her sale yielded $50,000 for the British and French Red Cross.

The yacht was sold in prize court last May for $50,000 to Capt. Hans Hennevig, a Norwegian, who was required to deposit with the Government an additional $50,000 as a guarantee that the vessel would not be delivered to the enemy. Now that the yacht has gone to the United States, the guarantee has been released and Capt. Hennevig has requested the court to hand the sum on deposit to the Red Cross.

Out of It! Corns Hurt So! Lift off Sore, Touchy Corns

No pain! Apply few drops then lift corn or callus off with fingers—Magic!

For a few cents you can get a small bottle of the magic freezone discovered by a Cincinnati chemist.

Just ask at any drug store for a small bottle of freezone. Apply a few drops upon a tender, aching corn and instantly that old bothersome corn stops hurting, then shortly you can lift it out, root and all, with the fingers.

Just think! Not one bit of pain before applying freezone or afterwards. It doesn't even irritate the surrounding skin.

Hard corns, soft corns, or corns between the toes, also hardened calluses on bottom of feet shrivel up and fall off without hurting a particle. It is a scientific compound made from ether. Wonderful!

The Doctor's Advice

by Dr. Lewis Baker

The questions answered below are general in character, the symptoms or diseases are given and the answers will apply in any case of similar nature.

Those wishing further advice, free, may address Dr. Lewis Baker, College Bldg., College-Elwood streets, Dayton, Ohio, enclosing self-addressed stamped envelope for reply. Full name and address must be given, but only initials or fictitious names will be used in my answers. The prescriptions can be filled at any well-stocked drug store. Any druggist can order of wholesaler.

"Fern" writes: "I have suffered with a bad cough for some time and I am also weak and tired most of the time, which I think is due to the severe coughing. Can you give me a remedy?"

Answer: Yes, your weakness is due to the coughing, but you should be well relieved by using the following: Get a 2½-oz. package of essence mentho-laxene and make according to directions on the bottle, then take a teaspoonful every hour or two until the cough is cured. This makes a full pint of the very best and safest cough syrup. If your druggist does not have mentho-laxene, have him order it for you of the wholesale firm.

Mrs. M. asks: "My scalp itches terribly, is feverish and a great amount of oily dandruff is present. What is good for this?"

Answer: First shampoo the hair and then apply plain yellow minyol about once a week as per directions. This relieves the itching, overcomes the dandruff and makes the hair beautifully glossy and vigorous. Obtain in 4-oz. jars of druggists.

NOTE—For many years Dr. Baker has been giving free advice and prescriptions to millions of people through the press columns, and doubtless has helped in relieving illness and distress more than any single individual in the world's history. Thousands have written him expressions of gratitude and confidence similar to the following:

Dr. Lewis Baker, Dear Sir:—I feel it as a duty to write you. Four years ago my husband had a bad cough and found no relief from all cough medicines we could try. We finally tried the mentho-laxene prescription and made it up as cough medicine, and it quickly cured him. It also gives me great relief from asthma, from which I suffer in winter time, as you know here in Oregon we have it so rainy instead of snow. I send stamps and coupon for your great "Guide Book, Health and Beauty." Thanking you, I am,

Yours truly,
MRS. M. H. VAN WART,
Lents, Oregon.

Orrie writes: "I have been taking salts to purify my blood and cure my skin of itching and pimples, but don't get much benefit. Please prescribe for this."

Answer: I advise three-grain sulpherb tablets (not sulphur tablets), composed of sulphur, cream of tartar and vegetable extracts that remove constipation and purify the system. Take this treatment for several months for best results.

"Patient" writes: "I want your free advice. I seem to have gone all to pieces. I am irritated and annoyed by dizzy moments, fickle appetite, no strength and life has no pleasures for me any more."

Answer: There are thousands who live too fast and then find themselves in your plight. The nervous vigor has been deranged. A tonic invigorating medicine called three-grain cadomene tablets will afford aid to Nature by supplying more food-energy and give your system a chance to recuperate, when calm nerves should take the place of shattered nerves.

"Laborer" asks: "I am so affected with painful kidneys that I cannot work regularly. My back aches and often have chills and fever, making me real sick for a day."

Answer: A good tonic, soothing and neutralizing medicine for such complaints is balmwort tablets. Try them and continue a few weeks and I am sure you will write me of your recovery.

B. L. C. writes: "If not too much trouble, can you advise if Pretzinger's Catarrh Balm is effective in the treatment of catarrh of the head. I want to overcome this trouble, as it is going to cause deafness if I do not soon."

Answer: This old-established proprietary balm is one that is widely used and successfully, too, by thousands afflicted as you are.

Your Health Depends Upon Your Kidneys

Many organs take part in assimilation of food, and a number are active in eliminating those portions of the food which are not taken into the blood for the upbuilding of the body. Of the eliminative organs, the liver and the kidneys are of major importance, and are most likely to be overworked and become diseased. When such is the case, various troubles of a digestive and eliminative character occur, and such troubles are so frequent and so common that it is absolutely necessary to find some relief. Warner's Safe Kidney and Liver Remedy was compounded over 40 years ago to help equalize the work of both kidneys and liver. How successful it has been is evidenced by its widespread sale and its value is attested by an immense number of appreciative users who through these many years have put it to the severest tests with the most satisfactory results.

"About 7 years ago I was so weak and worn out that I could hardly work. After trying other things without relief, I tried Warner's Safe Kidney and Liver Remedy. In a short time the pain left me, and the rheumatism and dyspepsia vanished. We have used Warner's Safe Remedies ever since with great success in our family." O. F. Rose, Burtonville, Kentucky, U. S. A.

Sold by Wolff-Wilson Drug Co., and all druggists. Sample sent on receipt of ten cents. Warner's Safe Remedies Co., Dept. 245, Rochester, N. Y.

St. Louis Folks Who Are Subject to Colds

Will be interested in the remarkable southern external vapor treatment that relieves croup in fifteen minutes and colds over night. Applied over the throat and chest, the body heat releases the ingredients in the form of vapors that are inhaled with each breath all night long. This new treatment is VapoRub, and you rub it in at bedtime, leaving the clothing and bedclothes loose around the neck so the vapors may be freely inhaled. The best part about VapoRub is that it can be applied as often and freely as wished, and is better than "dosing" with internal medicines, as it does not derange the stomach and disturb digestion. Three sizes, 25c, 50c and $1.00—ADV.

WASHING WON'T RID HEAD OF DANDRUFF

The only sure way to get rid of dandruff is to dissolve it, then you destroy it entirely. To do this, get about four ounces of ordinary liquid arvon; apply it at night when retiring; use enough to moisten the scalp and rub it in gently with the finger tips.

Do this tonight, and by morning, most if not all, of your dandruff will be gone, and three or four more applications will completely dissolve and entirely destroy every single sign and trace of it, no matter how much dandruff you may have.

You will find, too, that all itching and digging of the scalp will stop at once, and your hair will be fluffy, lustrous, glossy, silky and soft, and look and feel a hundred times better.

You can get liquid arvon at any drug store. It is inexpensive and never fails to do the work.—ADV.

Glass of Salts Cleans Kidneys

If your Back hurts or Bladder bothers you, drink lots of water.

When your kidneys hurt and your back feels sore, don't get scared and proceed to load your stomach with a lot of drugs that excite the kidneys. Keep your kidneys clean like you keep your bowels clean, by flushing them with a mild, harmless salts which removes the body's waste and stimulates them to their normal activity. The function of the kidneys is to filter the blood. In 24 hours they strain from it 500 grains of acid and waste, so we can readily understand the vital importance of keeping the kidneys active.

Drink lots of water—you can't drink too much; also get from any pharmacist about four ounces of Jad Salts; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast each morning for a few days and your kidneys will act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to clean and stimulate clogged kidneys; also to neutralize the acids so they no longer are a source of irritation, thus ending bladder weakness.

Jad Salts is inexpensive; cannot injure; makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink which everyone should take now and then to keep their kidneys clean and active. Try this, also keep up the water drinking, and no doubt you will wonder what became of your kidney trouble and backache.—ADV.

GROUP EXHIBITION AT MUSEUM CLOSES TODAY

Number of Art Objects of More Than Usual Interest on Display.

The joint exhibition of paintings by Hayley Lever, Ernest Lawson, Leopold Seyffert and Karl Anderson, which has been on view at the Art Museum in Forest Park during February, will close today.

In this group St. Louisans have had an opportunity to study and compare the works of four American artists who paint in so-called "modern" styles. In the pictures shown, conventionality has been supplanted in varying degrees by an effort to render effects of nature just as they appeal to the artists.

Of the four artists represented, Lever and Lawson probably display the most unusual and direct styles of painting. The seemingly crude colors and careless workmanship of paintings like Lever's "The Orchard" and Lawson's "The Old House" may not prove attractive, but the strength of the work cannot be denied. Other canvases by the same artists, however, are much more pleasing by reason of their atmospheric charm or picturesque subjects, as, for instance, "The Hudson at Ironwood" and "Along the Harlem River," by Lawson, and "Gloucester," "St. Ives" and "Fishing Boats," by Lever.

Anderson Paints in High Key.

Karl Anderson paints usually in a high key and his pictures are frequently marked by effects of delicately vibrating color. He delights in the depiction of attractive women and children in brilliant surroundings, as is evinced by the canvases "Her Ladyship's Attendants," "My Lady Alice," "Ruth" and other compositions in the present exhibition. A characteristic example of his work entitled "The Sisters" was recently purchased by the museum.

Leopold Seyffert paints in a lower key and with a broad, full brush. In "Daniel Zuloaga," "Dutch Peasant Couple" and "Dutch Fisherman," he contributes characterful portrait studies.

Visitors at the museum today will see a number of other art objects of more than usual interest, which have been lent for temporary display. In gallery No. 1 has been installed an important primitive Italian painting by Bartolommeo di Giovanni, who flourished about 1490. It is a church painting of the "Ancona" type, and portrays the Madonna and Child with Saints and Donors. The picture is well preserved and has been valued by art critics at more than $50,000.

Sixteenth Century Tapestry.

A sixteenth century Renaissance tapestry, lent by a New York dealer, has been hung in galley No. 17. The tapestry is 24 by 13½ feet in size and is woven of silk, wool and gold. The subject is "The Burning of the Numidian Camp," one of the Scipio series. The piece was woven at Brussels between 1520 and 1560, and was brought to Spain by Philip II, who presented it to one of his nobles.

A group of Chinese robes, velvets and carpets have been hung in gallery No. 30, adjoining the painting exhibition. Next month the museum will display two new collections—an exhibition of paintings by Frederic C. Bartlett and a joint exhibition of paintings by Gardner Symons, Frederick C. Frieseke and James R. Hopkins.

A Chinese temple bell of bronze, made during the Chou dynasty, has recently been added to the museum's collection of Chinese bronzes. The Chou dynasty began in 1122 B. C. and ended in 255 B. C., hence the bell is at least 2100 years old. Its rich ornamentation is eloquent of the extreme antiquity of the development of Chinese art.

Another accession is a small bronze statue of the naturalist, John Burroughs, modeled by C. S. Pietro, which was presented to the museum last month by J. C. Strauss.

How U. S. Is Taking the Hysterics Out of Hog Island to Get Its Ships on Time

Private Promoters Got a Bit Dizzy Over the Big Job They Tackled and Lost Their Heads, So Government Has Stepped In to See That Vast Plan for Winning the War Does Not Fail.

By DUNCAN AIKMAN.

A Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 20.—The war is to be won in the shipyards of the Delaware River. Six miles south of the Philadelphia City Hall, from what was five months ago a swamp and a mudflat, will be launched the American "grand offensive."

The American "grand offensive" will be launched from Hog Island.

Senatorial investigations, Department of Justice investigations are under way at Hog Island. These are incidents. They are incidental to what has become one of the great war-winning determinations of the United States Government; the determination to make Hog Island the greatest shipyard in the world, the determination to rebuild at Hog Island a sixth of what the Germans destroy.

HOG ISLAND will build two kinds of ships. It will build 50 ships of 7500 tons burden. As these leave the ways their places will be taken by the keels of ships designed to carry 8000 tons. There will be 70 of the larger ones—120 in all of both small and large—the 935,000 tons which are to render fruitless a sixth of the Kaiser's ruin.

Within a year of its completion, if the rest of the United States will produce the materials, Hog Island will send down to the sea 935,000 tons of shipping to take the place of what the U-boats sink. If the Germans sink 6,000,000 tons a year, and the probabilities are that in the future they will sink considerably less, practically one-sixth of that loss can be recouped at Hog Island. The Government will not permit Hog Island to do less than it can.

Mistakes have been made there. Lavish expenditures have been made. There has been haste, and it has made waste. But Hog Island will be built and Hog Island will build the shops. On these points the Government is ruthless and is driving ruthlessly toward these ends.

Government Control Absolute.

There is talk of the Government taking over Hog Island. Already the Government has virtually taken it over. In the two weeks since Rear Admiral Francis T. Bowles, assistant general manager of the Emergency Fleet Corporation, installed himself in a Philadelphia office in direct charge of the work at Hog Island and two other great Government shipyards near here, the line of authority has been as straight as it was between the Admiral and his subordinates when the former was the chief executive of the Fore River shipyards at Quincy. He has had the ordering of what work should be dropped and what continued. He has had the right to drop whole departments from the payroll. He has done some ordering. He has dropped at least one department.

Work Will "Stay Put."

Hog Island is 30 per cent built. In that statement alone is summed up a tremendous achievement. More important still, that 30 per cent has been built to stay. Whatever it may have cost, however, the progress of the work may have suffered from weather conditions, from conditions of the labor supply, from inefficiencies of organization due to the magnitude of the task, the public may be confident that what has been done will not have to be undone. Hog Island is 30 per cent on the way to turning out ships.

What one finds accomplished at Hog Island is gigantic. The automobile road, and with the exception of a single track, the railroads, which carry you to the center of this great 900-acre tract of reclaimed march land, have been built since the day in September when surveyors of the contractor, the American International Corporation, first set foot on the island.

42 Miles of Railroad.

In five months the contractors have made those 900 acres of swamp and sand dune into solid land. They have built 42 miles of railroad to knit the farthest ends of it together, to establish its connections with the outside world.

Six miles of passenger track bring there the 15,000 workmen who live outside. Materials for the construction are rushed now upon arrival into a storage yard, fully completed for all of 8.2 miles. Tracks serving the shipways are being rushed now at full speed. The time is at hand when a part of this service will be vitally needed every day to carry materials to great hulls rising at the south end of the yard. Shop tracks are being built, tracks for a holding yard sufficient to meet the needs of the island when shipbuilding will be at its maximum. There are 20 miles of freight tracks, eight miles of temporary connections used mainly in the construction work itself.

Hog Island has the equipment to keep itself moving. Trucking is as important as railways. At a time when permanent road building was out of the question on account of weather conditions the trucking problem—a problem of making thoroughfares for thousands of trucks through a swamp—has been solved by the building of five miles of plank road.

The ground at Hog Island was frozen three and four feet deep this winter. Nevertheless 27 per cent of the grading it now done. One hundred and sixty-five thousand yards of dirt has been displaced. The rest will move faster.

Weather Handicaps.

Dredging has proceeded despite the enormous handicap of ice. In the north basin, where the great ships will go after launching next fall to receive their final equipment, nearly three-fourths of a total of impediment of 1,590,000 cubic yards of muck have been removed In the west basin, where 2,300,000 cubic yards must be removed and cribwork for piers constructed, dredging is under way.

Shops have sprung up. The great plate and angle shop, 626x223 feet, where giant steel slabs for the sides of ships will be bent to their final shape, is 85 per cent finished. An enormous template shop stands completed. Smith shops, machine shops, the second huge plate and angle shops, for the correction equipment, where the parts of the great ships will be made to "fit" exactly, are rising or are advancing through the foundation stages—not easy stages, when the weight of huge plants must be fitted to rest solidly on a muck island.

These are permanent buildings. For the temporary purposes of the plant builders themselves, machine shops, repairing shops, smithies, storehouses, have been built by scores, located wherever there was use for them.

Administration buildings, guard barracks, hospital, four fire stations, a railroad station, a Young Men's Christian Association for the workers, a heating plant, all are standing and in use. Dormitories and bunkhouses are built to house 5500 men. Houses for 1500 more are building

One Keel Laid, Others to Follow

But ship production is the end of everything. When it was first proposed that 50 ways be built along a mile of water front, shipbuilders of long experience were willing to stake their reputations that it would not be

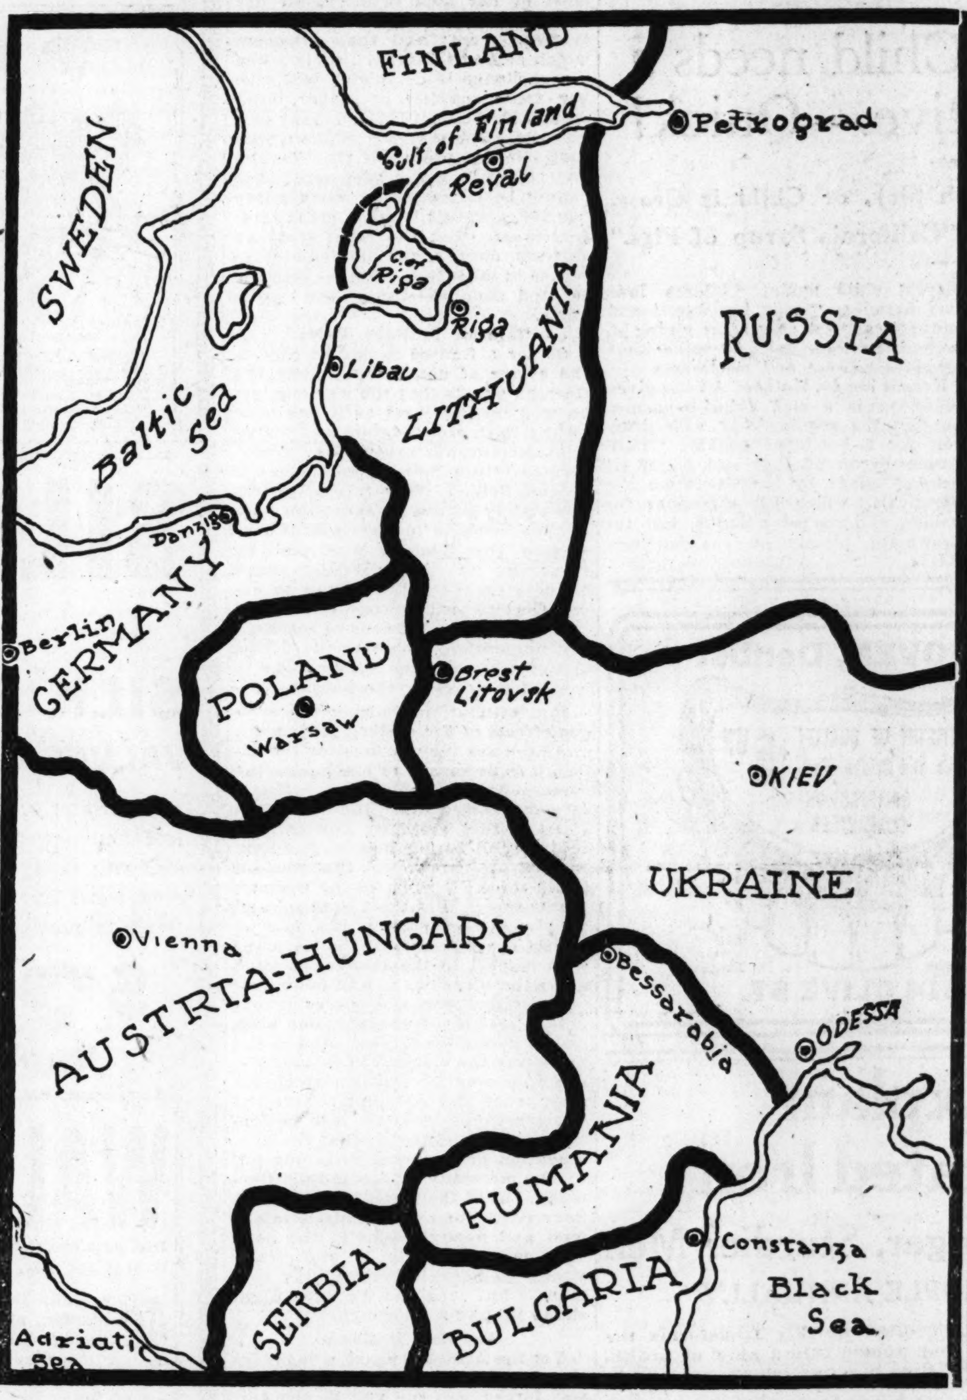
Treaty of Brest a Cornerstone of Germany's Mittel-Europa Scheme, Writes Simonds

Russian Bear's Claws Trimmed for 100 Years

Ukrainia is created on terms which make it a future ally; Rumania and Poland are reconstituted in such fashion as to be strangled at will, since both are deprived of real control of their outlets to the sea. Finally Lithuania is erected, a mockery of a state, solely for the purpose of giving Germany the mastery of all of Northen Russia's water exits. Thus Poland, Northern Russia and Rumania are put at once under the economic domination of the Germans, while Ukrainia is to be controlled by her fears of invasion and conquest by Northern Russia. This is the Brest-Litovsk settlement, by which Russia will lose upward of 400,000 square miles, nearly twice the area of France, and 50,000,000 of people—as many as lived in Austria-Hungary at the outbreak of the war.



The German-made map of the East, showing the buffer states Berlin plans to erect to protect her from Russia if the latter should ever grow great again.

Noted Critic and Observer Holds That Whatever the Outcome of the War May Be, Much of the Work at the Conference Will Stand, and That, Particularly, the Ukraine Should and Will Remain an Independent Commonwealth, Probably With Teutonic Sympathies.

By FRANK H. SIMONDS,

Author of "The Great War" and "Thou Shalt Not Pass."

THE principles recently laid down at Brest-Litovsk, the frontiers fixed and sketched, give to this congress an importance comparable in modern history with the congress of Vienna. Like the treaty of Luneville, which abolished the Holy Roman Empire, this treaty—if it may be described as a treaty—temporarily, at least, destroys the Russian empire, and may prove with respect to Eastern Europe as important as the treaty of Westphalia was for the West.

The results of this momentous congress must be examined in three different ways: as to its geographical, its political and its military circumstances. At least three new nations were sketched and in a sense recognized in the outlines of the principles laid down at Brest. What are these states, as the map will later show them? What political relations will they have to the European system? Finally, what will the probable effect of this settlement be upon the world war?

To begin at the beginning, the Brest-Litovsk agreement, so far as it affects Southern Russia, creates a great independent state, having an area of more than 250,000 square miles—that is, greater than that of Austria-Hungary—with a population but little short of the 30,000,000 of France. This territory is, roughly speaking, bounded by the Black Sea, the territory of the Don Cossacks, west of the river of that name, the great Pripel Marshes, the old Austro-Russian frontier and the new frontier between that Poland which is to be created and Ukraine.

Essentials of a Nation.

This state is mainly populated by people with a sense of race solidarity and a long-cherished ideal of autonomy, if not actual independence. It is the richest agricultural region of Russia, and is in the main a land of small holdings and peasant ownership—quit contrasted with the conditions of other regions of Russia. This new state has reasonably well-marked natural frontier; it has an outlet on the sea, and may be regarded as having all the essentials of a separate nation.

Less clear, yet not to be missed, is the preparation for the construction of still another state—that if Lithuania, to include the somewhat hazy estate of the old Jagellon Lithuania and the Baltic provinces which at one time or another were, in part at least, held by the Teutonic orders. This state is to include practically all the Russian Baltic seacoast, with the great ports of Rigå and Libau, and not impossibly Reval. It would have an area of about 60,000 square miles, half that of Italy, and a population of upward of 6,000,000; but this population would be mixed—mainly Lettish, but with strong Polish and Finnish infusions, and an appreciable element of Germans.

Unlike Ukrania, this Lithuanian state would lack real racial cohesion. It would be really a German-controlled facade, thrown across the Baltic seaboard of Northern Russia, giving the German masters actual mastery of the outlets of Russia on the Baltic. It would be under the domination of the numerically insignificant element of Germans—survivors of the old Teutonic orders; it would depend upon Germany for existence, and it would be the cause of another war if Russia ever became a powerful state, because such a state would of necessity have to gain an outlet on the sea.

Finally, the more or less definite indication of the Lithuanian and Ukranian frontiers reveals the Austro-German plan for Poland. This Poland is to be a relatively restricted state, smaller than Lithuania, and shut in between Germany, Lithuania, Ukrania and Austria—unless some portion of Galicia were added to it its area would be well under 50,000 square miles—less than that of New York State—holding a population a little above 10,000,000. It would be cut off from the sea by German Prussia and shut out of the Russian markets, which it supplied with manufactured goods by the new frontiers. Such a Poland would be little more than a sham and mockery. It would have a better chance of survival were Polish Galicia joined to it, but it would still be a helpless enclave in the German and Austrian controlled territories which would surround it.

Now, as to the political alignment of these three states: Ukraina would have all the essentials of an independent state; it would naturally fall into an alliance with the Central Powers, whose aid it would seek against invasion from the north by the Bolshevik armies, coming not so much to conquer and to restore Ukrania to Russia as to establish the doctrine of the Russian revolution and introduce the class war, to which the Russian Reds will now dedicate themselves. For the Central Powers, in peace or in war, Ukrania would be a natural granary, while it would not have to fear ultimate German absorption, since it lies outside the pathway of German ambition and is in the main removed from German frontiers.

The Mitteleuropa Scheme.

By the Brest-Litovsk document, then, which so far as the Ukranians are concerned is signed and agreed to on both sides, the Central Powers have created a new state of considerable size, likely to endure and to become a willing partner in any Mitteleuropa scheme, which is economic rather than political. In dividing Russia in half the Germans have created a natural ally, and furnished this ally with real reasons for alliance in the future. Ukrania may then easily replace Italy in the Triple Alliance, if this alignment persists after the war.

Lithuania, on the other hand, is a fit state. It is highly artificial; it has no real excuse for existence, and it can be of no permanent importance save only for that time in which German armies are able to garrison its cities and carry out the will of the German minority. It deprives the Poles of one of their ancient outlets upon the sea, and it likewise throws the frontiers of Northern Russia back from the free waters. It is unmistakably an expression of the old-fashioned idea of following up a victorious war by the seizure of provinces of the enemy, without regard to the rights or the desire of the inhabitants.

As to Poland, the Germans have designed to leave only a mutilated fragment, deprived of all outlet upon the sea; deprived of much territory whose population is predominantly Polish—both Russian and German territory. Even if Galician Poland is added to Russian, there will be made only a beginning of the real Poland; it will be at best a faint promise. Yet the liberation of sixteen or seventeen million Poles will be step toward the final restoration of that tragic people to freedom. As was said of Napoleon's treatment of the Poles, this step either goes too far or not far enough; it gives the basis for hopes it does not realize, and by not realizing them it opens the way to new conflicts. But for the moment this Polish state is to exist on the map, bound by German bonds, even though it be nominally an Austrian dependency.

No one should be deceived by any German propaganda into believing that a real Poland has been created. The new scheme does not in any sense provide the Polish people with the basis of free existence. It is mrely a plan for postponing a final settlement of the Polish question and freeing Germany of all charge of annexations on this side of Europe. But actually Lithuania and Poland will be two more subject states, each containing the seeds of a new European conflict.

How Rumania Is Strangled.

In addition, there is discoverable in the Brest-Litovsk plan the basis for a settlement with Rumania. This unhappy state is to receive the Russian province of Bessarabia, and in return is to be compelled to give up the Dobrudja, which contains its only seaport, Constanzo. By this exchange Bulgaria, the advance agent of the Central Powers, will be placed on guard at the mouth of the Danube, and the whole of the south bank of this stream, from the Iron Gates to the Black Sea, will be in the hands of Czar Ferdinand. American Flyer Tells How He Shot Down Two of Three Enemy Planes

Joseph Stehlin Says "Grouch" at Getting Up at 4:30 A. M. Caused Him to Attack Germans and Win War Cross.

This is the fifth and concluding article of a series by Joseph Stehlin of Brooklyn, N. Y., Lieutenant in the French flying corps, describing his experiences during three years of air-fighting. Only 19 years old when he joined the Lafayette Escadrille, he was the youngest pilot in the French army when he began fighting, though even younger men are in the service now. He has resigned his French commission and has just returned to Brooklyn to seek a commission in the American aero corps.

By JOSEPH STEHLIN.

I GUESS it was the grouch I had at being on the early morning patrol that won me the War Cross. Had I been flying on patrol three hours later I probably would not have thought of breaking away from my formation and taking on three German two-seaters alone. Airmen, like other men, are apt to be cross at 5 in the morning. It was tough on the Germans I brought down, but lucky for me.

JOSEPH C. STEHLIN.

We got the order of service at dinner the evening before. We had finished eating and were chatting, wondering whether tomorrow would bring more patrol, or diverting special duty in the way of protecting observation machines. One of the pilots stepped out of the room, and in a moment returned with the typewritten sheet upon which we were posted for tomorrow. Talking stopped while 30 ears pricked up expectantly.

The pilot leveled a forefinger at me.

"Stehlin — five o'clock patrol," he read and laughed. He knew, as did most of the others, that I liked an extra 40 winks in the morning. When the laughter at my expense had subsided, he read the rest of the order. Three others had the same assignment. It meant early to bed and early to rise without making any of us especially healthy (certainly not in the French service), wealthy or wise.

We early men were all more or less peeved at our luck. But by 8 o'clock we were in bed and had forgotten it.

Cold, Cheerless Drizzle.

A cold, cheerless drizzle made 4:30 in the morning a time to ruin the temper of a saint—and I was none. The orderly had to shake me three times to get me up. I lay three, five, ten minutes more, and then rolled out to gulp down the cup of fast cooling black coffee he had brought, and scrambled into my clothes. I started for the hangars on a dead run.

We made our getaway in semi-darkness, spiraled to 2000 meters, and hit out for the lines in patrol formation. By the time we reached the lines we had climbed to nearly 5000 meters and were headed straight into the rising sun which, to its everlasting discredit, always insisted on rising in Germany.

Once in range of the German "Archies" we began snaking, weaving a pattern across each other's trails, which, if marked with ink or thread, would be like the four-strand near-military braid the women are wearing on their war-fashion tailored coats. My machine was following the other three.

Sets Out After Germans.

Suddenly, in the edge of the yellow glare of the sun, I saw three Germans flying about a kilometer inside their own lines. It wasn't customary to break out of the patrol formation, but it wasn't customary for me to get up at 4:30 in the morning either. I had gotten up "on the wrong side of the bed," I guess.

I pulled out of the course the others were flying without attempting to attract their attention, and started to cut across the trails of the three German machines. I wanted to get between them and the sun. By their elongated tail fins I recognized them as Rumplers—two-seated fighting planes, in which the machine gun is mounted on a rail running around the rear cockpit. The pilot has nothing to do but run his engine, and the gunner has nothing to do shoot. The exhaust pipes carried up in front of the pilot and over the upper plane to get the gas out of the pilot's face makes a forward machine gun, such as I had fixed on the hood of my Nieuport chasse plane, impossible.

I got well behind and above them without being seen. Then I piqued downward on the last of the three, and as soon as I had him ringed in the big sights of my mitrailleuse I opened fire, spraying bullets across the plane and back, the way a whitewing sprays the street, making sure to get it all wet.

Nothing much happened that you could see. The Rumpler just pitched forward in a nose dive and went down like a stone the whole 4500 meters to the ground. I had no time to watch him all the way, however. Out of the corners of my eyes I had seen things doing.

Gray Trail of Bulltse.

I had come down so low that the second Rumpler was above me. He started to attack me as I had his partner from above.

"Tack-tack-tack-tack" I heard his gun sputter. I saw thin gray trails go streaking past me. That gray smoke meant incendiary bullets. At night they would have glowed. They were compounded of phosphorus and were meant to explode my petrol and burn me up.

My little Nieuport was nimble. I was able to execute a reinversement—which simply means that I turned around—so quickly that when I banked around again I was behind him.

I got in only a few shots that time, for he did the same thing and got behind me. We were circling like two fishes chasing each other around an aquarium.

The third Rumpler must have been piloted by a green man, for it took very little part in the fight. It hung around on the outside, manouvering slowly, and getting a few shots in at me when it could. Several times I heard its machine gun rattle and once

Best Way to Wash the Hair

We find you can bring out the beauty of your hair to its very best advantage by washing it with Canthrox. It makes a very simple, inexpensive shampoo, which cleanses the hair and scalp thoroughly of all the dandruff, dirt and excess oil, leaving a wonderfully clean, wholesome feeling. After its use you will find that the hair dries quickly and evenly, is never streaked in appearance and is always bright, soft and fluffy, so fluffy, in fact, that it looks more abundant than it is, and so soft that arranging it becomes a pleasure. Just use a teaspoonful of Canthrox, which you can get from any good druggists, dissolve it in a cup of hot water; this makes a full cup of shampoo liquid, enough so it is easy to apply it to all the hair, instead of just the top of the head.—ADVERTISEMENT.

SIMONDS EXPLAINS GERMAN-MADE STATES IN WEST RUSSIA

it is well to remember that for the Mitteleuropa conception the Danube, with its canals connecting it with the Rhine, the Elbe and the Oder, is the very lifeline of communications.

Such, in brief, is the Brest-Litovsk document. Ukrainia is created on terms which make it a future ally; Rumania and Poland are reconstituted in such fashion as to be strangled at will since both are deprived of real control of their outlets to the sea. Finally, Lithuania is erected, a mockery of a state, solely for the purpose of giving Germany the mastery of all of Northern Russia's water exits. Thus Poland, Northern Russia and Rumania are put at once under the economic domination of the Germans, while Ukrainia is to be controlled by her fears of invasion and conquest by Northern Russia. This is the Brest-Litovsk settlement, by which Russia will lose upward of 400,000 square miles, nearly twice the area of France, and 50,000,000 of people—as many as lived in Austria-Hungary at the outbreak of the world war.

Effect on War.

As to the effect of this agreement upon the world war, certain things are at least clear. As soon as communications can be restored—surely before next winter—the food problem of the Central Powers will be solved. Ukrainia and Rumania will be the granaries of the Central Alliance, and the danger of starvation, the perils of long-continued privation, will be abolished. Germany and Austria will not have the old specter of actual want at their doors when the winter of 1918-19 comes, even if the war is still going on.

In the second place, Germany and Austria will be freed from making any military effort in the East. They will have to keep many troops along their new frontiers and in the states they have created. Particularly in Poland and Lithuania will they need large garrisons, both to keep out the Bolshevik invader and to repress the rising of those who will seek to obtain for these lands a real, as contrasted with a paper, freedom.

But Germany will gain some divisions of troops. All her heavy and most of her field artillery, all her munitions, can be diverted to the Western front; and the prisoners which come back from Russia when the exchange is completed will give her fresh supplies of labor, even though they do not furnish many new recruits. The majority of the troops available for use upon the Western front have long ago been sent; they cannot be estimated at much above 300,000, and this is not a great reinforcement. But the relief from an Eastern danger, the immediate increase in labor, the eventual increase in food supplies—these are great gains.

Gain of Military Party.

So for a limited period of time is the access of confidence among the German people that the war may yet be won on the West as it has been on the East, and Belgium and industrial Northern France be transformed into a new Lithuania and a second Poland. The military party has plainly gained a temporary support by bringing to a successful conclusion the Eastern war and by marking its victories by such changes on the political map as every German will recognize amount to tremendous accessions of territory and population, whatever the fiction of self-determination which seeks to conceal the fact by the phrase.

But without minimizing the serious effects of the eastern settlement, and they are very serious for the allies, it is necessary to emphasize the corresponding weaknesses. Brest-Litovsk showed that the Germans were in fact seeking annexations. Trotzky and Lenine held on just long enough to expose to the western world the hollowness of the German pretensions. Britain, France and Italy will recognize in the fate of Russia the purposes of the Germans with respect to themselves. It must nerve these nations to still more desperate effort when they perceive that defeat means dismemberment such as has overtaken Russia. And in the same way the element in Germany—and it is ever increasing—which desires peace and does not believe the western victory possible, will be fortified by the revelation that the prolongation of the struggle is due not to the necessity of defending Germany, but to the appetite of the military party for new conquests in the west and new victories in the field. This military party is sufficiently strong to have its way at the moment, but another Verdun might shake its power thoroughly.

Austria's Position.

Yet the Austrian phase is far more important at the moment. Austria was forced into the war by the fear of ultimate Russian domination not alone of the Balkans, but of the Slav population of Austria. Her defeats in the opening years of the war compelled her to surrender first her military and then her political independence. Only with German help could she repel the Russian, the Rumanian and the Italian. While she needed this help she had to pay for it in obedience to Berlin.

Today the several perils have vanished. Russia is eliminated, not for a moment, but probably for many years—forever if the Ukrainian state endures and develops as it may develop. Rumania has become a helpless fragment. Whatever happens now, the King of Rumania, deprived of Russian aid, removed from all communication with the allies, must bend his knee to the Hapsburgs. Hemmed in between Ukrainia, Bulgaria and Hungary, Rumania has no chance to resist now; nor is it easy to see how she can again escape from the domination of the Hapsburgs, whatever semblance of political freedom she may retain.

As for Serbia, it has become a name, a thing that was. It cannot be restored to any contemporary strength even if the map of 1914 be reconstituted, and without Russian aid Serbia was never a real danger. Indeed, until the change of dynasties after the shocking assassination of the last of the Obrenoutches, a few years ago, Serbia was a vassal of the Hapsburgs, and it would seem it might become such again. In any event, Austria has nothing more to fear from Serbian agitations directed at her southern Slavs. This issue has been settled, for the moment at least, by the Russian collapse and the conquest of Serbia.

Change in Italy.

Finally Italy is no longer an aggressor marching upon Trieste. It is Venice, not Trieste, which is in danger and, now that the perils on all other fronts have been abolished, Austria may well deem herself able to deal with Italy. Even the French and British armies now on the Piave line may be recalled if the German attack in the west makes material progress. In any event, Italian ap-

Mother, Your Child needs a Harmless Laxative.—Quick!

If Tongue is Coated, Stomach Sick, or Child is Cross, Feverish, Constipated, give "California Syrup of Figs."

Don't scold your fretful, peevish child. See if the tongue is coated; this is a sure sign that the little stomach, liver and bowels are clogged with bile and imperfectly digested food.

When listless, pale, feverish, with tainted breath, a cold, or a sore throat; if the child does not eat, sleep or act naturally, or has stomach-ache, indigestion or diarrhea, give a teaspoonful of "California Syrup of Figs," and in a few hours all the waste matter, bile and fermenting food will pass out of the bowels, and you have a healthy, playful child again. Children love this harmless "fruit laxative," and mothers can rest easy after giving it, because it never fails to make their "insides" sweet and wholesome.

Keep it handy, Mother! A little given today saves a sick child tomorrow, but get the genuine. Ask your druggist for a bottle of genuine "California Syrup of Figs and Elixir of Senna," made by the California Fig Syrup Co., which has directions for babies, children of all ages, and for grown-ups plainly on the bottle.—ADV.

These City Physicians Explain Why They Prescribe Nuxated Iron

To Make Healthier Women and Stronger, Sturdier Men

NOW BEING USED BY OVER THREE MILLION PEOPLE ANNUALLY

By enriching the blood and creating thousands of new red blood cells, it often quickly transforms the flabby flesh, toneless tissues, and pallid cheeks of weak, anaemic men and women into a glow of health. Increases the strength of delicate, nervous, run-down folks in ten days' time in many instances.

IT is conservatively estimated that over three million people annually in this country alone are taking Nuxated Iron. Such astonishing results have been reported from its use both by doctors and laymen that a number of physicians in various parts of the country have been asked to explain why they prescribe it so extensively, and why it apparently produces so much better results than were obtained from the old forms of inorganic iron.

Extracts from some of the letters received are given below:

Dr. Ferdinand King, a New York Physician and Medical Author, says: "There can be no strong iron men without iron. Pallor means anaemia.

Dr. Ferdinand King, New York Physician and Medical Author.

"Anaemia means iron deficiency. The skin of anaemic men and women is pale; the flesh flabby. The muscles lack tone, the brain fags and the memory fails and they become weak, nervous, irritable, despondent and melancholy. When the iron goes from the blood of women the roses go from their cheeks.

"In the most common foods of America, the starches, sugars, table syrups, candies, polished rice, white bread, soda crackers, biscuits, macaroni, spaghetti, tapioca, sago, farina, degerminated cornmeal, no longer is iron to be found. Refining processes have removed the iron of Mother Earth from these impoverished foods, and silly methods of home cookery, by throwing down the waste-pipe the water in which our vegetables are cooked, is responsible for another grave iron loss.

"Therefore you should supply the iron deficiency in your food by using some form of organic iron, just as you would use salt when your food has not enough salt."

Dr. A. J. Newman, late Police Surgeon of the City of Chicago and former House Surgeon, Jefferson Park Hospital, Chicago, in commenting on Nuxated Iron, says: "It has been my particular duty during the past six years to assist in keeping Chicago's 5000 bluecoats in good health and perfect fighting trim so that they would be physically equipped to withstand all manner of storms and the ravages of nature's elements.

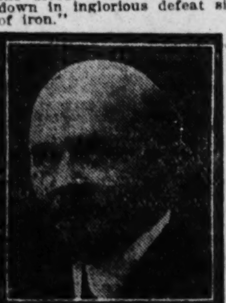
Dr. A. J. Newman, late Police Surgeon of the City of Chicago and former House Surgeon, Jefferson Park Hospital, Chicago.

"Recently I was prompted, through an endorsement of Nuxated Iron by Dr. Schuyler C. Jaques, Visiting Surgeon of St. Elizabeth's Hospital, New York, to give it a trial. This remedy has proven through my own tests of it to excel any preparation I have ever used for creating red blood, building up the nerves, strengthening the muscles and correcting digestive disorders."

Dr. E. Sauer, a Boston physician, who has studied both in this country and in great European Medical Institutions, says: "As I have said a hundred times over organic iron is the greatest of all strength builders. If people would only take Nuxated Iron when they feel weak or rundown, instead of dosing themselves with habit-forming drugs, stimulants and alcoholic beverages, I am convinced that there are thousands who might readily build up their red blood corpuscles, increase their physical energy and get themselves into a condition to ward off the millions of disease germs that are almost continually around us. It is surprising how many people suffer from iron deficiency and do not know it.

Dr. E. Sauer, a Boston Physician who has studied in Great European Medical Institutions.

"If you are not strong or well you owe it to yourself to make the following test: See how long you can work or how far you can walk without becoming tired. Next take two five-grain tablets of ordinary nuxated iron three times per day after meals for two weeks. Then test your strength again and see how much you have gained. I have seen dozens of nervous, run-down people who were ailing all the while increase their strength and endurance in from 10 to 14 days' time while taking iron in the proper form. And this, after they had in some cases been going on for months without getting benefit from anything. Many an athlete and prizefighter has won the day simply because he knew the secret of great strength and endurance which comes from having plenty of iron in the blood, while many another has gone down in inglorious defeat simply for lack of iron."



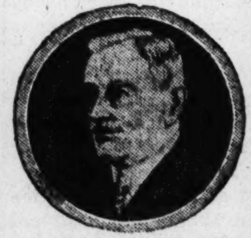
Dr. Schuyler C. Jaques, Visiting Surgeon, St. Elizabeth's Hospital, New York.

Dr. Schuyler C. Jaques, Visiting Surgeon of St. Elizabeth's Hospital of New York City, said: "I have never before given out any medical information or advice for publication, as I ordinarily do not believe in it. But in the case of Nuxated Iron I feel I would be remiss in my duty not to mention it. I have taken it myself and given it to my patients with most surprising and satisfactory results. And those who wish quickly to increase their strength, power and endurance will find it a most remarkable and wonderfully effective remedy."

Dr. T. Alphonsus Wallace, a physician of many years' experience in this country and who has been given many honorary titles in England, says: "I do not make a practice of recommending advertised medicinal products, but I have found Nuxated Iron so potent in nervous, run-down conditions, that I believe all should know of it. The men and women of today need more iron in their blood than was the case 20 or 30 years ago. This because of the demineralized diet which now is served daily in thousands of homes and also because of the demand for greater resistance necessary to offset the greater number of health hazards, to be met at every turn."

Dr. James Francis Sullivan, formerly physician of Bellevue Hospital (Outdoor Dept.), N. Y., and the Westchester County Hospital, said: "I have strongly emphasized the great necessity of physicians making blood examinations of their weak, anemic, run-down patients. Thousands of persons go on year after year suffering from physical weakness and a highly nervous condition due to lack of sufficient iron in their red blood corpuscles, without ever realizing the real and true cause of their trouble. Without iron in your blood your food merely passes through the body, somewhat like corn through an old mill with rollers so wide apart that the mill can't grind.

"But in my opinion you can't make strong, healthy, successful, sturdy iron men by feeding them on metallic iron. The old forms of metallic iron must go through a semi-digestive process to transform them into organic iron—Nuxated Iron—before they are so ready to be taken up and assimilated by the human system.



Dr. James Francis Sullivan, Formerly Physician of Bellevue Hospital (Outdoor Dept.), New York, and the Westchester County Hospital.

"Notwithstanding all that has been said and written on this subject by well-known physicians, thousands of people still insist in dosing themselves with metallic iron simply, I suppose, because it costs a few cents less. I strongly advise readers in all cases to get a physician's prescription for organic iron—Nuxated Iron—or if you don't want to go to this trouble, then purchase only Nuxated Iron in its original packages and see that this particular name (Nuxated Iron) appears on the package. If you have taken preparations such as Nux and Iron and other similar Iron products and failed to get results, remember that such products are an entirely different thing from Nuxated Iron.

NOTE—Nuxated Iron, which is prescribed and recommended above by physicians, is not a secret remedy, but one which is well known to druggists everywhere. Unlike the older inorganic iron products, it is easily assimilated, does not injure the teeth, make them black, nor upset the stomach. The manufacturers guarantee successful and entirely satisfactory results to every purchaser, or they will refund your money. It is dispensed by Judge & Dolph Drug Co., Wolff-Wilson Drug Co., Keiffer Drug Co., Johnson Bros. Drug Co., Pauley's Drug Stores Co., Enderle Drug Co. and all good druggists.—ADVERTISEMENT.

proach to Trieste is not to be feared at present.

Accordingly Austria, having achieved all that she hoped to achieve by this war, both in abolishing immediate and eventual perils, can gain nothing by a prolongation of the struggle. She is ready for peace and has no desire to annex territories. She has agreed with the Ukrainians to preserve the old Russo-Austrian line in Galicia, the Polish settlement will create a Poland, technically at least outside Austrian frontiers, while with respect to Serbia and Italy, Austria has no appetite for annexations. Therefore the Austrians are not likely long to bear the burdens of prolonged conflict, merely to enable the Germans to hold Brussels or Lille, to annex the Belgian coal fields, or the French iron districts. Least of all are they likely in the face of domestic protest and incipient disorder, to dispatch Austrian troops to the western front and pay a blood tax for German territorial ambitions. On the contrary, Austria seems likely more and more to follow an independent policy and to escape from complete German domination.

Much Will Endure.

It would be foolish to blink the fact that much that has been agreed to at Brest-Litovsk will endure. Ukrainia cannot be abolished by any later allied victory, nor can it be easily torn from its natural adhesion to the Central Powers. Poland may, as a result of later allied victories, gain a greater measure of independence, and an extension of territory, but it is not easy to believe that allied victories will be of such dimensions as to compel Germany to cede Posen and the Danzig strip of West Prussia to this new state, and without both Poland will hardly achieve its natural rights.

On the other hand, it may be that the Lithuanian monstrosity may fall, that the German people will not continue to fight on when they perceive peace impossible as long as they hold Riga and Libau. Yet there is, at the least, a fair possibility that this arrangement may also endure, since the lands affected are beyond the reach of allied fleets or armies and Russian disorders are such that Russia can neither help nor become a welcome ally for the people of these provinces who must be at last as fearful of the Trotzky-Lenine war upon capital, the Bolshevik class war, as of the German domination, which, if it brings abuses of a certain kind, will bring order and material prosperity.

In sum, therefore, I believe we have seen at Brest-Litovsk one of the great and historic deliminations of European history, some portion, some considerable portion of which is destined to endure and all of which may constitute as important a fact in Slavdom as did the treaty of Luneville in the Germanic world. It may be the last will and testament of the empire of Peter the Great, which Trotzky and Lenine accepted, but did not sign at Brest-Litovsk.

The western world has rightly discounted the military bearing of this arrangement for a long time. It will not be great, since the actual collapse of Russia as a military factor occurred long ago. Far more important is the matter of food. At no distant date Germany and Austria will escape from the shadow of famine. This is the worst phase of all for the allies.

AMERICAN FLYER TELLS OF SHOOTING DOWN TWO ENEMY

or twice saw little splinters tear themselves loose from my fuselage.

By partly looping the loop and twisting right side up at the upper part of the circle I came above my principal opponent again and got a fine bead on him.

"Spat, spat, spat," went my gun.

German Plane Blown Up.

The German observer stood up in his place, leaned over the side and slipped out of his safety trap downward, turning over and over as he fell. I watched him go. Then there was a flash and his whole machine seemed to burst into flames and fall to pieces at the same time. It was as if the shell had blown it apart. It was the fuel tank exploding. One of my incendiary bullets had hit its mark. I did not see what became of the pilot.

I looked for the third Rumpler, and saw him getting away as fast as he could. The moment I was in the sky alone the "Archies" began shelling me as hard as they could to get revenge for their lost airmen.

Now that the fight was over I found that I was covered with cold sweat. I was frightened, too, though I had not known it while the fight was on. And I was tired, I wanted to get home.

Had Been Reported Missing.

It was only a short distance back to our lines. The whole thing had been in sight of the men in our trenches. I flew home and planed down to a landing just a little after the rest of the patrol got in. I found that they had reported me missing, thinking I had been brought down. They did not know of the fight. Had it not been seen by the men in the trenches, and had there not been a lot of bullet holes in the wings and fuselage of my machine, there would have been no way of proving that I had had a fight.

An officer in the trenches reported the whole combat to my commander and he recommended me at once for the Cross.

The Cross? Oh, that came about two weeks later. Our escadrille had been shifted to the Verdun sector then. There was a square of soldiers, an officer who called us out one by one and pinned the crosses on our coats with a few words of thanks. Thank heaven, they don't kiss as much as they used to.

And there was a band.

HAIR OFTEN RUINED BY WASHING WITH SOAP

Soap should be used very carefully, if you want to keep your hair looking its best. Most soaps and prepared shampoos contain too much alkali. This dries the scalp, makes the hair brittle, and ruins it.

The best thing for steady use is just ordinary mulsified cocoanut oil (which is pure and greaseless), and is better than the most expensive soap or anything else you can use.

One or two teaspoonfuls will cleanse the hair and scalp thoroughly. Simply moisten the hair with water and rub it in. It makes an abundance of rich, creamy lather which rinses out easily, removing every particle of dust, dirt, dandruff and excessive oil. The hair dries quickly and evenly, and it leaves the scalp soft, and the hair fine and silky, bright, lustrous, fluffy and easy to manage.

You can get mulsified cocoanut oil at any pharmacy, it's very cheap, and a few ounces will supply every member of the family for months.—ADV.

HOW THE U. S. IS TAKING HYSTERICS OUT OF HOG ISLAND

done. Forty-one of those ways are under construction. Twenty-one are more than half completed. On one a keel is laid. Two other keels can be laid almost immediately.

There are six ways between 70 and 80 per cent completed. There are 12 ways between 50 and 70 per cent completed. The ways are ahead of general 30 per cent average for the plant. A total of 28 out of 50 are more than 30 per cent finished. Since Rear Admiral Bowles took hold the finishing of the tracks which will serve the ways where the first ships will be built has been made a prime consideration.

The pile-driving figures in shipway construction are enormous. More than two weeks ago a total of more than 33,000 piles had been driven. The pile drivers also are ahead of the general average. More than 40 per cent of their work is done.

Against the intolerable ice handicap the work on the outfitting piers has suffered. But even there pile driving is going ahead now. What is more, the pier facilities will be even better than the original specifications called for. One of the first decisions of Admiral Bowles after he took charge on the ground was to the effect that the outfitting pier appropriations were not sufficient. He has increased them while he was cutting into other appropriations that seemed too great.

Industries Mobilized for Production.

Ship production reaches far from Hog Island. Hog Island is merely an assembling plant. Ship production reaches into the drafting rooms. It reaches into the mines of Lake Superior. It reaches into the steel factories. It reaches into the coal regions. It touches vitally, and is virtually affected by hundreds of industries. Ninety-five per cent of the building of Hog Island ships will be done outside. Hog Island is an assembly plant—perhaps the biggest in the world. If only 30 per cent finished, Hog Island, nevertheless, has put motion into the 95 per cent "outside."

Hog Island will build two kinds of ships. It will build 50 ships of 7500-tons burden. As these leave the ways their places will be taken by the keels of ships designed to carry 8000 tons. There will be 70 of the larger ones—120 in all of both small and large—the 935,000 tons which are to render fruitless a sixth of the Kaiser's ruin. On both of these types the drafting rooms are finished.

But these ships have progressed far beyond the "paper" stage. For the 120 ships 95 per cent of the material had been ordered. Manufacturers of all but one-twentieth of the material to be used at Hog Island know now what they must produce and when. They are producing or they are bending all their efforts to begin production at the earliest possible moment. They know what to do next, and the "go head" signal has been flashed.

Hull steel, hull fittings, machinery—under none of these three great classifications into which the material for the fabricated ship program is divided, does anything remain to be requisitioned, but the most incident, the least essential. Throughout the country inspectors are keeping tab of what the plants are doing to fill these orders. There are complaints, of course. A new work cannot be "letter perfect." But, on the whole, the Government is satisfied.

Thirteen Ships Next November.

Two keels are called for by that "not impossible" schedule, to be laid down this month. The first was, in fact, laid before its time was ripe. Four are called for in March. April and May should see five each laid down. June should see eight. Thereafter the number of the smaller ships begins to taper down because the 8000-ton ships will begin to take up space on the ways. Two of the great keels are due to be laid in April. By November and December they should be laying one every three days.

There should be three 7500-ton ships finished in Sepember. There should be 10 in October and 13 in November. The last should set out on her maiden voyage in March, 1919. The last of the 70 big ships should be finished by July, 1919. These achievements are, by expert authority, "not impossible." They are also without doubt terribly difficult.

But approximations to this schedule will not be so difficult. The Government realizes that in this game even schedules are incidentals. It will not lose its head if a ship is three weeks late. It will go on building ships—making Hog Island build ships.

Seventy per cent of Hog Island is yet to be built. Some things have happened at Hog Island recently since Admiral Bowles arrived.

Twelve miles of railroad planned for the yards have been eliminated from the specifications. The road-building energy, instead, has been concentrated on the tracks which serve the ways where ships are to be laid down first.

Energy has been concentrated on the ways which will be used soon. "Get the ways built on time," have been Admiral Bowles' orders. The Government does not care about spending money to finish ways before steel can come in. The Government prefers to use that money where it will count—or else save it.

Night work, except what is essential, has been stopped. Unusual overtime schedules for workmen have been stopped. The Government does not care to pay double time for inefficient labor by 16-hour-a-day men.

Sunday work has been stopped. "If they don't get Sunday off they'll take some other day," said Admiral Bowles.

Men have been laid off by the thousand. "When we need to go ahead with that work we'll use men who have finished the more essential jobs first," said the Admiral. Still more thousands have been shifted to the jobs which the Government regards as essential. "We want everybody to work where he can do the most good," said the Admiral.

The executive force of the American international corporation which is doing the building is moving down to the island as fast as it can be moved. The Admiral wants the bosses to be where thay can see the job.

Orders have been canceled when they could not be justified as promoting the sole end of this proposition—turning out the ships. Officials, high and low, have had to prove their usefulness or go. Appropriations, like labor, have been switched where they could count most for shipbuilding.

The Government, contrary to a good many precedents, has saved itself millions in these last two weeks on its own construction proposition. And it has saved them not by slowing up the ultimate ship program, but by speeding it up.

The contractors made their mistake at Hog Island in assuming that it was like a cantonment job; that 50 shipways had to be finished 50 at a time. They tried to do it all at once. They ordered material, they mobilized labor on the assumption that it all had to be done all at once. Right and left the "hurry up" fever struck the contractors low. Their organization ceased to be a construction organization. It became an organized competition in headlong speed. Hog Island got "hysterics."

The Government is here taking the "hysterics" out of it. The Government does not care about the mistakes that have been made here. It will abrogate the contract of the American International Corporation if it feels that those mistakes will be repeated, and if it feels that they will not be repeated it will not abrogate the contract. The Government does not care these days about the abrogation of contracts either per se or as a means of rebuking capitalists.

The Government cares about only one thing—getting that other 70 per cent of Hog Island finished—and then 100 per cent power on shipbuilding.

LIVELY PROGRAM FOR THE COLISEUM ATHLETIC CARNIVAL

Experts From Jefferson Barracks Will Demonstrate Modern Bayonet Work.

BLOCKS OF TICKETS SOLD

Various Organizations to Attend Benefit for Soldiers' and Sailors' Club in Body.

A rehearsal will be held at the Coliseum Wednesday night in preparation for the Municipal Athletic Association's carnival to be given next Saturday night for the benefit of the Soldiers' and Sailors' Club in the Post-Dispatch Building, which is operated under the auspices of the War Camp Community Service Board and supported principally by the women's organizations of the city.

Fraternal orders, athletic clubs and civic organizations will be in attendance at the carnival. Boxes will be occupied by Mayor and Mrs. Keil, city officials, and patronesses, many of whom are the hostesses of the Soldiers' and Sailors' Club. The Elks, have taken 500 seats. The Loyal Order of Moose has reserved 200 seats and will march to the Coliseum in a body. The Missouri Athletic Club, Rotary Club, Forest Park Golf Club, Grotto Zouaves, Turners' societies, Knights of Columbus, city hall and municipal courts attaches. Women's Auxiliary of the Twelfth Engineers, and commercial organizations are among those who will have large blocks of seats.

Many Participants.

Participants in the carnival will represent St. Louis and Washington universities, Sunday schools, grammar schools, high schools, parochial schools, Knights of Columbus, turners' societies, Young Men's Hebrew Association, Young Men's Christian Association and Boy Scouts.

The program in general will follow the plan of a three-ring circus and there will be something doing every minute in every part of the Coliseum. Aside from the program in the arena the track and field events will fill a generous space. Municipal championships in low hurdles, high jumps, yard dashes and other events will be run off.

Something Novel in Prizes.

The victors in the contests will be given their prizes after the formation of the human flag in the midst of a grand patriotic rally. Something novel is promised in the announcement that American flags bearing ribbons and proper insignia will be given for the relays. For track events outside of relays the prizes will be wreaths and ribbons.

Those who will go to the rehearsal are the De Andreis Council of the Knights of Columbus Zouaves, the Grotto Zouaves, buglers, leaders of the human flag, the Jefferson Barracks band and the Turners societies.

The De Andreis Council of the Knights of Columbus Zouaves are under the direction of Thomas Lyster and the Grotto Zouaves are commanded by Carl Dingler. They will both put on attractive drills. Wednesday night will be the first time that the leaders of the human flag will come together for a united rehearsal under the direction of J. K. Stewart and Dr. Everhardt. Thirteen grown persons will be required to guide the formation of 380 Sunday-school children and Boy Scouts, which is to close the program. At the conclusion of the formation of the flag it is planned to have the singing of the "Star-Spangled Banner."

New Features of Program.

One of the new features of the program will be furnished by the Yeatman High School gymnastic team, which will do vaulting and pyramid building at one end of the arena. At the same time experts from Jefferson Barracks will go through bayonet work and there will be fencing and broad sword maneuvers by representatives of the Central Y. M. C. A., under the direction of C. B. Harrison, physical director.

Forty members of the Pilgrim Boy Scouts, Troup No. 2, are working hard to perfect a wall-scaling feat. The boys will use a wooden wall 12x15 feet, which they will put up and climb in 10 minutes.

An interesting part of the program will be a tug-of-war between members of the Police Department and the Division of Parks and Recreation. St. Louis and Washington universities will play the second game of a three-game series to determine the intercollegiate basket ball championship of the city. Both schools have reserved large blocks of seats.

COSTUME CONCERT TO BE GIVEN

Choral Club Will Sing Songs of All Nations Except Germany.

A concert in costume of old-fashioned songs of all nations will be given Thursday night at the Wednesday Club auditorium by the Morning Choral Club, under the direction of Charles Galloway. The proceeds will be devoted to the Soldiers' and Sailors' Club in the Post-Dispatch Building.

The entertainment will take the place of the annual fancy dress frolic which the club has given each year for its members and friends. There will be 21 numbers on the program, some choruses and others solos, duets and quartets, with all of the singers chosen from the club's membership. The songs selected represent the Unit[illegible] France. England, Scot[illegible] Greece, the Aztecs.

AMERICAN YOUTH TAKES NATURALLY TO THE AIRPLAN

Fact Revealed and Being Deve oped in Seven Training Camps in Texas.

FATALITY RECORD IS LOW

British Flyers at Fort Wort Lose Far More Than Any of American Camps.

DALLAS, Tex., Feb. 23 (By A. P.) —The American youth has a natura aptitude for flying. It was reveale and is being developed in seven avia tion training stations in Texas and during the winter, flyers have bee turned out from them with a pro ficiency and in numbers that hav fully satisfied the American officer and have proved almost startling t instructors from the allied armies.

There are six American and on British aviation stations in th State. The American camps are a Fort Worth, San Antonio, Houston Waco, Dallas and Wichita Falls. A Fort Worth, the Royal Flying Corps a camp of young Canadians traine by British officers, are in daily competition with the Americans in a adjoining camp.

A regard for military secrecy prohibits relating the total number o students who have taken to the air here this winter. It reaches a figure that gives great comfort to the military men who know, and compared with the total advancement made by the men, the number of accidents reported has been surprisingly small, it is stated.

In all seven camps, a total of 58 men have been killed in airplane accidents. The British flyers at Fort Worth have lost far more than any of the American camps. The high fatality record among the British, it is said, is the direct result of the more strenuous system of practice and drill which they use. Forty-three deaths have occurred at the two camps at Fort Worth, while Houston, next in the list, has had seven.

"They kill more at Fort Worth because they fly more," is the way a young aviation officer explained the great difference in the mortality lists. The young Canadians go into the air early for flights that are forbidden in the camps under United States control. They are taught the spirals, the dives and the loops that are a part of actual war flying and so it is that if their mortality list seems out of proportion to those in the other camps, the British officers are not displeased with the accomplishments of the men under them.

The San Antonio station has had three fatalities, Dallas two, Waco one and Wichita Falls two. Waco and Wichita Falls had perfect records until the week ending Feb. 2.

Several of the killed have been civilians or mechanics. In the early days of the American camp at Fort Worth, a mechanic was struck by a propeller when the engine backfired. There was a similar accident only recently when a college student examining an airplane which had landed on the campus of the Texas Christian University, got too near the propeller. He was struck on the head and killed almost instantly. At Denton, Tex., recently an aviator from Fort Worth stopped in a flight and was persuaded into taking a civilian as a passenger. The airplane had hardly cleared the ground when trouble came. The plane crashed, killing the civilian and injuring the aviator.

An aviator from Ellington Field, Houston, recently ran out of gasoline a short distance from Bay City and telephoned for fuel. An automobile mechanic who brought the gasoline persuaded the pilot to take him for a ride, and an accident resulted, the plane falling when only a few hundred feet in the air. The mechanic was killed and the aviator injured.

The San Antonio field is said to be the largest in Texas. Balloon observation is taught there in addition to flying. The students are mostly men from the signal corps.

This city soon will have two fields, Love Field, the camp now established, and a larger one already under construction at the State Fair grounds which have been loaned the Government for training purposes. There is a rigid ban against visitors at all camps. At Love Field a visitor caught with a camera was held until all the negatives were developed and showed that nothing of a prohibited nature had been pictured.

An unexpected effect of the frequent presence in the air of the flying machines has been the almost total disappearance of birds from the neighborhoods of the camps. Wild doves which have heretofore been common, flying in flocks, in Northern Texas, are never seen within miles of a camp, and in their northward spring flights the game birds, the ducks and geese are conspicuous by their absence from the skies about Fort Worth in particular.

ZIONIST TO SPEAK TONIGHT

Chicagoan to Make Address at Shaarei Zedek Synagogue.

Max Shulman of Chicago, president of the Federated Zionist Societies of the Middle West, will address members of the six St. Louis Zionist organizations tonight at the Shaarei Zedek Synagogue, West End and Page avenues.

The purpose of his visit is to organize a campaign toward raising here part of a $1,000,000 fund for the restoration of Palestine to the Jews, and to centralize the local activities.

GOOD NEWS FOR FAT FOLKS!

If You Want to Reduce Ten to Sixty Pounds Easily and Quickly, Read This.

Most fat people would like to enjoy healthful, normal weight. After unpleasant experiences with starvation dieting, drastic drugging and tiresome exercising, most of those burdened with surplus weight give up hope of ever finding relief.

At last a home treatment has been evolved which is so simple that some may doubt its efficacy for that reason alone. But don't pass judgment until you know more.

A very easy requirement of this unique system of fat reduction is that you take ten deep breaths each morning and evening in the open air or standing by an open window. Take one oil of korein capsule after each meal and before retiring at night; also follow the other simple directions that come with the capsules.

This treatment often shows a noticeable reduction in a very few days. Its consistent use should greatly improve the general health, overcome sluggishness and reduce your weight to normal. Beautify figure; add to vitality and efficiency; become genuinely happy! The oil of korein capsules may be obtained at the drug store. It is certainly a happy feeling to have a lithe, natural figure.—ADVERTISEMENT.

BUSINESS SURVEY OF ST. LOUIS IS READY IN EAST

ATTACK ON ARBITRARY

Further Purpose of Chamber of Commerce Is to Expand Commercial Endeavor Here.

A survey of business conditions in St. Louis, including an exhaustive study of the limitations by the Terminal arbitrary, has been completed by Ernest P. Goodrich, a New York engineer, for the Chamber of Commerce. Monday Jackson Johnson, president, and Joseph W. Folk, counsel of the chamber, will examine it in New York as to its value in the fight to remove the arbitrary.

Goodrich formerly was chief engineer of the Bush Terminal in New York, and since 1907 has been in private practice, his clients including construction firms on the Philippine harbor and the harbor commissioners of Newark N. J., Los Angeles, Cal., and Portland Ore.

Folk and Johnson Depart.

Johnson and Folk departed at noon yesterday for New York. They intend to ascertain whether Goodrich covered all details of St. Louis conditions desired by the Chamber of Commerce in the movement to remove the arbitrary and make St. Louis more attractive to large business enterprises.

It is said the report will discuss the arbitrary's effect on St. Louis' growth, how it can be removed and the probable effect and that it will suggest changes profitable to St. Louis business in the handling of railroad shipping.

The report probably will contain lengthy discussion of how the Mississippi River could be utilized for freight at St. Louis, so railroad congestion would be relieved and the city benefit by lower freight rates, such as other cities with water competition have.

It was said at the Chamber of Commerce yesterday that the report probably would be received in St. Louis late next week and be made public soon afterward.

Plan to See McAdoo.

From New York Johnson and Folk will go to Washington and lay before Secretary McAdoo, Director-General of Railroads, an explanation of the Terminal arbitrary. Folk said the conference would be similar to one he held in Chicago Wednesday with Regional Director Aishton, to whom he explained the arbitrary from the standpoint of the St. Louis business public.

Folk also expects to see Samuel Rea, president of the Pennsylvania Lines; Daniel Willard, president of the Baltimore & Ohio, and A. H. Smith, president of the Big Four, and discuss the arbitrary with them.

On his return late in the week Folk will be accompanied by Mrs. Folk.

"MIDINETTES" LOOKED UPON U. S. SOLDIERS AS MILLIONAIRES

Visitor From Paris Says Officers Soon Put an End to Leave to Visit Paris.

American soldiers overseas are looked upon as "millionaires" by the young "midinettes," or French working girls, who until recently turned the Paris visits of the khaki-clad youths into a continuous round of taxi rides, cafes and theaters, says Miss Juliette de Vries, 30 years old, of 23 Rue Geoffroy-Marie, Paris, who is visiting her cousin, Alex de Vries of 4013 Russell avenue, while on her way to join her fiance in Indo-China.

Miss de Vries left France late in November. Shortly before her departure the American troops engaged in their first encounter with the enemy. After the engagement they were moved behind the lines and granted leaves of absence, many of them going to Paris.

The advent of the Americans was followed by an overcrowding of the cafes and restaurants of the French capital, she related. For the first time in months the French girls had all the entertainment and diversion they wanted and it was a common sight to see tables surrounded by the Americans and their newly-found friends with champagne flowing freely at 25 francs, or $4 per bottle. American officers, however, changed this shortly afterwards by refusing Paris leave to soldiers, and at present the only American soldiers there are those on active duty.

Free to 50,000 Catarrh Sufferers

The Most Astonishing, the Most Successful Home Treatment Ever Discovered for Nasal, Bronchial, Throat, Stomach, Bladder and Other Symptoms of Systemic Hypersecretions of the Mucous Membrane.

A TRIAL TREATMENT OF THIS REMARKABLE DISCOVERY FREE TO ALL WHO WRITE.

There is absolutely no other way to overcome Catarrh except by home self-treatment. You have positively got to apply the treatment yourself. With this important fact in mind, C. E. Gauss, of Marshall, Mich., has perfected the most remarkable combination treatment ever discovered. Having cured completely hundreds of his friends, neighbors and others, he now offers to send free to all a trial treatment direct to your home. It is enough of a treatment to convince. It gives positive relief. You realize the relief. You are conscious of it. This is one of the most important discoveries ever made, for it is a fact that nine people in ten have Catarrh, but do not realize how badly they have it.

A Mouth of Corruption

Catarrh is the One Disease that is not imagination. The hawking, spitting, sneezing, wheezing, snuffing, blowing and gagging are not a habit, these distressing and offensive efforts to gain relief are not stopped by a mere command of the mind. No amount of will power, however determined, can cure catarrh.

It requires help to overcome a disease that although local in character may and often does permeate the entire system. For although you know you have catarrh you do not know how badly you have it. You may have what you believe is only Nasal Catarrh, but even so, it is a threat to your general health.

Here is a sensible, rational, home self-treatment, just as effective, just as searching, just as penetrating, as cleansing, as purifying as could be had from any source, even if you paid a hundred times as much.

A nose that dribbles with mucus is an indication of disease. A breath tainted with the odor of catarrh is an offense against all health and decency. A stomach filled with droppings from diseased nasal cavities may cause untold misery. The bowels clogged with strings of ropy mucus indicates a body literally reeking with catarrh.

The blood, swarming with millions of catarrh germs, entails upon the kidneys a labor that may break them down; the lungs and bronchial tubes, scourged with the destructive influence of systemic catarrh, can lead to the most serious consequences.

Not Imagination

When you get up in the morning with coated tongue, a breath that strikes terror to those around you; when you gag and squawk and cough and spit and choke, do you try to make yourself believe that all of this corruption is confined entirely to your nose and mouth?

Is it any wonder that sickness is everywhere? Thousands are seeking bracers, tonics, strong drugs and other poisons for relief when their trouble is catarrh and nothing else. And when you realize that the whole body is a vast camping ground for the myriad of poison germs hatched every second in the small space back of the nostrils, can you wonder that 50,000 free trial treatments will not begin to supply the demand once that people wake up to a full realization of the dangers from catarrh?

Will Power Is Useless

You know from experience that you cannot cure catarrh by forgetting it. But you can learn from a positive demonstration how to cure catarrh with this combined treatment.

This is an educational move on my part. I want everyone to try my treatment. I ask no money, no questions. I have but the one remedy, a discovery that is worth your while to send for whether you are a millionaire or a worker by the day. Catarrh is no respecter of persons. It undermines the poor and the rich alike. This free trial treatment proves that it goes to the root of stopped-up noses, constantly hawking and spitting, nasal discharge, snoring, bad breath, frequent colds, difficult breathing, smothering sensation in dreams, sudden fits of sneezing, dry mucus in nose, chunks lodging at soft palate, and other symptoms too numerous to mention. Simply clip, sign and mail coupon. Do it now.

The Trouble Begins Here

In the upper nasal cavity the catarrhal mucus collects and either runs out through the nostrils or dropping down it hardens and forms in chunks or long strings just where the soft palate or uvula is located.

The Trouble Gets Worse

It then drops down the throat with food or drink and creates a condition wrongly diagnosed as indigestion and stomach trouble.

You Can Never Tell What Serious Trouble Catarrh May Develop

From the stomach it mixes with all food and enters the blood to call upon the entire system to get rid of it. Gauss' Combined Method acts in all these stages from the nasal cavities to the throat, stomach, intestines, the blood, liver, breathing apparatus, bowels, kidneys, bladder and skin. It is the most comprehensive treatment ever discovered.

It Will Pay You to Send Coupon Today

N.Y.N.H. CONDUCTOR WINS FIGHT WITH RHEUMATISM OF JOINTS

F. A. Barber Tells How He Finally Found Remedy That Removed Every Ache and Pain

"I dislike publicity, but gladly give my experience in the hope that it will be the means of some other sufferer finding relief," said Mr. F. A. Barber, a well-known conductor on the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad, who lives at 104 Spring St., Springfield, Mass. "How few who do not suffer can realize what it means to find relief.

"I suffered from rheumatism of the joints in my feet, knees and hips so that I could hardly crawl around. My feet were swollen to almost twice their natural size. My back and knees pained me so that it was impossible to find a comfortable position in bed.

"My knees troubled me a great deal when I attempted to get on the train, for I was just able to shift my feet along. My hips pained me a great deal when I would lie down, and I could hardly move after remaining quiet any length of time.

"This was my condition when I commenced to take Var-ne-sis. Almost from the first I could see a change for the better, the pain gradually left me, the stiffness of the knees disappeared, and I was at last able to obtain some rest. By continuing the medicine every sign of rheumatism left me, my feet returned to normal, and I now feel like a new man.

"It is really astonishing what Var-ne-sis has done for me, and I am recommending it to all who suffer from rheumatism."

W. A. Varney said: I am constantly producing evidence that Var-ne-sis conquers rheumatism of the joints. For years I have published letters from people in Boston and vicinity. They tell how their joints were stiff, painful and deformed; they tell how they tried one remedy after another without results and finally recovered through Var-ne-sis. No sufferer of chronic rheumatism can afford not to try Var-ne-sis.

Var-ne-sis is a simple vegetable preparation and absolutely harmless, as it is composed of herbs, roots and barks; it does not contain salicylates, iodides, capsicum or pepper. Var-ne-sis tends to help the stomach and cannot harm the heart.

At my Boston office one room is given over to the display of his famous collection of crutches and canes which have been exhibited in many cities. These are being added to from time to time by those who were crippled before taking the remedy. The name and address of the owner is on each article, and Mr. Varney offers $1000 if they are not genuine. The walls of the display room are covered with photograps of New England people.

Send to W. A. Varney, Lynn, Mass., for the leaflet, "The Rust of Human Hinges." It's Free.

Every testimonial published is a simple statement of facts and $1000 is offered if they are other than genuine or if they have been purchased.

DR. M. F. ARBUCKLE TELLS HOW A BOMB KILLED 5 NEAR HIM

St. Louis Surgeon at French Front Describes Vicious German Air Raid.

WAS NIGHT OF TERROR

Boche Dropped Explosive About 15 Feet From the Physician.

Dr. M. F. Arbuckle, formerly of 3532 Washington avenue, now engaged in special surgical work in France, has written to Dr. John B. Shapleigh of 4950 Berlin avenue, telling of his narrow escape from death in the German aerial bombing raid, in which five men near him were killed.

In connection with this adventure he tells of meeting Maj. Malvern B. Clopton and Capt. B. S. Veeder, St. Louis physicians, who are in Base Hospital Unit 21.

Dr. Arbuckle, in his letter, speaks of the bombing incident as a "scary experience."

Describes Bomb Attacks.

The surgeon writes:

"Had been on a troop train for five days, which means that I had had only an occasional meal, had not had my boots off, nor a chance to lie down, and no accommodations of any sort on the train, when I arrived in a small village at about 3 a. m., and lay down on a cot in a very cold hut.

"At about 3:30 a boche came over and, although many anti-aircraft guns were firing at him, I was not aroused until he dropped a bomb about 15 feet away from me, killing five outright and wounding several others. One of the latter was blown through the end of his hut and into mine. I was thrown on the floor, and when I got up I was just in time to be run into by this wounded man. He was wanting help badly, and I didn't know whether I had been hit or not.

"The fellows killed had come in with me, and the shock of seeing them all dead at once was rather much for one, I assure you. However, I dressed the wounded ones, as I was the only doctor present, and halted a passing motor truck and took them about three miles to a hospital (in reality a casualty clearing station), and to my great delight I found Capt. Veeder and Maj. Clopton there and at work.

"Late that day I joined my field ambulance, and that night was one filled with terror for me, as they dropped about 300 bombs in our immediate neighborhood and of course we were very anxious. Then the next day they put over gas shells. So you see this is not all a bed of roses, after all."

Refers to London War Work.

Dr. Arbuckle in his letter laments the sudden interruption of his special surgical work in a London war hospital, through an order for all Americans to go to France. In London he came in contact with numerous cases of deafness from concussion and of shell shock.

"The cases of deafness," he writes, "which occur as result of concussion, often improve very much, even as long as six months after the injury, although some never improve. Of course, shell shock is, as yet, not well worked out, but it is in a most interesting condition.

"It has been my experience that the deafness in these cases usually depends on the degree of concussion the man has been exposed to, while of course the degree of shell shock does not depend so much on the force of the concussion as on the amount or length of exposure, combined with such experiences as being buried alive."

ST. LOUISANS IN SIGNAL CORPS

Battalion Claims record for Mounting and Operating Wireless Outfit.

Combining their military duties with an advanced study of electricity which they believe to equal the electrical course taught in any technical school, Privates Wallace K. Lewis, Joseph Friend and Eugene S. Bodin of St. Louis, are now specialists in the work performed by the Marine Corps Signal Battalion at Philadelphia. Their battalion claims the record for mounting and operating a wireless outfit in the field in the remarkable time of one minute and 27 sconds.

The St. Louis boys say the battalion offers interesting work for young men who have some training in radio, telephone, gas engines or mechanical work. Volunteers will take up their duties immediately with the Signal Battalion. Those interested are asked to communicate with the St. Louis boys at Philadelphia, or apply to the local Marine Corps recruiting station.

RAILROAD Y. M. C. A. DOES BIG SERVICE FOR ENLISTED MEN

Former Helen Gould's Gift Has Proven to Be Haven for Recruits.

When Miss Helen Miller Gould, now Mrs. Finley J. Shepard, built and equipped the $250,000 Railroad Y. M. C. A. building, at Twentieth and Eugenia streets, 11 years ago, her sole intention probably was to provide for the welfare and comfort of St. Louis railroad men.

The building has been a thorough success in serving the railroad men. But the war, combined with the position of the building near Union Station, has given it the opportunity to perform an even bigger service for the men of the United States army and navy. Those in charge of the institution are making full use of the opportunity, and every week thousands of men in the Government service are being housed, fed or entertained through its facilities.

Late afternoon is the time when soldiers are most likely to be found at the railroad "Y." Frequently they are recruits, not yet drilled or uniformed, on their way to Jefferson Barracks, from Northern recruiting stations. Sometimes they are companies, with officers in charge, going to or from Texas camps and flying fields. And always, needing a little more attention and encouragement than the rest, are the men who have been rejected from the army, and are on their none-too-joyous way home.

One of these "rejects," very young and very downhearted, was found a few evenings ago by Grover B. Simpson, chairman of the board, in charge of the building, sitting in a corner by himself.

"They wouldn't have me," the boy explained to Simpson. "I'm only 16, but the folks at home all say I'm a scrapper. But they kept the fellows I brought."

"What fellows?" Simpson asked him. The boy then told how he had persuaded four others, all older than himself, in his home town in North Dakota, to enlist with him in the army. At Jefferson Barracks the examining officers had accepted the four, but had rejected him as too young.

"I'm going to start shaving as soon as I get home," the boy declared. "If I can get a beard to growing, I can get by all right."

Inquiry as to his resources for the trip back to North Dakota brought the information that he had his railroad ticket, four sandwiches and 1 cent. Before he left he was provided with enough money to make the journey in comfort.

Sick "Reject" Given Attention.

Another "reject," suffering from pneumonia, was taken to the home of a family interested in the association's work, and was kept until he was well.

The last train for the Barracks, on the Missouri Pacific, leaves Union Station at 3:17 p. m. All parties of recruits arriving after that time wait in the city for the next morning's train. These recruit parties are not subject to the same restraints as organized bodies of soldiers, and if they were scattered around lodging places in the neighborhood of the station, they would be exposed to the temptations from which the army authorities try most earnestly to keep soldiers.

But the usual course of such detachments is that a Y. M. C. A. worker meets them at the train and invites them to the Railroad "Y," and that the men have a swim in the pool or shower baths, a good supper, see moving pictures or hear a musical entertainment, and are in bed by 10 o'clock.

A Corporal from the Barracks is stationed at the Railroad "Y," in special charge of this work with "rookies." A petty officer of the navy also is on duty there, to meet naval recruits. Both have entered into the spirit of the association's work, and their services are greatly valued by the workers in charge.

Laundry Provided for Sailors.

Sailors, stopping at the building over night, usually wish to wash their uniforms. A laundry has been rigged up where they can do this, and where soldiers can do the same if they desire. Sewing on of buttons is performed by the women of the Train Service Committee, of whom a detail is on hand, until 9 o'clock every night.

An information bureau at the station is an auxiliary of the Railroad "Y," and the workers in charge try to give the men the information that they want. Many of them wish to see friends or relatives in St. Louis, of whose whereabouts they often have an indistinct idea. If the city directory and the telephone directory give any help in the matter, the desired person is usually found and summoned to the building. Meetings of officers and soldiers with wives or mothers to whom they have telegraphed to meet them in St. Louis, and who are unacquainted with this city, are arranged, sometimes in collaboration with the Y. W. C. A.

One man a few days ago met his uncle and stayed with him at a downtown hotel, where he left his number tag hanging in a bathroom. Much distressed by the loss of the tag, he reported to the Y. M. C. A. workers that the case was hopeless, as he did not remember the name of the hotel. With the uncle's name to guide them, they found the hotel and recovered the lost tag.

Canadian aviation recruits, on their way to Kelly Field, in Texas, have been at the Railroad "Y" in considerable number.

Train service, which keeps a large number of women busy continuously, consists in part of visiting troop trains which stop in the station yards, but do not unload. These men have food, but the committee gives them fruit, chocolate and comfort kits.

There are 300 cots for soldiers, and frequently these are all in use. In January beds were furnished to 2367 men, and the total number served, including train service, was reported as 25,165. A long hut, in front of the building, has been outgrown, and work has begun on a hut 180 by 50 feet, a steel structure, which was formerly a freight receiving station of the Missouri Pacific. Ground was broken for this hut Friday night, with patriotic ceremonies.

Her Christian Duty To Other Sufferers

Had Been Troubled for Years With Gall Stones Until Fruitola Brought Relief.

MRS. M. E. LAUCKS

Anyone who has ever suffered the agony of gall stone trouble will understand the sense of gratitude that impelled Mrs. M. E. Laucks, Red Lion, York Co., Pa. (R. F. D. No. 1), to write to the Pinus Laboratories as follows: "I feel it my Christian duty to anyone suffering from gall stones to write this testimonial. I suffered for several years with gall stones and severe attacks of gall colic. The best doctors in our community could not help me; the only thing they recommended was an operation, which I hesitated to permit. I am very thankful I heard of Fruitola and Traxo and used it. Have not had an attack for two years and gladly recommend Fruitola and Traxo to all who suffer with stomach trouble or gall stones."

Fruitola and Traxo are prepared in the Pinus laboratories at Monticello, Ill. and can be purchased in drug stores; a doctor's prescription is not necessary. Fruitola is a pure fruit oil that acts as an intestinal lubricant. One bottle is usually sufficient to indicate its efficacy. Traxo is a tonic-alterative that is most effective to rebuild and restore the weakened, run-down system.

A booklet of special interest to those who suffer with stomach trouble can be obtained by writing to the Pinus Laboratories, Monticello, Illinois.

They are responsible for a myriad of bodily ills — indigestion, dyspepsia, rheumatism, blood disorders; to say nothing of the painful toothache with its throbbing hurt.

TESTIFIES GERMAN ALLIANCE IS CLOAK FOR PROPAGANDA

Witness Before Senate Committee Considering Bill to Revoke Charter Declares Organization in U. S. Uses System Similar to That Effective in Austria.

CARRIED ON THROUGH OFFICIAL ORGAN

Richard Bartholdt Quoted as Saying in St. Louis in 1916 That Voters Should Cast Ballot "Only for Those Favoring Germanism."

WASHINGTON, Feb. 23 (By A. P.)—The National German-American Alliance was pictured before a Senate Judiciary Subcommittee today by Gustavus Ohlinger, a Toledo (O.) lawyer, as a cover for German propaganda in the United States. Ohlinger was the first witness at hearings on the bill by Senator King of Utah to revoke the charter of the alliance and wind up its affairs and those of its state organizations.

Declaring that much of his testimoney was based on information taken from literature sent to members, Ohlinger said the operation of the organization in the United States was similar to the propaganda system by which Germany brought Austria under its complete dominance. He had not completed his testimony when the committee adjourned tonight and will be called again Monday.

The subcommittee purposes later to call officials of the alliance, including the president, the Rev. S. G. von Bosse of Wilmington, Del., and the secretary, Adolph Timm of Philadelphia.

In his testimony today, Ohlinger made it plain that he did not desire to create the impression that all members of the alliance were conscious of having worked against the interests of the United States. The real propagandists in the organization, he said, worked in secret and in a subtle way urged the individual members to further the interests of Germany. The entrance of the United States into the war, however, had curtailed their activities, Ohlinger added.

Officer Decorated by Kaiser.

The witness said that a former president of the alliance, C. J. Hexamer of Philadelphia received from Emperor William in 1904 the fourth order of the Red Eagle for his "services to German kultur" in the United States. It was Hexamer, he asserted, who sent telegraphic messages to the presidents of the state alliances instructing them to wire President Wilson that a majority of the citizens of their states opposed any drastic action against Germany as a result of the sinking of the Lusitania.

Preceding the national political conventions in 1916, the witness continued, the alliance worked against the renomination of President Wilson and urged its members to aid in bringing about the defeat of Theodore Roosevelt for the Republican nomination, both on the theory that neither favored "strict neutrality," and that both were opposed to German interests in this country.

Ohlinger declared that former Representative Richard Bartholdt of Missouri, who was active in obtaining the passage of the bill giving the alliance its charter, urged all citizens of German descent to vote "only for those favoring Germanism." He quoted Bartholdt as saying, in a speech in St. Louis in April, 1916: "We must use our ballot for Germanism. We must now forget our party and vote only for those who are friends of Germanism."

Bulletin Pleads for Loyalty.

In an alliance bulletin issued in July, 1917, the witness told the committee, a writer declared that every German in the United States was a pioneer in German kultur and that he should be proud of it as a means of showing his loyalty to his native country. In the same issue a poetic writer declared in verse that the oath of allegiance to the United States did not include a declaration that he would fight against Germany.

The bylaws of the organization belie its real purposes, Ohlinger said, for, although they declare one object is to teach American ideals to German immigrants, there is no record that that is being done. On the other hand, he declared, the entire activity in that respect is confkined to urging the teaching of German in the public schools.

"The German military propaganda against the United States in the United States began 20 years ago," Ohlinger declared.

"The same process has been followed here by Germany as abroad.

INDICATIONS POINT TO SECOND DRAFT CALL IN APRIL OR MAY

Known That Equipment and Supplies Will Be Ready Early in Former Month.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 23 (By A. P.).—While War Department officials reiterate that no date has definitely been fixed for calling of the second draft for the National Army, all available outward indications would seem to point to some time during the month of April or at the latest early in May.

Such a conclusion is based on the known preparations for equipping and housing the men. It is no military secret that equipment and supplies for men of the second draft will become available soon after April 1, and careful observers look for the first increments to be called soon afterward.

The number of men to be called in the first increment has not yet been determined because the question of housing them has not been disposed of. There will be room for some of them in camps and cantonments now occupied by troops, and it is possible that additional cantonments may have to be provided. It is also possible that some of the National Guard camps may be used during the period.

This phase of the subject is being given careful study, but nothing has been decided.

SOLDIER'S BROTHER MAKES VISIT OF PROTEST TO JUDGE DYER

Complains of Reported Policy of Dismissing Disloyalty Cases With Fines—Is Ordered Out.

George Dunphy, 40 years old, of Seattle, Wash., an oil stock salesman who has been living recently at the Illini Hotel, Alton, and at 5602 Washington court, St. Louis, gave a Post-Dispatch reporter yesterday his account of a call which he made on United States District Judge Dyer in the Judge's office a week ago Thursday to protest against the reported policy of the Judge to dismiss disloyalty cases with fines.

Dunphy said he asked Judge Dyer whether the report was true, and that the Judge asked him what he had to say about it. He replied that he had two brothers in France, one of whom had been blinded by a German gas bomb. He said the Judge then declared that he did not care if Dunphy had a dozen brothers in France, and told him to get out, threatening to call the Marshal and to arraign him in court. Dunphy said he left, slamming the door. He said his brothers in France were in the Canadian forces.

Judge Dyer refused to say anything about Dunphy's visit.

'THIRD-TERM PRESIDENT AND HIS NAME WON'T BE ROOSEVELT'

Statement in Talk of Senator Thompson, in Kansas to Speak for Administration.

TOPEKA, Kan., Feb. 23 (Special).—Kansa is wondering if Senator William H. Thompson, fresh from Washington, announced the candidacy of President Wilson for a third term. A speech delivered by Thompson yesterday to Kansas Democrats contained a significant sentence that caused the crowd to sit up and take notice.

"There will be a third-term President, and his name will not be Roosevelt," the Senator said.

The Senator was attacking Roosevelt and paused for applause at this point. He got it. The Democrats present seized the suggestion and cheered for Wilson. Importance is attached to Thompson's statement because he came to Kansas to "speak for the administration.

"TORPEDO PROOF" SHIP DEPARTS

A GULF PORT, Feb. 23 (By A. P.).—The former Austrian steamer Lucia, equipped with a new "non-sinkable" system, has sailed from here with a cargo.

The steamer is equipped with more than 12,000 air and water tight cells, which the inventor claims will keep the vessel afloat even should she be torpedoed.

A description of how the Lucia was equipped with water-tight boxes, together with interesting figures on cost and displacement, will be found in today's issue of the Post-Dispatch Magazine.

FOOTBALL STAR ONE OF 5 FLYERS KILLED IN DAY

Instructor and Two Cadets Fall to Death at Field Near Memphis, Tenn.

FORT WORTH, Tex., Feb. 23 (By A. P.).—Horace Higginbotham, former football star at Yale and a cadet naval aviator at Hicks Field, near here, was killed early this afternoon when the airplane in which he was flying fell 1000 feet. Ensign Frank Lynch, also of the naval flying corps, who was piloting the plane, was probably fatally injured in the crash.

The wreck was discovered about an hour after the crash by a farmer who had seen the plane fall. He thought at the time that the aviators were descending in full control of the machine.

Higginbotham was the son of R. W. Higginbotham, a wealthy business man of Dallas, Tex.

Lynch arrived here recently from Hampton Roads, after a period of training in Canada with the British Royal Flying Corps. His home is in Lawrence, Mass.

Cadet Franklin Fairchild was killed this afternoon when his airplane fell near Everman Field. Fairchild came here from Pelham, N. Y., Feb. 1. He was the only son of Benjamin L. Fairchild of Pelham, N. Y., Representative in Congress from the Twenty-fourth New York District.

THREE AVIATORS KILLED WHEN 2 PLANES COLLIDE

Former Instructor at Scott Field and Two Cadets in Accident Near Memphis.

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Feb. 23 (By A. P.).—A civilian flying instructor and two cadets at the United States aviation training school at Park Field, near here, were killed in a collision between two airplanes shortly after 3 o'clock this afternoon.

The dead are Guy H. Reagl of Chicago, civilian instructor, and James H. Webb of Rome, Ga., and Robert Gray Jr. of Long Island, N. Y., flying cadets.

The collision occurred when the planes were up about 500 feet. Instructor Reagle and Cadet Webb were in a regular instruction machine working out of the southern half of the flying field. Cadet Gray, who lacked but one hour's work at range finding before completing his training for a commission as a second lieutenant, was in the other machine and was operating out of the northern part of the flying field. The machines met in what is known as the neutral strip of air which divides the two portions of the flying field.

Reagle and Webb had made one circle of the southern field and were headed west, climbing for altitude. Gray had circled the northern field once and was going east on what he had intended to be a cross-country trip.

The airplane carrying the two men was slightly higher than the one driven by Gray and crashed through the right wing of the other machine. Both machines hurtled downward out of control and struck the earth about 200 feet apart.

Cadet Gray came to Park Field Nov. 25 last from the ground school at Princeton University. Cadet Webb came from the ground school at the Georgia Institute of Technology, Jan. 15. Instructor Reagle came from his home in Chicago, Dec. 10, previously having been engaged as civilian instructor at Rantoul, Ill., and Belleville, Ill.

Two women and four men were bruised in a collision of a southbound Hamilton car and a westbound Hodiamont car at Hamilton avenue and Hodiamont tracks shortly after 8 o'clock last night. Slippery rails were blamed by the motorman of the Hamilton car, which skidded into the Hodiamont coach, derailing both.

The injured passengers were: Miss Pauline Cornwall, 23, 5288 Page bl.; Mrs. Mary A. Shaw, 67, of Rolla, Mo., a guest of Miss Cornwall; Leo Johnson, 18, 6310 Wagner avenue; Charles Harrison, 28, 6531 Chamberlain avenue; John F. FIST BLOW GAVE AMERICANS FIRST GERMAN PRISONER

Teuton Knocked Out With Straight Right When Bayonets Could Not Be Used.

Soldier Who Punched His Regiment Into Fame Cock of Walk on Aisne Front.

BY FLOYD GIBBONS.

(Copyright, 1918, by the Tribune Company.)

WITH THE AMERICAN ARMY IN FRANCE, Feb. 23.—"We got the first one!" This phrase best expresses the exultation now enjoyed by members of that particular organization of American fighting men located on the Chemin des Dames front.

The capture of the first real German prisoner is the proudest distinction which one particular branch of Uncle Sam's army and one particular regiment, with civil war tradition will ever cherish.

Correspondents attached to the United States expeditionary forces are not yet permitted to remain with these troops in the valley of the Aisne, but an unoffical account of the capture was brought to correspondents' headquarters.

Unofficial Account of Capture

It is as follows:

On the night of Feb. 19 a patrol of 10 Americans and 10 Frenchmen went over the top to inspect the German wire. The dual patrol was commanded by a French lieutenant and an American lieutenant. Near the German wire the French and Americans encountered an enemy patrol and both sides opened fire at once.

The Americans and French dropped side by side to the ground and began pumping their rifles at the Germans, who returned the fire several minutes and then started to withdraw. Two of the French patrol had been killed and four wounded in the opening exchange of shots, but the remainedr joined the Americans and started in pursuit of the fleeing Germans.

The latter apparently were confused and unable to find an opening which would admit them to safety behind their wire. When at last they found their exit all could not get through at once and the hindmost one turned with extended bayonet, ready to meet a tall, onrushing American who also carried his bayonet in a businesslike position.

The German thrust his weapon at the American's breast. The American parried the thrust but found himself unable to recover his position for a counter thrust.

The German was in the same predicament. The American did the next best thing. He dropped his rifle and landed a straight-from-the-shoulder blow with his fist on the German's chin. The man dropped like a stone.

Meantime the remainder of the enemy had escaped through the wire and were fleeing before the fire of the French and American patrol, which had come up. Then, knowing the Germans would probably drop a barrage to cut them off, the members of the party returned to its trenches. Two of them carried between them a heavy German, who was still sleeping.

The prisoner revived five minutes later in a front line dugout, took one bewildered look into the strange faces over him, lisped a sleepy "kamerad" and closed his eyes.

Fallen Frenchman Brought in

The losses in the French patrol were now observed. The American lieutenant called for volunteers and picked one out of the ten who responded for a risky job. The Germans were spraying No Man's Land with a machine gun barrage which they had turned on as soon as their beaten patrol had returned to their lines. The lieutenant and his volunteers started over the top once more in the face of it. Within 15 minutes they had made two trips to the wire and each time brought back two wounded Frenchmen.

The French officer sent the names of both to headquarters with recommendations for the croix de guerre.

The folks back home will soon see through the medium of the movies the face of the man who punched his regiment's name to fame by way of a German chin. He is now cock of the walk in the valley of the Aisne. Probably the proudest walking he ever did was on the morning after the capture when, in full equipment, he marched his prisoner down the village street and past the blinking lens of a motion picture camera.

General Hastens to Learn Where Dugouts Are When Shell Bursts Near Him.

(Copyright, 1918.)

HEADQUARTERS FRENCH ARMY, Feb. 11 (delayed by censor).—"To hunt in company with trained huntsmen, savage beasts fenced in by our barbed wire," as a French corps commander phrased it, American troops have gone into line in the Chemin des Dames sector.

For the first weeks they will be scattered, company by company, among French battalions, in much the same fashion as the first contingent was grouped during its instructional period in the Rhine-Marne Canal sector last October.

Once their trench training is completed, however, they will hunt the Germans on their own hook, most likely by the side of seasoned American troops holding the line northwest of Toul. By this I don't mean that part of the front assigned to the United States will continue to be in the Toul region, for that, of course, is a question answerable only by our high command, but merely that some day all the American fronts will be together under their own leadership exclusively.

Troops began moving into the trenches in Soissonais—the scene of some of the bitterest battles of the war—the night before last. Their losses during the first 48 hours were negligible. Half a dozen men were wounded and one killed by shell fire, which the recklessness of individuals brought down upon one battalion. Insufficiently appreciatve of the perils of exposing oneself to enemy observers, some adventurous spirits insisted upon peering over the edge of the parapets. Not only did they draw the German fire, but they probably enabled the Germans to identify them as Americans owing to glimpses of American helmets and olive-drab uniforms.

Traveled in Troop Trains.

This foolhardiness disappeared after the men had undergone the first day's experience with the fighting line. Their passage was carried out with far less hardship and stress than was the painful hike of the regiments which relieved the French northwest of Toul. They traveled in troop trains and the time spent en route from the training area to the rail heads in this region seldom exceeded 18 hours. A brigade commander, who had allowed 21 hours as a minimum, found, when he rolled up in his automobile, that his troops were there ahead of him.

The first battalion to detrain was received by a guard of honor, consisting of a noted French battalion, and the ceremony of saluting the colors was gone through to the music of combined French and American bands. The commander of the French army corps under whose jurisdiction the men come, kissed the Stars and Stripes and made a little speech of welcome to the newcomers—he is one of a half dozen French Generals known the world over as having commanded one of the great armies of France in the first months of the war.

Practically all the units in the Soissonais are quartered in places wrested from the Germans less than a year ago in the French offensive of April, 1917. Most of them actually live in trenches, in dugouts, huts and other shelters built and once inhabited by the enemy. Staffs are installed in neat little houses tucked away under ledges of rock or camouflaged with painstaking Teutonic ingenuity. At least one of them is outwardly exactly as it was under enemy occupation. Meantime a Brigadier-General and his aids are humorously apprehensive of what may befall them.

The General, as it happened, had never been at the front before his arrival yesterday—he has not been in the trenches yet. "Just for that reason," he told me, "I didn't want to appear nervous and so hesitated to ask whether there were any dugouts anywhere around. I haven't seen any—instead of that I nonchalantly inquired if the Germans ever shelled this place. 'A shell fell here about six months ago, but none ever comes nowadays,' they told me. An hour later something I had no difficulty in identifying as a German shell, although it was the first time I had heard one, exploded about 200 yards away. It was followed by about 50 others in rapid succession. While it went on we just sat tight, there being nothing else to do, but as soon as it stopped I found out where the dugouts were without further hesitation."

General Rapidly Promoted.

None of the shells fell near enough to do any damage. This General holds a record for the rapidity of his promotion. He enlisted in an infantry regiment as a private just after the United States entered the war. He was made a Captain next

$215 A WEEK TO SOME STEEL ROLLERS HERE

175 Men Average $4000 to $5000 a Year, Says Official of Stamping Company.

Rollers employed at the St. Louis and Granite City plants of the National Enameling and Stamping Co. are making as much as $215 a week, working eight hours a day, an official of the company said to a Post-Dispatch reporter yesterday.

He explained that rollers were paid on a tonnage basis, and that such a figure was unusal, but estimated that many of the 175 rollers employed in the two plants average $4000 to $5000 a year.

Rolling steel is one of the forms of labor requiring the highest degree of skill, although men sometimes serve their apprenticeship in three or four years. The work consists of superintending the heating of steel bars that are to be rolled, adjusting the rolls and feeding the steel into them. It is done by hand, the roller feeding the steel bars and sheets with tongs. It is not injurious to health.

Adjusting the rolls requires a thorough knowledge, as the difference between some of the gauges is only 1-144 of an inch. Also, the steel must be rolled at an exact heat. If not, the product is faulty, and the roller is responsible for the quality of all he turns out. He is not paid for steel which is rejected.

The official asserted that it was not unusual for a roller to earn $40 in a day. The amount depends on the thickness of the sheeting that is being turned out, thicker sheets being much more quickly produced. Rollers are paid a higher scale for thinner sheeting.

It also was explained that the rollers' wages were dependent on the price of steel, under a contract the union has with the company. The last increase was about three months ago.

RED CROSS NEEDS 25 MEN FOR SERVICE IN FRANCE AT ONCE

Requirements Are Knowledge of French and Possession of Executive Ability.

St. Louisans who speak French, who have executive ability and who desire to help win the war by doing Red Cross work abroad can be on the way to France within a few days by applying to the Southwestern Division headquarters of the Red Cross in the Railway Exchange Building.

A hurry call for 25 men with these qualification has been received. Men are wanted for Red Cross field chiefs of military relief, for zone commanders, for field representatives, for canteen work and the like. Following is a list of the positions to be filled:

Field representatives, canteen workers at the front, office managers, chief section of insurance district delegates and executives for transportation department. For the latter and the chief section of insurance knowledge of French is not required.

NAVAL RECRUITS MAKE SPECTATORS UNCOVER

Hats-Off-to-Flag Signs Carried by Men Departing for Training Camp.

A hats-off-to-the-flag campaign to educate St. Louisans in flag etiquette was launched last night by Lieut. F. W. Wilson of the naval recruiting office at Seventh and Chestnut streets, who sent out recruits carrying "Take off your hat" signs and officers to publicly rebuke those who failed to show proper respect to the Stars and Stripes.

The hats-off instruction was given in connection with a patriotic demonstration and parade, followed by a rally at the Railroad Y. M. C. A., Twentieth and Eugenia streets, incidental to the departure of 100 naval recruits for San Francisco, where they will go into training for service.

The hats-off signs carried in the parade did not cause all of the spectators to uncover as the colors passed by, but the "calling down" that the naval officers gave the hats-on offenders had the intended effect. Singularly, some of the offenders were soldiers, who failed to stand at salute. Each of these was given a brief but caustic reminder of the regulations.

Lieut. Wilson says that St. Louisans are worse offenders in this way than the people of other cities where he has been. He thinks that it is due to thoughtlessness, and that a few reminders such as was given last evening will correct the fault.

The recruits, escorted by a drum corps of 32 girls from the East St. Louis plant of Armour & Co. and Naval Boy Scouts, proceeded to the Y. M. C. A. hut, where refreshments were served and entertainment provided until train time. Parents and friends of the men, many of whom were St. Louisans, gathered there to bid farewell. Each of the enlisted men was provided with gift packages containing confections, tobacco and stationery by women members of the Welfare Committee.

Nearly 1000 recruits are in St. Louis, awaiting call, and detachments will be sent away regularly from now on. About 500 will depart on March 2. The navy has obtained 472 men here since Jan. 1.

GERMAN DEMANDS INCREASED IN NEW TERMS TO RUSSIA

Reported Teuton Offer Calls for Evacuation by Russian Troops of Parts of Esthonia and Livonia.

Berlin Announces That the Invading Troops Have Arrived at Town 90 Miles Northeast of Riga.

LONDON, Feb. 23 (By A. P.).—A Russian wireless Government statement received here tonight says:

"Germany will renew the peace negotiations and will conclude peace on the following conditions:

"Both to declare the war ended.

"All regions west of the line indicated at Brest-Litovsk to the Russian delegation which formerly belonged to Russia, to be no longer under the territorial protection of Russia.

"In the region of Dvinsk this line must be advanced to the eastern frontier of Courland.

"The former attachment of these regions to the Russian state must in no case involve for them obligations toward Russia. Russia renounces every claim to intervene in the internal affairs of these regions.

"Germany and Austria-Hungary have the intention to define further the fate of these regions in agreement with their populations.

"Germany is ready, after the completion of Russian demobilization, to evacuate the regions which are east of the above line. So far as it is not stated otherwise, Livonia and Esthonia must immediately be cleared of Russian troops and Red Guards.

To Be Policed By Germans.

"Livonia and Esthonia will be occupied by German police until the date when the Constitution of the respective countries shall guarantee their social security and political order. All inhabitants who were arrested for political reasons must be released immediately.

"Russia will conclude peace with the Ukrainian people's republic. Ukraine and Finland will be immediately evacuated by Russian troops and Red Guards.

"Russia will do all in its power to secure for Turkey the orderly return of its Anatolian frontiers. Russia recognizes the annulation of the Turkish capitulation.

"The complete demobilization of the Russian army, inclusive of the detachments newly formed by the present Government, must be carried out immediately.

Withdrawal of Warships.

"Russian warships in the Black Sea, the Baltic Sea and the Arctic Ocean must immediately either be sent to Russian harbors and kept there until the conclusion of peace or be disarmed. Warships of the Entente which are in the sphere of Russian authority must be regarded as Russian ships.

"Merchant navigation of the Black Sea and Baltic Sea must be renewed as stated in the armistice treaty. The clearing away of mines is to begin immediately. The blockade of the Arctic Ocean is to remain in force until the conclusion of a general peace.

"The Russo-German commercial treaty of 1914 must be enforced again. In addition, there must be guarantee for the free export, without tariff, of ores and the immediate commencement of negotiations for the conclusion of a new commercial treaty, with a guarantee of the most favored nation treatment, at least until 1925, even in the case of the termination of the provisorium, and finally the sanction of all clauses corresponding to paragraph 11, of clauses 3, 5 and 15 of the Ukraine peace treaty.

"Legal and political regulations are to be regulated in accordance with the decision of the first version of the Germano-Russian convention. So far as action on that decision has not yet been taken, especially with respect to indemnities for civil damages, this must be in accordance with the German proposal. And there must be indemnification with expenditures for war prisoners, in accordance with the Russian proposal.

Must End Propaganda.

"Russia will permit and support, as far as she can, German commissions for war prisoners, civil prisoners and war refugees.

"Russia promises to put an end to every propaganda and agitation, either on the part of the Government or on the part of persons supported by the Government, against members of the quadruple alliance and their political and military institutions.

even in localities occupied by the Central Powers.

"The above conditions must be accepted within 48 hours. The Russian plenipotentiaries must start immediately for Brest-Litovsk and sign at that place within three days a peace treaty, which must be ratified within two weeks."

The foregoing, adds the Russian official statement, is dated Berlin, Feb. 21, and is signed by Von Kuehlmann (the German Foreign Secretary) and Lieutenant-General (name omitted), Commander in Chief of the army.

AUSTRIA REPEATS IT IS NOT AIDING IN RUSSIAN INVASION

Premier Says Peace Negotiations With Rumania Will Begin in a Few Days.

AMSTERDAM, Feb. 23 (By A. P.).—The Austrian Premier, Dr. von Seydler, addressing the lower house at Vienna Friday, declared again:

"Austria-Hungary is not participating in the military action which Germany at present is taking against Russia. There has been no advance of Austro-Hungarian troops into Ukraine, with which we are at peace.

"With regard to Rumania, an armistice exists between Austria-Hungary and that country. Peace negotiations will begin within the next few days."

The Premier's statement was received with applause from all parts of the house."

GERMANY'S REPLY TO RUSSIAN PEACE OFFER ON THE WAY

Bolshevik Courier Taking It to Petrograd—Austria Also Sends Message.

PETROGRAD, Feb. 23 (By A. P.).—The Bolshevik headquarters has received a wireless message signed by Gen. Hoffman saying the German answer had been handed to the courier of the Russian Government, who immediately started on his return to Petrograd. The message gave no intimation of the contents of the reply.

A second wireless message, addressed to Leon Trotzky, from the Austro-Hungarian Government has been received announcing that Austria-Hungary is ready, with her allies, to bring the peace negotiations to a final conclusion.

The Germans in their invasion of Russia are advancing in three groups, according to a report from the Commander in Chief of the Russian army on the northern front, who says:

"The Germans are advancing with great caution. They are marching in three groups. First, in the Walk region; second in the Rieshitsa region, and the third between these two sections. In the Mohilev sector all is quiet."

Germans Said to Be Not Far From Russian Naval Base of Reval.

LONDON, Feb. 23 (By A. P.).—The Germans, according to the latest dispatches from Petrograd, are meeting with little or no opposition in their newest invasion of Russia, whose disorganized and scattered army is taking no notice of the appeal of the Bolsheviki to engage in guerilla warfare.

Livonia is completely overrun with the German armies, and the Germans are not far from the outskirts of the naval base of Reval, the evacuation of which could hardly be completed, as Petrograd dispatches say the soldiers refuse to assist in the work. At Minsk the Germans are astride one of the main routes to Moscow, while further south Germans and Ukrainians are on their way to Kiev. Until the Ukrainian peace, these Ukrainian soldiers were prisoners of war, but have since been released and armed by the Central Powers.

Meanwhile the Bolsheviki are publishing appeals to the people to resist the invaders, and there is talk at Petrograd of convoking the constituent assembly.

Some of the agency headquarters say that units of the German army are refusing to participate in the invasion, while disorders have been observed among the Austrians.

The headquarters of the Russian Western army has been moved to Smolensk, 25 miles southwest of Moscow. The change was made in such haste that the staff lost touch with the various armies.

Petrograd newspapers, it is said, report that Russian soldiers on the northern front seized 27 trains which were being used to carry 40,000 soldiers to Moscow. The Germans are taking no prisoners, merely disarming the Russians and liberating them.

German airplanes, the Petrograd correspondent of the Times says, are distributing proclamations calling on the Russian people to remain calm and keep order as the Germans are coming to suppress anarchy and to bring food as soon as possible.

The Bolsheviki are greatly perturbed and depressed. Foreign Minister Trotzky is reported to be sick in consequence of renewal of hostilities and is unable to attend meetings of the Council of Peoples' Commissaries which are being held constantly.

The Times correspondent reports some anxiety in the British colony in Petrograd and the consulate there being crowded with persons wishing to get away. A British military order directs all Englishmen of military age who have been exempted from service up to this time to hold themselves ready to start for home at six hours' notice. Other British subjects, especially women and children, have been advised to leave Russia without delay.

A dispatch to the Express from Petrograd, dated Thursday, says that Bolshevik Foreign Minister Trotzky started yesterday for Dvinsk "to take measures to liquidate the new hostilities."

It is stated in military circles that the Commander in Chief of the German invaders is the Grand Duke of Hesse, brother of the former Russian Empress, says the newspaper.

Original German Demand Was for 160,000 Square Miles and $1,500,000,000

PETROGRAD, Wednesday, Feb. 20 (By A. P.).

THE peace terms submitted at the Brest-Litovsk conference by the Central Powers were as follows:

Russia should surrender 160,000 square miles of territory having a population of 18,000,000 and pay an indemnity subsequently modified to 3,000,000 rubles ($1,500,000,000). The Central Powers were prepared to return to Russia 7000 square miles in the Grodno Government province of Lithuania.

Russia should agree not to spread revolutionary propaganda in the Central Empires.

The commercial treaty which was abrogated at the beginning of the war should be reconstituted and extended 30 years.

Reports reaching Petrograd are to the effect that the newest German demands include the policing of all the principal cities of Russia.

The Bolshevik authorities are ready to accept the peace terms originally outlined by the Central Powers and also to accede to a demand that Russia evacuate the small portion of Austrian territory still held, as well as Armenian and all other territory captured from Turkey.

A dispatch from Petrograd under date of Feb. 15 quoted Leon Trotzky, the Bolshevik Foreign Minister, as declaring in his report upon the ending of the Brest-Litovsk negotiations that the German terms included the retention of Poland, Lithuania, Riga and Moon Island, with an indemnity of 4,000,000,000 pounds, presumably in gold. It will be seen from the foregoing dispatch that the Teutonic demands, both in territory and indemnity, were much less than those reported by M. Trotzky.

Turkish Army in the Caucasus Begins an Offensive.

LONDON, Feb. 23 (By A. P.).—The Turkish army in the Caucasus, has begun an offensive, a correspondent of the Exchange Telegraph Company wires from the headquarters of the Russian Western army. The attack was started before the expiration of the armistice. The Turks occupied Platana and paralyzed the evacuation by the Caucasian Corps which is now grouped along the coast.

Platana is a small Turkish port on the Black Sea Coast in the Vilayet of Trebizond, 15 miles west of the city of Trebizond and 100 miles west of the Russian border At the height of their successes in Turkey the Russians pushed considerably west of Platana and also well to the south, occupying all of Turkish Armenia.

Long after fighting ceased on the Russo-Galician front the Russian troops in the Caucasus kept up the campaign but for several weeks no reports from this front have been received. The Russians agreed at Brest-Litovsk to evacuate Turkish territory and the withdrawal was under way at the time of the new Turkish attack. Occupation of Platana would cut off the retreat of Russian forces along the coast west of that point.

HOW AMERICANS WENT INTO LINE IN FAMOUS CHEMIN DES DAMES SECTOR

day and by successive leaps became Brigadier-General a few weeks ago. Of course he had military training before.

I visited one of the cantonments immediately behind the front, in which a battalion awaiting its turn in the trenches is billeted. A thousand men are spaciously housed in an immense cavern, partly natural in formation, partly blasted out by the Germans during their long tenancy of it. Caves of this kind abound in the Soissonais country, which is full of quarries and peculiar rock formations. They run down 30 or 40 feet under a layer of solid rock, and, of course, are impervious to the heaviest deluge of high explosives.

"You ought to have seen their faces as they marched down in here the other night," a Captain remarked. "They thought they were going to be in a quarry and found themselves in a good imitation of the mammoth cave."

They got used to the strangeness of their surroundings very quickly, however, for when I saw them they had settled down in most matter-of-fact style. Each company was assigned a certain part of the subterranean barracks and sentries were posted to keep the doughboys from straying off and losing themselves, a mighty easy thing to do. Entrances to grottoes, as the French call them, and galleries winding about through rock, have been named after American cities—New York, Brooklyn, New Orleans, Washington—and illuminated signs indicate one's whereabouts. Battalion and company officers were in little chambers separated with wooden partitions.

Grottoes Electrically Lighted.

Men slept on low wooden bunks covered with straw. A small generator supplied enough electricity to keep a few incandescents burning, but the electrical system is being extended, and soon the grottoes will look like the Great White Way before the fuel administrator got busy.

It was an uncanny walk along the pitch dark passages, hearing American voices singing "My Bonnie Lies Over the Ocean" or "Dinah, De Moon Am Shining." The men were writing letters, reading, shaving by candle light or singing by no light at all. They are forbidden to leave the cave except when on duty, in order to reduce the risk of detection by hostile airplanes. For the present their work is limtied to policing the premises, carying fuel for rolling kitchens and similar odd jobs, but before many days have passed they will be getting plenty of exercise in the trenches.

Kitchens are lined up outdoors in a camouflage corner of the quarry, looking like a battery of howitzers. The Germans, I am informed, kept theirs in the same place and called them "Hungerabwehr Cannonen"—cannons for prevention of hunger. Food is carried down into the cavern in marmite cans—huge caldrons—each carried by two men.

From the grottoes this battalion will hike right into the firing line. They will find themselves then in trenches constructed by the French after they hurled the enemy down the slope from the Chemin des Dames in that famous drive of Oct. 22 last, which finished the job of freeing Soissons begun by Nivelle in the previous April. The ground from Soissons itself to the front lines resembles the face of the moon, pock-marked with shell craters, gashed with disused trenches and gun emplacements, alive with interminable strands of snakelike, rusty barbed wire.

Inter-Allied Conference of Labor Adopts British Labor's War Aims Program

Declarations Agree Largely With Those of President Wilson and Lloyd George—International Meeting Proposed.

LONDON, Feb. 23 (By A. P.).—The inter-allied labor conference, which ended its sessions here today, has accepted the war aims program as enunciated by British labor Dec. 28, and the next step probably will be the calling of an international conference at an early date, including both labor and socialism.

At a luncheon given today in honor of the foreign delegates to the conference Arthur Henderson, former member of the war cabinet, and leader of the labor party, described the action of the conference as declaring for the establishment of a league of nations, involving international co-operation for disarmament and the prevention of warfare in the future, the restoration of Belgium, Serbia, Rumania and Montenegro, and only territorial changes in the future based on justice and right.

People's Peace Aimed At.

Henderson declared that the peace aimed at was of the peoples, and that the peoples must stand behind it, and he added that labor was prepared to go on with the war until all the conditions insisted upon for a permanent peace were met.

James Ramsay MacDonald, Socialist and Labor member of Parliament, said the next step of labor and Socialism was to bring the matter before the German and Austrian people themselves.

The program as adopted corresponds in general to the declarations of President Wilson and Premier Lloyd George. It has the support of the Socialist or labor parties of England, France, Italy, Belgium, Portugal, Rumania and South Africa. The social revolutionary or minimalist Russians telegraphed an indorsement of British labor's war aims and added that they had tried to send delegates to London, but that Leon Trotzky, the Bolshevik Foreign Minister, had refused passports.

The discussions of the conference's war aims were enlivened by the divergent views expressed by various delegations, particularly the Italians, on the subject of territorial adjustments, but a fairly satisfactory compromise or generalization was reached in each case where a disagreement was threatened. The general tone of the conference was in no way pacifist or pro-German, and the discussions revealed a sincere resolve among widely separated factions to reach unity.

Minimum of Labor's Demands.

The program which finally resulted was passed unanimously. The French delegate, Albert Thomas, the former Minister of Munitions, declared:

"The war aims as outlined are the absolute minimum which we will accept, and if anybody tries to foist on us a peace not embodying these terms it will mean a revolution which will not halt until justice has been secured, even if that takes 15 years." Henderson also declared that the program could be regarded as the minimum demands of the laboring classes of all the allied countries.

Emile Vandervelde, Socialist leader in the Belgian Chamber of Deputies, and Minister of State, said: "Whether we are victorious or not, these will remain our war aims, and we shall strive unremittingly for them."

The only section of the conference's declaration to which the allied Government are likely to take exception is the clause insisting on an immediate conference between the Socialists of the allied countries and Germany, and this clause had the enthusiastic support of the entire conference.

Besides adoping the formal war aims program, the conference adopted a resolution to convene an international Socialist conference to sit concurrently with the official peace conference, and also demanded that at least one Socialist should be included by every nation in the official delegation at the peace conference.

Delegation Coming to U. S.

The conference voted to send five delegates to the United States "for the purpose of conferring with the representatives of the American democracy on the war situation."

The delegation will be headed by Camille Huysmans, secretary of the international Socialist organization, the other members to be selected by the French, British, Italian and Belgian Socialists, respectively.

"If the Americans won't come to us, we must go to them," said one delegate. The delegates will undertake to confer with President Wilson and Samuel Gompers, president of the American Federation of Labor.

Vandervelde declared: "It is absolutely essential to have the Americans with us in our effort to establish a basis for a democratic peace. The day when American labor will join us is surely not far distant. The United States may have been late in entering the war, but I cannot believe that the American working classes will be late in joining us in shouldering labor's share of the war's responsibility."

British labor's war aims, Henderson said in his address, are its irreducible minimum, "and as soon as they are secured we desire to enter into the fullest international intercourse with all the nations of the world."

"We repudiate," he said, "any and every attempt to institute an economic boycott or bring about economic isolation of Germany. We aim at obtaining a peace of the peoples but the peoples themselves must be the guarantors. On these conditions not only are we prepared to carry on the war but to see to it that we shall secure a just peace.

"We are convinced that this world conflict can only be ended in one of three ways—the absolute predominance of all militarism; the exhaustion of all the combatants, or by conciliation. We believe that sooner or later the last of these methods must be resorted to by all the belligerents."

Henderson described as "foolish talk" the statements that British labor and British socialism were only concerned in holding out the olive branch to the enemy; in fact, we're going to negotiate with an olive branch in their hands, when the enemy had a sword in his hands.

Far From Facts, He Says.

"Don't you believe it," said Henderson. "Nothing is further from the fact. We are willing to negotiate with the enemy, but not with an olive branch in our hands while he clutches a sword in both of his. No! We look into the future and regard the problem with all seriousness and the importance it demands. Both sides must be prepared to accept a solution which will have for its main object the destruction of militarism."

The conference having reached an agreement, the next duty, said Henderson, was to do everything possibit to hold an international conference under proper conditions and as speedily as possible.

NEGRO, AT SECOND TRIAL, GETS 30 YEARS ADDED TO SENTENCE

Getting a new trial cost Adolphus Fuller, a negro, 30 years in the penitentiary. A jury in the criminal court returned a verdict last night, finding him guilty of the murder of Policeman Isaac A. Kidwell on May 10, 1916, and fixing his punishment at 40 years in the penitentiary.

Fuller was tried in November and was given 10 years in prison. He appealed and got a new trial.

DIPLOMATS READY, FRANCIS SAYS, TO QUIT PETROGRAD

BOLSHEVIKI FALL SEEN

Washington Believes That Party Would Lose Power if Capital Was Seized.

By Leased Wire From the Washington Bureau of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 23.—The State Department today received from Ambassador Francis at Petrograd a cablegram dated Feb. 18, reporting that the Council of Workmen and Soldiers' Deputies was preparing to defend Petrograd against the expected attack by German troops.

According to the American Ambassador, allied diplomats probably will leave the Russian capital if the German forces approach dangerously close. It was not indicated by Ambassador Francis where the allied diplomats will go if they leave Petrograd. Francis will use his discretion. The belief was expressed here that the diplomats probably will not leave Russia, but retire to Kola on the Murmansk coast, which is now controlled by British naval vessels.

There is no certainty in Washington that the Germans propose to occupy Petrograd, but the conviction is growing that the capture of the Russian capital is one of their important objectives. Possession of Petrograd, it was pointed out, would mean virtually the complete over throw of Bolsheviki authority. Petrograd is the heart and center of Bolsheviki power and authority. With the city in the hands of German military authorities, it is doubted that the Bolsheviki would be able to maintain its hold on either military or civil functions.

May Restore Czar to Throne.

The possibility that Germany might seek to set up a complete Government in Petrograd, including members of the Russian family, and even the deposed Czar Nicholas himself, was one of the points discussed here today.

The German advance into Russia, its arrest not having been reported yet, is expected to operate to prevent the continuance of the shipping of relief supplies for the present at least, from the United States to Kola for distribution in European Russia. Likewise the continued sending of provisions from this country to Rumania is threatened.

Military experts declared today that the further the German lines penetrate into Russia, the greater will be the number of troops required to maintain them, as the advance necessitates a widening of the front and without being strengthened they would become so attenuated as to be dangerous for the Germans themselves.

These authorities also predicted that the advantages accruing to the Central Powers from the Russian debacle in all probability would be seized upon by the German Imperial Chancellor as an opportunity for making a more definite pronouncement in regard to peace than the German Government has uttered. One officer, seeing the political possibilities resulting from the seemingly complete collapse of Russia said:

Peace Would Strengthen Germany.

"It would not be surprising if Germany soon will express a willingness to conclude peace on terms that she would make it appear to be to the interests of the allies to accept, provided Germany be given carte blanche to treat Russia as she pleases. A peace on such a basis, though, would leave Germany very much stronger than she was at the commencement of the war, and a greater menace than ever both to peace and to the free institutions of the world.

"Such a peace would empower Germany to annex, first, the Baltic provinces, which would restrict Russia's internal communications more than at any time since Peter the Great and plant the seeds of fresh discords between the maritime Powers. Such a peace would drive Russia to the very borders of Europe and leave her an Asiatic rather than a European nation. It would also make the Scandinavian countries economic dependents of Germany because of the mastery Germany would acquire of the Baltic and the channels to the North Sea, and, of course, her route to the East through the Balkans and via Turkey would not be interfered with in the least. The allies and America never could assent to a peace involving such great dangers to the future peace of the world."

There are 150 Americans in Petrograd, including 30 women. Forty-five are connected with the diplomatic and consular establishments.

16 TUSCANIA DEAD IDENTIFIED

WASHINGTON, Feb. 23 (By A. P.).—The War Department tonight gave out an additional list of the names of 16 identified dead American soldiers who lost their lives in the torpedoing of the liner Tuscania by a German submarine, Feb. 6. Ten of them previously had been reported in Associated Press dispatches from a Scottish port.

The seven not previously identified were Privates Sterling Collonn, St. James, Ark.; Arthur N. Harvey, Eau Claire, Wis.; Joseph R. Redfield, Glendale, Ore.; Edward L. Routt, Pecan Gap, Tex.; Thomas S. Wasson, Kosciusko, Miss., and Claude W. Walker, Los Angeles.

GERMAN ALLIANCE ACCUSED OF SPREADING TEUTON PROPAGANDA

That policy is to destroy the national spirit of a nation. It is the plan of the German general staff. It knows that if the people of a natioon have no red-hot flaming national spirit they will not die in the trenches for their country. It wanted to destroy the national spirit of the United States. It nearly succeeded. A few more years and it would have succeeded. The war saved the United States. This is the real meaning and purpose of the German-American Alliance. I do not say that all members of the alliance have realized that this was so."

Wrote Book Attacking Alliance.

Ohlinger is the author of a book attacking the German-American Alliance, published in 1916. He told the committee that he was born under American protection in China and that his father was of Swedish descent. His mother was of German ancestry. He said his ancestors came to this country more than 100 years ago.

The witness said that by act of Congress in 1907 the Alliance received a Federal charter; through its efforts local alliances have been organized in all large states of the country; in these local alliances local German societies of every kind have their meeting ground.

"In this way," he said, "the national German-American Alliance claims to reach 3,000,000 persons of German descent in the United States."

The incorporating act claims the purpose of the alliance to be 'educational and patriotic.'"

"In place of patriotic ends," said Ohlinger, "the alliance has devoted itself unremittingly to the following purposes.

"The consolidation of all those of German descent into one economical, political and social bloc. As instruments for this it has used the German press, German parochial schools, the German stage, societies of Germans and a continual propaganda for compulsory teaching of German in public schools.

"The arousing of racial antagonisms and opposition to all progress of assimilation.

"A vigorous propaganda for the benefit of the German Government.

"Opposition to the policies of the United States.

"The furtherance of the aims of disloyal organizations and individuals.

"Rabid hostility to prohibition or any interference with the liquor traffic.

"Reliance upon unknown sources for financial support."

"No Need for German Press."

Ohlinger declared that there was no need for a German language press in this country today; that there had been no immigrants from Germany in any considerable numbers for 20 years.

But since Prince Henry came to this country and paid so much attention to the German societies, the German press had increased, he said.

Senator Wolcott suggested that there are the Greek Press, the Italian press, and the Hebrew press in this country.

"Yes," was the answer, "but these papers have not the reason of 'Kultur' and world power behind them. This German press has been encouraging always the solidarity of the Germans in this country. The New York Zeitung claims that it has increased its circulation more in the last two years than has any other paper in the country."

Ohlinger claimed that the alliance had urged the study of Bernhardi's book, and spoke of the passage in the book in which the author refers to the German-American Alliance as a power in the defeat of the arbitration treaties between the United States and Great Britain and France in 1910.

He pointed out that on the outbreak of the war in Europe the alliance had within a day or two come out for Germany and urged its branches to establish press bureaus to attack the English language press.

Ohlinger was asked if the alliance had ever attacked him in the past. He said: "No, not until after I had published my book about it in 1916."

He said he had been prompted to write his book by the need of emphasizing the vital necessity of the establishment in this country of a national spirit both for military and political reasons.

In answer to questions from Senator King and Senator Wolcott, he declared that there were 20,000 German societies connected with the alliance.

Senator King asked the witness if the official bulletin had said anything editorially or otherwise justifying the American cause in entering the war against Germany. The answer was that nothing approving America's entry into the conflict or approving the course it led up to appeared. The only thing like a friendly expression he found was a declaration that "as long as this country is in the war we Germans must submit to the verdict of the Government."

At former Congressman Bartholdt's home, 4066 Flora boulevard, it was said last night that he had gone to Washington.

KENTUCKIAN WHO WORKED HERE KILLS WOMAN AND SELF IN OHIO

Tragedy Occurs After Mother of Three Refuses to Come Here After Deserting Husband.

CINCINNATI, Feb. 23.—William Beck, 38 years old, of Covington, Ky., a second-hand furniture man, who recently was employed in a store at 1928 Franklin avenue, St. Louis, shot and killed Mrs. Anna Riley, 30, of Covington, and himself in the Grand Hotel here today.

Mrs. Riley's infant, 7 months old, was crying in the room when the two bodies were found. Insurance policies indicated that she had two other children. She is said to have left her husband in order to meet Beck here, but to have refused to go to St. Louis with him, and this refusal caused the killing, according to a note which Beck left to his family. He was a widower.

DRINK HOT WATER BEFORE BREAKFAST

Says you really feel clean, sweet and fresh inside, and are seldom ill.

If you are accustomed to wake up with a coated tongue, foul breath or a dull, dizzy headache; or, if your meals sour and turn into gas and acids, you have a real surprise awaiting you.

Tomorrow morning, immediately upon arising, drink a glass of hot water with a teaspoonful of limestone phosphate in it. This is intended to first neutralize and then wash out of your stomach, liver, kidneys and intestines all the indigestible waste, poisons, sour bile and toxins, thus cleansing, sweetening and purifying the entire alimentary canal.

Those subject to sick headaches, backache, bilious attacks, constipation or any form of stomach trouble, are urged to get a quarter pound of limestone phosphate from the drug store and begin enjoying this morning inside-bath. It is said that men and women who try this become enthusiastic and keep it up daily. It is a splendid health measure for it is more important to keep clean and pure on the inside than on the outside, because the skin pores do not absorb impurities into the blood, causing disease, while the bowel pores do.

The principle of bathing inside is not new, as millions of people practice it. Just as hot water and soap cleanse, purify and freshen the skin, so hot water and a teaspoonful of limestone phosphate act on the stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels. Limestone phosphate is an inexpensive white powder and almost tasteless.—ADV.

ST. LOUIS WOMAN AIDS ARREST OF ST. LOUISAN AS ALLEGED SPY

Blueprints and Other Drawings Found on Charles Beck, Held by Police at Leavenworth.

LEAVENWORTH, Kan., Feb. 23 (By A. P.).—Charles Beck, 32 years old, whose home is said to have been in St. Louis, was arrested by B. T. Glynn, Chief of Police of Leavenworth, this afternoon, in the course of an interview arranged with him by Mrs. Lou R. Essex of St. Louis, who came here to take part in the conduct of community houses. Beck is charged with having in his possession papers which, the police say, may prove he is a German spy. He is being held for investigation.

Beck, who has been working at the Great Western machine shops here, is said by the police to have made application to the Federal Government to be appointed an inspector of munitions and to have represented himself as being a secret service man operating under Government orders. The police say he wore a secret service badge and that John Gilhen, an intelligence officer from Kansas City, this afternoon, disproved his claims.

Blueprints of a torpedo marked "operation 9.2 in. mark 1 X, Nova Scotia Steel and Coal Co., New Glasco, N. S.," blueprint plans of cantonments and other drawings were found on his person, according to the police.

ALLEGED "TORCH" IS ARRESTED

Says He Failed to Appear for Trial Because He Enlisted.

Morris Greenberg, 24 years old, of 1404 North Grand avenue, indicted as one of the alleged "torches" in the Christen Bellows factory arson conspiracy case, and who failed to appear for trial week before last, is held by the police for his bondsmen, who had obtained his release on a $200 bond. He was wearing a sailor's uniform when arrested Friday night. He explained his failure to appear by saying he enlisted in the navy Dec. 17, last, and had been unable to get a furlough in time to return for the trial.

1,500,000 ARMY UNIFORMS MADE HERE SINCE JUNE

Medical Society Speaker Discloses Unusual Activity in Washington Avenue Shops.

WORKERS ARE WELL PAID

Girls Who Got $7 a Week Before War Now Earn From $25 to $30.

Members of the St. Louis Medical Society, at their meeting last night at 3525 Pine street, were surprised when Capt. T. W. Van Schoiack, purchasing agent here for the Quartermaster Department, stated that approximately 1,500,000 army uniforms had been made since last June by women's wear manufacturers on Washington avenue.

Capt. Van Schoiack made this disclosure in his address, which was one of eight on St. Louis' activities in the war. Seven of the speakers were officers in as many branches of Government service.

Another interesting disclosure made by Capt. Van Schoiack is that in many factories girls who before the war received $7 a week are now getting $25, and some as much as $30 a week.

In dicussing interesting phases of the activities of the Quartermaster Department through the St. Louis Arsenal, Capt. Van Schoiack, who spoke in the absence of Col. W. T. Calrk, Depot Quartermaster at the Arsenal said:

"The Quartermaster's Department has to do with the feeding, clothing, transporting and paying of the army, and the St. Louis Depot performs these functions for Camp Funston, Kan.; Camp Pike, Ark.; Camp Doniphan and Fort Sill, Ok. And if there is anything that no one else wants to do, the Quartermaster Department usually does it.

St. Louis' Largest Institution.

"The St. Louis Depot has 23 officers, 129 inspectors and 550 clerks on its staff and because of the immense purchases made, has become the largest single industrial institution in St. Louis.

"Without quoting you the figures I can say that millions are being spent each week by this St. Louis depot. Since last June, 1,500,000 army uniforms have been made by Washington avenue concerns. Many factories here now are devoting all their time to war work. For example, there is a cabinet manufacturer who now is using his plant for making tent poles, and it is not unusual for him to handle an order for 1,000,000 feet of tent poles.

"The working men and women of the city have benefited by this transtransformation. In many of the factories, where the girls formerly received $7 a week, they now get $25, and as high as $30 a week, and this reflects prosperity in all professions and trades.

The Post-Dispatch on Feb. 7, published the fact that $10,500,000 of war materials were being purchased monthly in St. Louis. This announcement was made by a Government official, who for obvious reasons could not permit use of his name, and followed an official survey to determine the effect of the street car strike on war work.

Amounts of Money Expended

Congress has appropriated $8,853,727,610.72 for expenditures by the five purchasing departments of the Quartermaster Department, Capt. Van Schoiack said, and as an indication of the enormity of this amount he pointed out that it is 40 times the cost of the Spanish-Ameriican war, and two and a half times the cost of the Civil War. In addition to this, he said, $500,000,000 iss being spent each month, making a total of $14,000,000,000 which will have been expended by the War Departmen for manufactured articles.

The value of cloth purchased by the Quartermaster Department, the Captain said, was equal to the cost of six buildings like the Railway Exchange building, or six state capitols buildings similar to the one recently completed at Jefferson City. Measured, the cloth amounted to 250,821,089 yards long, or 142,512 miles, and it would be possible by sewing the cloth together to wrap a bandage around the earth five times.

The St. Louis Depot has 60 inspectors in as many plants in St. Louis supervising the filling of war orders, said the Captain. He added that 6,750,000 pounds of food is used each day by the United States Army. This figure includes 275,000 cans of condensed milk, 225,000 jars of jam and 130,000 cans of tomatoes.

Preparing Medical History.

Maj. H. W. Loeb, dean of the St. Louis University Medical School and member of the Medical Reserves Corps, detailed at the Surgeon-General's office in Washington for three months, spoke on the "Literary Activities of the Surgeon-General's Office." He said that the medical history of the present war is being written from day to day by a staff of men especially assigned to the work in Washington.

This, he pointed out is in direct contrast to the medical histories of wars in the past, which have taken years to write. The history of the revolutionary war took 28 years to write, Maj. Loeb related, and the history of the Franco-Prussian war took 22 years to complete.

The medical history of two cantonments which have ben abandoned by the Government has been written and is ready for compilation when the Government calls for the information. The Surgeon-General's office sends out each month to the men in the trenches a series of pamphlets on medical progress in the war. A number of interesting books also have been written on war subjects, one of them entitled "What We Can Learn From the Enemy."

Maj. Loeb is writing a book on ear, nose and throat treatment in its relation to the war. He is one of a number of men who have been commissioned by the Surgeon-General to prepare medical treatises on various subjects.

Lieutenant-Commander E. A. Brooks, in charge of the naval recruiting here, told of the recruiting campaign conducted in St. Louis and throughout the State, and said that 67 per cent of the St. Louis men who have enlisted int he navy in St. Louis since the war began have been made commissioned and non-commissioned officers. Before the war the percentage of young St. Louisans who later received promotion was 22 per cent. He attributed this increase to the "very high order of men who have been enlisted in the navy since the war began."

Maj. George W. Goode, in charge of army recruiting here, described the work of getting men for the regular army, and said that between 20 and 30 men are being enlisted here each day.

Capt. C. H. Hammond, detained here as recruiting officer for the aviation corps, spoke on "recruiting Aviators;" Lieutenant-Colonel H. D. McBride told of the Home Guard and Dr. John Young Brown outlined the activities of the General Medical Board of the Council of National Defense, of which he is a member.

TOBACCO WORKERS DRAWN TO UNION BY CAR STRIKE

NEARLY 4000 ELIGIBLE

International Leader Says Victory Against United Railways Spread Organization Sentiment.

In pursuance of the plan of labor leaders to organize new branches of St. Louis industry and commerce, about 700 employes of the Liggett & Myers Tobacco Co. were enrolled last night, in a meeting at Central Trades Hall, 2228 Olive stret, as members of the Tobacco Workers' International Union. The girls present, about 60 in number, were among the first to pay the $1 initiation fee.

The number of tobacco workers in the city eligible to membership in the new local is about 4000, most of whom work for Liggett & Myers. The organization will have a separate charter from the present union of tobacco workers in this city, which has been in existence about 25 years and has a membership of about 300.

Anthony McAndrew of Cincinnati, president of the international organization arrived here Friday, at the request of David Kreyling, secretary of the Central Trades and Labor Union. He addressed the meeting.

Inspired by Carmen's Victory.

When asked by a Post-Dispatch reporter how the new local tobacco union came into being, President McAndrew said:

"Street-car men are usually the last class of workers to organize, and when they come into the fold we sit up and take notice, for we consider a city a good trades union community which has a carmen's union. The new street-car men's union in St. Louis has created a tremendous sentiment for organization among all classes of workers, for nothing impresses the cause of labor upon the workingman's mind as a street-car strike which makes him walk to work; and while walking the worker will think."

Several tobacco workers said that the twist makers started the agitation for a union when they were recently taken off piece work and placed on a 10-hour day basis, at a regular rate of pay based on their best work as piece workers.

One man stated that the company, which formerly paid 30¼ cents for 100 small twists, which sold for 5 cents each, refuses to pay more than 50 cents to the worker for making 100 large twists, which sell for 10 cents each. He said it requires twice the time to make 100 large twists as it does to make the same number of the smaller size.

The new local will meet Wednesday night in New Club Hall, Thirteenth street and Chouteau avenue, to elect officers and appoint a committee to prepare a wage scale and schedule of working conditions for presentation to the company.

Largest Unit Ever Taken In.

The headquarters of the Tobacco Workers' International Union is at Louisville, Ky. President McAndrew stated that the organization had only 3700 members in the United States until last night, and that the Liggett & Myers employes constituted the largest unit ever taken in. He said the organization would begin at once to unionize the American Tobacco Co., Richmond, Va., which has 20,000 workers; the R. J. Reynolds Co., with 4000 employes, at Winston Salem, N. C., and the Bull Durham Co., with 3000 employes, at Durham, N. C. He said the Lorillard Co., at Middletown, O., with 400 employes, was unionized last November.

Another national labor organizer is in St. Louis this week to demand increased wages for shoe workers. He is P. E. Turner of the United Shoe Workers of America, a union working independent of the American Federation of Labor.

Joseph Woracek, president of the Central Trades and Labor Union and business agent of the Boot and Shoe Workers' Union, which is affiliated with the American Federation of Labor, stated that members of the shoe union he represents have received since Jan. 1 substantial and satisfactory increases in wages through contracts proffered by the union and signed by the employers.

CAPTAIN OF AMERICAN BORDER PATROL SHOT BY MEXICANS

Unless Sniping Ceases, it Is Said Force Will Be Sent Over Line to Exterminate Them.

EL PASO, Te., Feb. 23 (By A. P.)—Unless sniping by Mexican Federal troops at American border patrol ceases at once, retalitory measures will be carried out and United States troops will be ordered to cross the line and exterminate the snipers, it became known here tonight following the shooting of Capt. J. N. Marx of the Border Patrol, this afternoon.

Capt. Marx was riding along the border in the eastern suburbs of the city when he inadvertently crossed the boundry line, which was not clearly definite at that point. Mexican snipers opened fire on the patrol at once. Capt. Marx was shot in the right leg and his mount wounded so badly it had to be killed.

An enlisted man was seen to fall when the snipers fired but investigation proved he was only thrown from his horse. The American patrol returned the fire but it was not known whether anyone was hit.

BLACKWELDER OUT FOR HIS CRITICISM OF DR. BOSTWICK

Offered to Quit When He Complained; Fired by Chief Before Library Board Acted.

In connection with the "resignation" of Paul A. Blackwelder of 1275 Hamilton avenue as Assistant Public Librarian of St. Louis, the Post-Dispatch learned yesterday that Blackwelder was "fired" by the Librarian, Dr. Arthur E. Bostwick of 76 Vandeventer place, before the board of directors had an opportunity to pass upon Blackwelder's proffered resignation.

Dr. Bostwick, upon his return a few days ago from a three weeks' trip to California, learned that in his absence his assistant had filed written complaint with two members of the board of directors, in which, among other things, it was charged that the Public Library was not being conducted efficiently. Forthwith Dr. Bostwick sent a letter to Blackwelder at his home, by special messenger, notifying him that he had been fired.

Told Not to Report Again.

In the letter Dr. Bostwick cited a section of the library by-laws which authorizes him to order such a discharge. He informed Blackwelder that it would "not be necessary" to report again at the library, and requested him to send in his keys.

Blackwelder, however, put in his appearance later at the Central Library, Fourteenth and Olive streets. He met Dr. Bostwick in the hall, and the librarian immediately announced that he was "not in any mood" to talk about the matter.

Blackwelder, in the latter part of last year, was at Camp Pike, Ark., installing a library. Following his return Dr. Bostwick left for California about the middle of January. It was while Dr. Bostwick was away that Blackwelder spoke to two members of the board about features of the management of the library which he considered open to criticism. These members suggested that he submit to the board a written statement covering the points about which he complained. He wrote a lengthy criticism and in conclusion stated that he presumed the board, in view of his criticism of his superior, would accept his resignation. Upon Dr. Bostwick's return he learned of Blackwelder's action.

Resignation Accepted Feb. 15.

The fact did not become public until yesterday, when the board announced that Blackwelder had submitted his resignation on Feb. 15 and that it had been accepted at that time.

To a Post-Dispatch reporter Dr. Bostwick said he had no statement to make other than that "Blackwelder had tendered his resignation Feb. 15 and that the board had accepted it at once."

Blackwelder is in Kansas City and will not return to St. Louis until the middle of the week. Efforts to reach him by long-distance telephone at a hotel there were unsuccessful. He had been assistant librarian for nearly 12 years, having joined the staff as assistant to the late Frederick M. Crunden. Before that he was principal of the Washington public school. He is 39 years old, and he received a salary of $4000 a year as assistant librarian.

Woman Appointed Medical Officer For Public Libraries.

The maintenance of sanitary conditions in the public libraries will hereafter be under the supervision of Dr. Harriet Stevens of 5899 Nina place, whose appointment as medical officer for the library was announced yesterday by the board of directors. All applicants for library staff positions will be examined by Dr. Stevens before being assigned to work. Other new regulations, including the regular examination of all members of the library staff once each year, were announced.

COL. HUNTER, FORMERLY CAPTAIN AT BARRACKS, COMMANDANT

Called From Retirement to Take Charge of Post as Successor of Col. Murray.

Col. George K. Hunter, who was a captain at Jefferson Barracks for five years, from 1892 to 1897, is back as Commandant, having taken charge of the post yesterday as the successor of Col. C. H. Murray, who departed two weeks ago. He has been called from retirement after only two weeks and is in civilian dress pending the arrival of his trunks.

When Col. Hunter left the Barracks in 1897 he went with his regiment to Fort Ethan Allen in Vermont. At the outbreak of the war with Spain the Third Cavalry, in which he was a captain, was sent to Cuba. His family remained in St. Louis. In the charge at San Juan hill, Capt. Hunter was shot through the leg and was sent home. When he recovered he rejoined the regiment which was sent in 1900 to the Philippines. In 1901 Capt. Hunter was promoted to Major and assigned to the Sixth Cavalry, then stationed at Fort Meade, S. D. In 1906 he was promoted to Lieutenant-Colonel.

From 1914 to 1917 he was inspector-general of the Central Department, with headquarters in Chicago. At the first draft call he was made brigadier-general and sent to Camp Funston. From there he went to Camp Greene, S. C., resuming his rank as Colonel. On account of illinois he was retired Feb. 1.

William Shakespeare remains not only a literary but a box office success. The perennial popularity of his plays was proved by Robert B. There was no rival attraction during the week.

The attendance was approximately 16,000. The house was twice sold out, for the "Macbeth" performance Friday night and the "Merchant of Venice" matinee yesterday afternoon. The other Shakespearean plays produced were "Hamlet," "Romeo and Juliet" and "King Lear." Two other authors were represented in the week's repertory, Lord Lytton with "Richelieu" and Delavigne with "Louis XI." The receipts were double those of Mantell's last engagement here, five years ago.

The Ziegfeld Follies, at the same theater last season, had receipts of about $31,000 in a week. The Follies had a top price of $2.50 a seat, while Mantell played at a top price of $1.50

OACH DEFENDS METHODS

ays McAllister's Reference to "Paper and Pencil Valuation" Is Uncalled For.

y a Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, Feb. 23.—A atement issued tonight by the tate Tax Commission, setting forth he results of its work, is taken as he reply of the Gardner adminis-ation to the fight which Attorney-eneral McAllister and some others ave been making on the Governor's x-reform program. The statement meant to show why the Governor's x measures should have the sup-ort of the State Board of Equaliza-on and the Legislature.

The statement declares that the ght more than $300,000,000 worth ax Commission has brought to property which has escaped taxa-on in previous years. In more than 00 of the 114 counties of the State, is declared, the County Assessors ave made a sincere and successful ffort to establish a 100 per cent ba-s of property valuation, as required y State law.

As to several of the other counties nd the city of St. Louis, disappoint-ent is expressed. The return of t. Louis, received from Assessor Vollbrinck Friday, was $694,161,750, nly 7 per cent higher than the re-urn made a year before. The five ounties of which complaint is made re Jackson, which contains Kansas ity; Buchanan, which contains St. oseph; Jasper, which includes Jop-n; Marion and Monroe, the last-amed being McAllister's home ounty. Monroe County increased s assessment only about 5 per ent over the previous year.

To Recommend Increases.

As has been announced, the Tax ommission will recommend to the tate Board of Equalization that the ssessments of St. Louis and the five ounties be increased materially to ring them into line with the coun-es which have fulfilled the 100 per ent requirement.

The members of the Board of qualization are the Governor, At-orney-General, Secretary of State, tate Treasurer and Auditor.

Pettis County, where Secretary of tate Sullivan lives, increased its as-essment from $13,597,280 to $44,-37,380, or more than 220 per cent. Varren and Lincoln counties, where uditor Hackmann and Treasurer Middlekamp live, have also brought heir assements up to the 100 per ent mark. It is pointed out that hese three members, if they voted gainst raising the assessments of t. Louis and the five counties in uestion, would be placed in the atti-ude of voting that St. Louis and the ve counties should be taxed less eavily than their own home coun-es.

Methods of Discovery.

Chairman Roach of the Tax Com-ission, in the statement, said the ommission had spent more than 90 er cent of its time in the effort to iscover property never before as-essed. He explained some of the ethods used in discovering this roperty.

"We enlisted the aid of every of-icial agency in locating property hat was escaping taxation," he said. Assessors were instructed to search he mortgage records and to go hrough the chattel mortgage rec-rds which are filed with county re-orders.

"They also were instructed to have very taxpayer not only make a list f what he owned, but also of what e owed. If he had borrowed money rom another man, the Assessor ade a note of the name and ad-ress of the lender. If he did not ve in the Assessor's county, the ame, address and amount of the oan was forwarded to the Tax Com-ission and sent to the Assessor of he county in which the lender re-ides.

Grand Juries Assisted.

"All Circuit Judges were instruct-d to have grand juries investigate idden wealth. Some of them, by starting investigations, forced large sums of money to be returned for assessment.

"Attorney-General McAllister's charge that some Assessors had made 'paper and pencil valuations' is uncalled for," Roach said.

"The estimate of ratios at which property was assessed in the various counties last year was obtained from other county officials. When totaled, the various items are increased to the full value standard, and added, they tally with the Assessor's new valuation, which also includes the new property uncovered."

For example, in Adair County, the list is certified by the County Clerk, whose political interests, the commission points out, certainly would not be served by underestimating the proportion. The report from Adair County shows that in the previous year notes and bonds were assessed at 50 per cent, banks 50 per cent, livestock 33 per cent, acreage at 20 per cent and town lots at 25 per cent.

Increases in Counties.

By bringing the amount under each item in that county to the 100 per cent standard and adding the aggregate, the Tax Commission finds that the Assessor has brought the whole county to a 100 per cent valuation, and has added $2,500,000 which is composed of property heretofore not assessed. The valuation of Adair County in 1915 was $8,045,-664. The new assessment is $25,-421,120, the increase being more than 200 per cent. Adair is only an average county.

The proportion of increase in some counties is much greater. Schuyler County is increased from $3,773,896 to $15,275,150, an increase of more than 300 per cent. Platte County is increased from $7,730,100 to $29,-525,750. St. Francois County is increased from $11,000,000 to $43,-000,000.

Poem Considered by John Masefield to Be the Best Yet Inspired by War

THE poem, "Into Battle," which John Masefield considers the best inspired by the war, written by Capt. Julian Grenfall, who was killed in action in the first year of the conflict, follows:

The naked earth is warm with spring,
And with green grass and bursting trees,
Leans to the sun's gaze glorying,
And quivers in the sunny breeze;
And life is color and warmth and light,
And a striving evermore for these;
And he is dead who will not fight;
And who dies fighting has increase.

The fighting man shall from the sun
Take warmth, and life from the glowing earth;
Speed with the light-foot winds to run,
And with the trees to newer birth;
And find, when fighting shall be done,
Great rest, and fullness after dearth.

All the bright company of heaven
Hold him in their high comradeship,
The Dog-star and the Sisters Seven,
Orion's belt and sworded hip.

The woodland trees that stand together,
They stand to him each one a friend,
They gently speak in windy weather;
They guide to valley and ridges' end.

The kestrel hovering by day,
And the little owls that call by night,
Bid him be swift and keen as they,
As keen of ear, as swift of sight.

The blackbird sings to him, "Brother, brother,
If this be the last song you shall sing,
Sing well, for you may not sing another;
Brother, sing."

In dreary, doubtful waiting hours,
Before the brazen frenzy starts,
The horses show him nobler powers;
O patient eyes, courageous hearts!

And when the burning moment breaks,
And all things else are out of mind,
And only joy of battle takes
Him by the throat, and makes him blind—

Through joy and blindness he shall know,
Not caring much to know, that still,
Nor lead nor steel shall reach him, so
That it be not the Destined Will.

The thundering line of battle stands,
And in the air death moans and sings;
But day shall clasp him with strong hands,
And night shall fold him with soft wings.

MASEFIELD NAMES WHAT HE THINKS IS BEST WAR POEM

"Into Battle," by Capt. Julian Grenfall, Now Dead, Selected by English Writer.

CRITICISES MORBID POETS

Believes Majority of Somber Writers Know Nothing of Actual Combat.

When John Masefield, the widely known English poet and war historian, who came here Friday on a lecture tour, was asked by a Post-Dispatch reporter what he considered the best poem inspired by the war, he unhesitatingly named "Into Battle," written by Capt. Julian Grenfell of the Royal Dragoons, son of a noble English family, who was killed in the first year of the conflict. Capt. Grenfell had won the Distinguished Service Order.

As in all poetry that comes of actual contact with battle, Masefield remarked, the sentiment was vigorous and not morbid.

He does not believe that the great poetry on the war will be written until time has permitted reflection and affordd the needed perspective. Now it is too big and too near.

Best Poems Yet to Come.

The time for good poetry, he declared, is not while war is going on. For one thing, poets are the kind of men who are too busy helping win the war to have time to write great poetry about it.

The poets who write about the horrors of war, he said, are those who had not seen it and knew nothing about it by contact with it. The result is that they do not give a true description of it.

Next to the work of Capt. Grenfell, in Masefield's opinion, is that of Francis Ledwidge, a young Irish private who was killed on the west front a year ago. Others next in merit, he thinks, are Robert Graves, Sigfried Sassoon and Robert Nichols, all British officers. Sassoon recently won the military cross for gallantry. His best poem, Masefield thinks, is "The Old Huntsman." Graves' best, he thinks, is "Fairies and Fusilliers."

"This war is horrible," Masefield said, "yet not horrible either. It is too big and too interesting to be really horrible. The great feeling about it is wonder that it could happen in this century. It doesn't belong, yet here it is."

Masefield War Poem.

Masefield, in 1914, was widely credited with having written the best poem of the war, a part of which follows:

Ye heard the news and went discouraged home,
And brooded by the fire with heavy mind,
With such dumb loving of the Berkshire loam
As breaks the dumb hearts of the English kind.

Then sadly rose and left the well-loved downs,
And so, by ship to sea, and knew no more
The fields at home, the byres, the market towns,
Nor the dear outline of the English shore.

Masefield will depart from St. Louis today. He is writing for the British Government the official history of the battle of the Somme, the important phases of which he witnessed, and has completed a 25,000-word preface to it.

M'ADOO PROMISES TO TRANSPORT ALL FOOD AS OFFERED

He Says if There Is Shortage of Cars It Is Because of Lack of Specific Requests for Them.

HAS PLENTY FOR WEST

Congestion Continues in East, but Situation There Is Less Serious.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 23 (By A. P.).—Prompt adjustment of railroad transportation to the country's good needs, as Food Administrator Hoover may demonstrate them, was promised today by Director General McAdoo, who reiterated his statement of yesterday that practically all of the food offered for movement by farmers and food dealers is being transported.

Railroad administration officials pointed to the report that virtually no ships in New York harbor are held up by lack of food cargoes as proof that the movement of foodstuffs is satisfactory. Some ships are detained at South Atlantic and Gulf ports, they said, because grain merchants of the West are not loading cars as rapidly as has been expected.

Car Shortage Complaints Continue.

Reports to the Food Administration continue to tell of shortage of cars, however, particularly for transportation of grain products eastward from Western primary markets. The railroad administrator offered the explanation that if this condition exists it must be caused by failure of the shippers or the food administration to make specific requests for cars.

The danger of a serious food shortage in the East to which Hoover referred two days ago in his statement, which precipitated extensive public discussion of the relations between high prices of food in the East and railroad transportation, was emphasized less today by the Food Administrator.

Replying to a letter from McAdoo promising to provide for every food shipment to which his attention was called by the Food Administration, Hoover said: "I am certain that this assurance from you will greatly quiet the growing apprehension in the country of the last few weeks."

McAdoo replied to this letter by saying that Hoover had failed to point to specific cases of failure of railroads to move food shipments and repeated his request of yesterday. Both officials explained that their relations were entirely friendly and that their efforts to clarify the food and transportation situation did not represent a controversy either in fact or in spirit.

McAdoo's Promise to Hoover.

In one paragraph of his latest letter McAdoo wrote:

"If you will notify me from time to time of the location of the specific supplies and the port or ports in the United States to which you wish to have such supplies transported, I will guarantee the necessary transportation subject alone to interruption from blizzards and floods."

Congestion on Eastern lines was only slightly improved today over yesterday. Reports to the railroad administration declared there were 43,970 eastbound loaded cars more than normal on Eastern lines. Other classes above normal were: Eastbound empties 4115; westbound loads 31,102, and westbound empties, 17,-718.

FORCED SAVING OF FOOD IS DECLARED TO BE NECESSARY

Bill Giving President Power to Regulate Manufacture and Distribution Favorably Reported.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 23 (By A. P.).—Compulsory food conservation is necessary in the opinion of members of the House Agricultural Committee, which today submitted its report on the bill giving the President power to regulate public eating houses and the distribution and manufacture of foodstuffs. The bill does not directly affect householders.

The report recalls that the President has no power to enforce economy in consumption under the existing food law and that the success of conservation plans depends entirely upon the voluntary co-operation of the people. The appeals to save food have met with gratifying results, the report says, and adds, "but there is a small per cent of people who either willfully or for lack of understanding fail to respond to the call made for patriotic duty.

Situation Becomes Serious.

"The food situation as it affects us and our allies," the report continues, "is becoming so critically serious as to warrant the committee in the belief that the necessity is upon us of adopting compulsory methods of conservation in certain well-defined directions. It would be foolish for us to shut our eyes to the facts. It would be cowardly in us to fail to attack the problem of waste in foodstuffs in the most vigorous manner.

"The bill is designed to meet a situation which is closely allied to conservation. If we ship to Europe all of our exportable surplus of certain foods, there is never going to be more than just enough of such foods available for consumption in the United States. In order to prevent local shortage, it is necessary that this normal supply be distributed with absolute equality throughout the country, and such distribution is further essential in order to enable the best possible use of our surplus products. From time to time there may be temporary shortages in certain foods. In such a case the President should have power to control the distribution in such a way that the shortage is spread out as evenly as possible."

In discussing public eating house control, it is charged in the report that the consumption, particularly in "high-priced restaurants and hotels," per capita is nearly double of normal.

Regulations to Effect Savings.

"The bill authorizes regulations to eliminate unnecessary use of essential foodstuffs by manufacturers of food products," said the report. "It would be possible to effect a great saving in food products by requirements for higher milling or the mixture of ingredients in bread which cannot be so readily shipped abroad."

Although it does not authorize a rationing system for consumers, in the language of the report, "it would permit the President to limit the amount of any given product which may be shipped into a particular district or delivered to a particular distributor. The President can, in effect, ration the distributions so that a threatened shortage can be spread out as evenly as possible throughout the entire country."

PUBLIC SCHOOL THRIFT SALES FOR WEEK TOTAL $9719.07

Prof. Rathmann Says Purchases Are Now Being Made Through Self-Denial and Labor.

The public school thrift sales campaign for the week ending Feb. 21 amounted to $9719.07, with four schools to report. This was a short week, in that there was only four school days, Washington's birthday being a holiday in the public schools.

"The thrift average in the public schools," said Prof. Carl G. Rathmann, who has charge of the War Savings campaign in the public schools, "is maintaining its high standard. Notwithstanding that this was the week given over to the organizing of the Junior Red Cross in the public schools, the children continued to practice economy and thrift.

"In the first weeks of the campaign the children had various sources from which to draw that are now exhausted—their own coin savings banks and gifts from relatives and friends. The thrift stamp purchases are now being made through self-denial—the cutting out of movies, candy and chewing gum—and from the results of their own labor which is, after all, the most effective from an educational viewpoint."

TERMINAL APPEALS CASE ON ACCOUNT OF 'PLAYFUL' REMARKS

Contends That Judge Dyer Prejudiced Jury in Recent $10,000 Damage Suit.

The Terminal Railway Association appealed yesterday from the verdict of a jury in the United States District Court Feb. 15, giving Carlton A. Munger of Alton damages of $10,-000 for injuries received in 1914.

The appeal is based on the ground that Judge Dyer made remarks in instructing the jury that were prejudicial to the defendant's case. The Judge told the jurors that he had prepared no written instruction and would do as an old preacher did down in Lincoln County, speak to them as the spirit moved him.

Attorney Pierce, for the Terminal, excepted to the remark and the Judge reiterated it, afterwards telling the jurymen it was "playful."

Eczema is called by some people itch, Tetter, Salt Rheum, Pruritus, Milk Crust, Weeping Skin, etc. I am fully convinced Eczema is a curable disease, and when I say it can be cured, I mean just what I say—C-U-R-E-D, and not merely patched up for a while to return worse than before. POLICEMAN SHOOTS MAN WHO SHOT AT SLAYER OF FRIEND

Patrick Fleming Is Wounded After Attacking Lee Jackson, Who Killed Thomas Mullen.

Patrick Fleming, 22 years old, a machinist, of 6505 Chamberlin avenue, St. Louis County, was shot at 5 p. m. yesterday by Policeman John Womack of the Page District, on Bartmer avenue, a few feet inside the western city limits.

The shooting was the indirect result of a quarrel which resulted May 20, last, in the fatal shooting of Thomas Mullen by Lee Jackson of 3417 Franklin avenue.

Jackson told the police last night that Fleming, who was a friend of Mullen, had been "sore" at him since Mullen's death. He said he was standing at Bartmer and Ann avenues yesterday when Fleming called him across the street. When he got near, he said, Fleming drew a revolver. They scuffled for possession of it, a bullet being discharged through Jackson's overcoat, but not wounding him.

Policeman Womack was attracted, and Fleming ran. The policeman fired two shots in the air, when Fleming, according to Jackson and Womack, turned and fired once at the policeman. Then the policeman fired at Fleming, the one shot striking him in the back. He was taken to the City Hospital in a serious condition.

The shooting of Mullen occurred in front of 6200 Bartmer avenue, near where yesterday's affair happened. Jackson was released by the Prosecuting Attorney.

EPISCOPAL CHURCH MISSION CAMPAIGN OPENS TODAY

Out-of-Town Speakers Will Occupy Pulpits of 24 Churches in St. Louis.

The city-wide mission campaign of the Episcopal churches will begin this morning, when the Rev. Dr. R. W. Patton, secretary of the Episcopal Church Board of Missions for the Southern States, will occupy the pulpit at St. Peter's Church, Lindell boulevard and Spring avenue.

The campaign will consist of a week of conferences. Out-of-town speakers will occupy the pulpits of the 24 Episcopal churches at the morning and evening services today. The purpose is to stimulate every department of parish life.

"There is a particular need for this at this time because of the challenge made to the church by the war," said Dr. Patton. "Similar mission campaigns have been carried on in Chicago, New York, Richmond, Va.; Atlanta, Ga.; throughout Mississippi, and many other Eastern and Southern cities. We are now planning to make a campaign in Kansas and Denver and other Western points."

A dinner will be given at Moolah Temple Thursday evening. There will also be a combined Sunday-school meeting at 3:30 this afternoon at Christ Church Cathedral, Thirteenth and Locust streets.

The meeting will be followed by a luncheon at the Statler Hotel.

The meeting is to explain the campaign for the Third Liberty Loan drive, which will open April 1. It is proposed to have every state and county thoroughly organized before the opening of the drive.

There will be a meeting of the State Liberty Loan Organization at the Hotel Statler Wednesday, under direction of Mrs. Theodore Benoist, chairman of Missouri. Mrs. Benoist has called the district and county chairmen to outline the plans for the campaign and to give instructions for strengthening the district and county organizations.

Eugene L. Thompson Had Persuaded Ward Board to Give Him Deferred Classification.

Eugene L. Thompson of 5441 Von Versen avenue, who was married a week ago Thursday, 18 days after the Twenty-eighth Ward draft board had placed him in class 1 for limited service, and who then presuaded the ward board to put him in class 4 because of his dependent wife, was put back into class 1 yesterday by the District Appeal Board.

Thompson is now in the last 15 per cent of the last draft, which is scheduled to depart for camp a week from tomorrow.

In appealing the case to the District Board, Douglas W. Robert, Government Attorney for the Twenty-eighth Ward, said the ward board was putting all married men in class 4, regardless of the date of their marriage or their financial state. The law, he pointed out, states that all marriages since May 18 last shall be closely scrutinized. He asked that the district board act immediately, so that another man would not have to take Thompson's place in the contingent leaving next week.

In order to relieve President Wilson from passing on many claims that need never be appealed to him, the Provost Marshal General at Washington has issued an official interpretation upon the rules governing discretionary powers of the Governor of the State, the Adjutant General and the Government appeal attorneys.

The ruling says that the Governor, Adjutant or appeal agent may suggest to the district or local boards the reopening of cases, the consideration of new evidence or the reclassification of a registrant. A registrant or any other interested persons may file new evidence or additional affidavits in support of his claim at any time before the registrant is sent to camp. The telegram stated that the President will not, in any appeal to him, consider evidence that has not been considered by the local and district boards.

SALARY RAISING BY RAILROADS IS HALTED BY M'ADOO

Curtailment of Interstate Free Passes Also Planned by Director-General.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 23 (By A. P.).—Steps toward economy involving future curtailment of many intra-state free passes, restriction of new high-salaried positions and limitation of overhead expense in railway financing, were taken today by the Railroad Administration.

At the suggestion of Government railroad officials, the Interstate Commerce Commission ordered roads to report fully, by March 25, detailed information concerning their practices in issuing intra-state passes. Owing to the lack of uniformity of state laws and the variety of customs of railroads, there is no common policy for the whole country on administering pass privileges. Consequently, roads were asked to tell how many passes they issued last year, to what classes of persons and for what services. They were required to report the states in which it is legal to give passes in exchange for newspaper and magazine advertising.

Railroad Administration officials said this information would be digested and probably would result in issuance of orders limiting issuance of passes, supplementing the Director-General's recent order imposing Federal interstate restrictions relating to passes on intra-state traffic.

In addition, the Director-General wrote to presidents of roads asking them to report to the Interstate Commerce Commission items of expense involved in maintaining New York offices for administering their individual financial affairs. It was explained that this probably would be followed by action requiring railroads either to discontinue these offices, regarded as largely unnecessary under Government management and financing, or to pay the expenses out of the Government guarantee fund.

In a general order, Mr. McAdoo forbade railway companies from creating new offices or filling vacancies except when necessary, and advised consultation with the Director-General in cases of doubt. Monthly reports were required on increases of salaries to men receiving between $3000 and $10,000, and it was specified that vacancies in offices above the grade of general manager could be filled only with the Director-General's approval. These orders referred to officers whose salaries are charged to operating expenses, and including most of the highly paid men. This action was prompted by rumors that some roads were planning to create high salaried positions on the assumption that the salaries would be paid by the Government and that the railroads' compensation would not be diminished.

PEONY HYBRIDIZED AT SHAW'S GARDEN INTO GORGEOUS FLOWER

Double-Flowering Varieties Forced in Greenhouses Are Among Beauties on Display.

Hybridization of the peony until it stands a peer among flowers, gorgeous in new forms and colors, with masses of bloom surpassing in effect even the rose, fragrant, easily cultivated and comparatively free from disease and insect attacks, is one of the achievements at the Missouri Botanical Garden.

In the current number of the garden's bulletin there is an exhaustive sketch of the development of this ancient flower from the old-time red "piney" of which there were at one time about 2500 varieties. After years of painstaking effort by botanists, the varieties were simmered to 500 of clearly distinct type, most of them derived from the albiflora.

Both the herbaceous and tree peonies are forced in the greenhouses at the garden. The plants are lifted in September after completion of their growth, potted in rich soil and plunged into a cold frame, where they remain until about December. When first placed in the greenhouses a temperature of 40 to 45 degrees is maintained, being gradually raised to 55-60 degrees. Under this treatment, with frequnent applications of liquid manure, the tree peonies are forced in six weeks and the herbaceous kind in eight to 10 weeks, hence their flowering at this time. Double-flowering varieties are used for forcing, their flowers possessing longer keeping qualities.

Your Hauling Cost Per Mile

The difference between a quick trip and a slow trip often determines success of failure in the teaming business. Quick-moving teams make money. Slow pullers lose money.

In highly organized concerns the cost of doing business in every department is figured to the fraction of a cent. The same efficiency should apply to the teaming business. What is your hauling cost per mile?

No manufacturer would continue a method that is more than 25% wasteful, but that is what you are doing as long as you feed whole grain. The grain swallowed whole can not be digested. It passes on to the birds.

The vigorous, fast-moving, money-making horses are the well-nourished teams. The slow pullers are not to blame for their laziness. They are getting the wrong kind of feed.

The most economical and efficient feed for horses and mules is a sweet, crushed-grain ration properly balanced to produce sound bone, strong muscle, and energy. Such a feed is entirely utilized.

You will get better results from 4 tons of sweet, crushed-grain feed than you will from 5 tons of whole grain and at much lower cost. These results will be seen in the increased pulling power and better health of every animal.

You can now buy a sweet, crushed-grain balanced feed of standard quality under the Pilot Wheel brand. This brand is used only by our members. It guarantees you a good, wholesome feed.

The Story of a Drunkard Told by the Sister Who Secretly Cured Him

MISS FANNIE BROWN

New York.—For fifteen years my brother was a slave to alcohol. Every spare penny he got his hands on was spent over the bar. He earned a good salary, and for a while disguised his condition, but finally his employer began to notice and find fault. Then he fought against liquor, but his will power was too weak and he sank lower, until he lost his position. His friends turned him down, one after another, until he was left a wreck, and alone. Whisky was the cause of it all. He was kicked around from place to place, drunk practically all the time. He had reached the point where all he wanted or cared for was whisky; a point where he could not stop drinking on his own accord.

I was living abroad, and a friend of former days wrote me, telling of the pitiful condition of my brother. I consulted a famous chemist, who gave me a secret formula and told me if I could arrange to put it in his coffee, tea or food it would destroy the appetite for alcohol. I took the first steamer for New York, and when I found my brother he did not recognize me, and I hardly knew him. I immediately began to give the remedy without his knowledge. In a few days he seemed to be losing his appetite for drink. He tried different saloons in an effort to find one where whisky would taste right, but it was useless. Within a month he stopped drinking. All the desire had left him, the chains of alcohol slavery had been broken. His health began to improve, and soon he was a new man. He secured a splendid position, and the craving for liquor never returned. After eight years I told him how he had been cured and gave him the formula. I was afraid to tell him the secret before for fear he might return to drink.

I advise everyone who has a relative or friend addicted to the liquor habit in any form to use this prescription. It is harmless and marvelously effective. Just ask your druggist for prepared Tescum Powders; drop one powder twice a day in tea, coffee, milk or any food or drink. Each powder makes a dose. It is tasteless and odorless and cannot be detected by anyone.

NOTE—The manufacturers of prepared Tescum Powders, referred to above by Miss Brown, sell it through druggists under a steel-bound money-refund guarantee. It has been used by thousands since the formula was first made public and has brought immeasureable happiness to many homes. It is sold in St. Louis by Enderle, Johnson Bros., Pauley, Wolff-Wilson Drug Co. and others.—ADVERTISEMENT.

PRESIDENT FIXES 1918 WHEAT PRICE; $2.18 IN ST. LOUIS

APPEALS TO THE FARMERS

Declares Guarantee Will Assure Producer Reasonable Profit, Even if War Ends.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 23 (By A. P.).—President Wilson today raised the Government guaranteed price for the 1918 wheat crop to $2.28 a bushel in one primary market and in varying sums in all other primary markets except four. The Chicago price was put at $2.20.

Acting under authority of the food law, the President thus met the agitation in Congress for higher prices and took steps to stimulate production and prevent holding back the crop while the agitation was going on.

The prices fixed, the President declared, would assure the producer of a reasonable profit. On the basis of No. 1 northern spring wheat and its equivalents, the President fixed the prices as follows:

"Chicago, $2.20; Omaha, $2.15; Kansas City, $2.15; St. Louis, $2.18; New York, $2.28; Galveston, $2.20; New Orleans, $2.20; Fort Worth, Tex., $2.09; Oklahoma City, Ok., $2.05; Wichita, Kan., $2.08.

The equivalents of No. 1 northern to which the same price applies are No. 1 hard winter, No. 1 red winter, No. 1 durum and No. 1 hard white The wheat must be harvested in the United States during 1918 and sold in the market before June 1, 1919. The President's proclamation states that the action is to meet an emergency requiring stimulation of wheat planting.

In a statement, the President said:

"Under the food-control act of Aug. 10, 1917, it is my duty to announce a guaranteed price for wheat of the 1918 harvest. I am, therefore, issuing a proclamation setting the price at the principal interior primary markets. It makes no essential alteration in the present guarantee. It is a continuation of the present prices of wheat, with some adjustments arising from the designation of additional terminal marketing points.

"This guaranteed price assures the farmer of a reasonable profit, even if the war should end within the year and the large stores of grain in those sections of the world that are now cut off from transportation should again come into competition with his products. To increase the price of wheat above the present figure, or to agitate any increase in price, would have the effect of very seriously hampering the large operations of the nation and of the allies by causing the wheat of last year's crop to be withheld from the market. It would, moreover, dislocate all the present wage levels tha have been established after much anxious discussion and would, therefore, create an industrial unrest which would be harmful to every industry in the country.

"I know the spirit of our farmers and have not the least doubt as to the loyalty with which they will accept the present decision. The fall wheat planting, which furnishes two-thirds of our wheat production, took place with no other assurance than this and the farmers' confidence was demonstrated by the fact that they planted an acreage larger than the record of any preceding year, larger by 2,000,000 acres than the second largest record year, and 7,000,000 acres more than the average for the five years before the outbreak of the European war.

"It seems not to be generally understood why wheat is picked out for price determination and only wheat, among the cereals. The answer is that, while normal distribution of all our farm products has been subject to great disturbances during the last three years, because of war conditions, only two commodities, namely wheat and sugar, have been so seriously affected as to require governmental intervention.

Necessary to Stop Speculation.

"The disturbances which affect these products (and others in less degree) arise from the fact that all of the overseas shipping in the world is now under Government control and that the Government is obliged to assign tonnage to each commodity that enters into commercial overseas traffic. It has, consequently, been necessary to establish single agencies for the purchase of food supplies which must go abroad. The purchase of wheat in the United States for foreign use is of so great volume in comparison with the available domestic supply that the price of wheat has been materially disturbed and it became necessary, in order to protect both the producer and the consumer to prevent speculation. It was necessary, therefore, for the Government to exercise a measure of direct supervision as far as possible to control purchases of wheat and the processes of its exportation. This supervision necessarily amounted to price fixing and I therefore thought it fair and wise that there should be a price stated that should be at once liberal and equitable.

"Those peculiar circumstances governing the handling and consumption of wheat put the farmer at the very center of war service. Next to the soldier himself, he is serving the country and the world, and serving it in a way which is absolutely fundamental to his own future safety and prosperity. He sees this and can be relied upon as the soldier can.

"The farmer is also contributing men to the army, and I am keenly alive to the sacrifices involved. Out of 13,800,000 men engaged in farm industries, 205,000 have been drafted, or about 1.48 per cent of the whole number. In addition to these, there have been volunteers, and the farmers have lost a considerable number of laborers because the wages paid in industrial pursuits drew them away. In order to relieve the farming industry as far as possible from further drains of labor, the new draft regulations have been drawn with a view to taking from the farms an even smaller proportion of men and it is my hope that the local exemption boards will make the new classifications with a view of lightening the load upon the farmers to the utmost extent. The Secretary of War has asked for authority to furlough soldiers of the National Army if conditions permit it so that they may return to their farms when assistance is necessary in the planting and harvesting of the crops. National and local agencies are actively at work, besides, in organizing community help for the more efficient distribution of available labor and the drawing upon new sources of labor. While there will be difficulties, and very serious ones, they will be difficulties which are among the stern necessities of war.

All Agencies Co-Operating.

"The Federal railway administration is co-operating in the most active intelligent and efficient way with the food administration to remove the difficulties of transportation and of the active movement of the crops. The marketing is to be facilitated and farmers given the opportunity to realize promptly upon their stocks. The Department of Agriculture and the food administration will continue to co-operate as heretofore to assist the farmers in every way possible. All questions of production, of the marketing of farm products, of conservation in the course of production and of agricultural labor and farm problems generally, will be handled by the Department of Agriculture; while all questions of distribution of food supplies to the allies and of conservation in consumption will be handled by the food administration, but the chief reliance is upon the farmer himself and I am sure that reliance will be justified by the results. The chief thing to be kept clearly in mind is that regulations of this sort are only a part of the great general plan of mobilization into which every element in the nation enters in this war as in no other. The business of war touches everybody. It is a stern business, a co-operative business, a business of energy and sacrifice, a business of service in the largest and best and most stirring side of that great work."

In enacting the food-control law Congress put a guaranteed price of $2 on next season's crop and this has been construed as a minimum price. To draw wheat to market the President fixed a price of $2.20 on last season's yield and it had this effect until the price-raising bills were introduced. Then the flow began to decline.

MAN TAKEN WITH ELEVEN $50 LIBERTY BONDS IN POSSESSION

Two men arrested at Fourteenth street and Franklin avenue on suspicion at 5 p. m. yesterday were held for the Federal authorities after one was found in possession of 11 $50 Liberty Bonds which he said he had found. He said he was John C. Williams, but had a registration card made out to John F. Wallace. His companion gave the name of Max Fiel, 35 years old. They gave the address of the Holland Hotel, 902 North Sixth street.

Detectives said Williams grabbed the bonds from his pocket when arrested and remarked later that he wished he had "ditched" them. Fiel, they said, suggested that the detectives "fine" them $50 and release them.

Five of the bonds were of the first Liberty Loan, and were numbered inclusively 148,407 to 148,411. Another bond of the first issue bore the number 1,654,266. The remaining five were of the second Liberty Loan, and were numbered, inclusively, 1,629,363 to 1,629,367. Williams is said to have admitted that he was discharged Dec. 15 last from Leavenworth prisoon, after serving three years for stealing interstate freight.

"YOU'RE LOOKING YOUNGER EVERY DAY, MOTHER"

Gray, faded hair turned beautifully dark and lustrous almost over night, is a reality, if you'll take the trouble to mix sage tea and sulphur, but what's the use, you get a large bottle of the ready-to-use tonic, called "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound" at drug stores here. Millions of bottles of "Wyeth's" are sold annually, says a well-known druggist, because it darkens the hair so naturally and evenly that no one can tell it has happened.

You just dampen a sponge or soft brush with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur and draw it through your hair, taking one small strand at a time. Those whose hair is turning gray, becoming faded, dry, scraggly and thin have a surprise awaiting them, because after just one application the gray hair vanishes and your locks become luxuriantly dark and beautiful.

This is the age of youth, gray haired, unattractive folks aren't wanted around, so get busy with the Sage and Sulphur tonight and you'll be amazed at your youthful appearance and the real beauty and healthy condition of your hair within a few days. Inquiry at drug stores here shows that they all sell lots of "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur" and the folks using it are enthusiastic. This preparation is a delightful toilet requisite. It is not intended for the cure, mitigation or prevention of disease.—ADV.

AUTOMOBILE NEWS

MILLION AND HALF IN AUTOMOBILES SOLD AT AUTO SHOW

Big Motoring Event Which Closed Saturday Night Was Most Successful Ever Held in St. Louis.

When the electrician of the Automobile Show in the great Southern Hotel Building, now the Exhibit Building, pulled the lever at 11 o'clock last night that flashed the information to the visitors at the show that the eleventh annual Automobile Show was about to come to an end, there was an almost audible sigh of regret.

The show has been the best that has ever been held by the St. Louis Automobile Manufacturers and Dealers' Association. The setting has been the most beautiful. The attendance has been the largest and the results in outright sales of automobiles have exceeded those of any other year.

Coupled with the real success of the show was the sentimental interest attached to the building in which it was held. The Southern Hotel has been part and parcel of the history and the business and social life of the city of St. Louis for more than half a century. The opening of the building by the automobile men for their big exposition, the turning on of the lights, brought back to the South end of uptown Broadway a new life. It really meant the renaissance of Broadway. It meant the beginning of a new life in that district and the probable re-establishment of a large number of retail houses in that district.

The eleventh annual Automobile Show was pronounced by all of the dealers to be a much greater success than had been anticipated. There was not a single exhibitor but who sold cars. In the moderate priced lines the sales were heavy. One dealer closed a contract for 51 cars with a subdealer. Another closed a contract for 36 cars with a subdealer, and all made new agency contracts. Sales were made of the highest and lowest priced cars in the show. The Pierce-Arrow and the Locomobile exhibits both report sales made and there were many retail sales made of the moderate priced and low priced cars.

Heretofore there have been rebates paid to the exhibitors on their show space, sometimes running to a very satisfactory figure, but it is not probable that there will be any rebate on the 1918 show. The overhead expenses of the Exhibit Building was almost three times as great as for any previous building used by the association for its annual show. Coupled to this was the fact that the amount of space for sale was about one-half as much as it was in the Overland Building.

There have been a large number of visitors to the show from out of town, including 4000 dealers in automobiles from the territory surrounding St. Louis. Thees dealers came from nine states—Missouri, Illinois, Kentucky, Arkansas, Tennessee, Mississippi, Louisiana, Oklahoma and Texas. There was one lone visitor from Nebraska, one from Iowa and one who came all the way from Colorado.

The feature of the show was the visits of delegations from three of the smaller towns in the St. Louis territory, who consulted with the show management as to ways and means of holding automobile shows. One of these was a delegation from Little Rock, Ark. The Automobile Show there will begin March 6, and Show Manager Robert E. Lee supplied to the committee a full equipment of samples of all tickets, blanks and other necessary information.

A conservative estimate was made by members of the Show Committee Saturday night late that there had been sales made at wholesale and retail of about 850 automobiles by the various exhibitors. The value of these cars at retail would exceed $1,500,000.

KISSEL KAR PRICES ADVANCE $200 MARCH 1

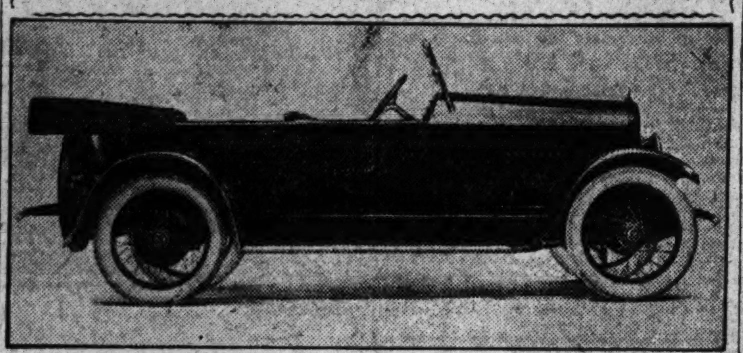
At a Kissel dealers banquet Friday, Harry Newman announced that on March 1 the price of all Kissel passenger models would advance $200. He explained that this increase was absolutely necessary in order to maintain the same high standard of materials, due to the big advance in costs.

Judge George L. Corlis, dean of the Benton College of Law, addressed the dealers on the "Three requisits of an automobile salesman from a laymen's view-point. He later talked of business conditions in general as he found them on a recent trip to Washington.

SUN RAY WITHIN LAW

Figures recently compiled show the Prismolite company and affiliated companies to be the largest manufacturers of automobile glass products in the country. One of the latest additions to its line is the new Sun-Ray lens introduced at the New York and Chicago automobile shows. One of the chief advantages of this new lens is that, for the first time, all the better features of both the diffusive and refractive types of lenses have been successfully combined in one lens.

A SPORTSTER---Latest Westcott Model



SALES OF CHEVROLET AND WESTCOTTS MADE

Sales of 19 Chevrolet and five Westcott cars as a direct result of their display at the auto show in the Exhibit Building, which closed last night, were announced by William King, sales manager of the Brandle Motors Co. He also reported the sale of three Traffic motor trucks, distribution of which recently was placed with the Brandle company, the latter transactions having been accomplished within three days after the selling arrangement had been concluded.

"These may not be world's records in the way of car sales, but they are significant and gratifying figures to me," said King, "especially when they go with the fact that February has proven to be a big month all through the Brandle line, in both new and used cars. It all goes to show the intensity with which our organization is imbued with the idea of leadership o fthe lines we are handling. Naturally, we are decidedly sanguine as to the future.

"As an incident to the Brandle Company's service on Chevrolet, we will shortly put into operation a system designed to prevent the owner of that car ever requiring attention from a repair man. This will not be difficult to accomplish when it is recalled that, from returns from 102 owners of the Chevrolet in St. Louis, made in response to letters of inquiry, it was found that the average repair bill was only $8.85 per 400 miles of service.

"Turning to the Westcott, for which it has become a truism that 'once a Westcott owner always a Westcott owner,' we are able to state that in the past four years there has been but one of those cars sold by the Brandle Company, its regular distributor here, traded for another car."

WILL FURNISH LISTS OF MOTOR CAR OWNERS

Secretary of State of Missouri John L. Sullivan, through the St. Louis Automobile Deputy, Joseph Schilling, announces that complete lists of automobile licenses issued in Missouri may be secured from the office of the Secretary of State for $10. The list gives the postoffice address, make and style of car and the motor number.

To secure the list it will be necessary to send $10 to the Secretary of State prior to March 15. No more will be printed than are ordered by that time. It will then be added to throughout the year by supplementary lists.

NEW TIRE FOR TRUCKS.

A new cushion tire has just been announced by the Goodyear Tire and Rubber Co., which in many classes of service, renders the most economical service of any tire that has yet been developed.

This tire has been in preparation for more than two years, and has survived the most rigid experimental tests demanded of it. In appearance it resembles the regular solid rubber tire, but in construction is quite different. The tread is of practical wearing thickness equal to that of similar sized solid tires. In cross-section it somewhat resembles an inverted Y, with a fabric-reinforced double base, fitting in a clincher-flanged rim. A metal ring running through the center holds the double bases of the tire in a veritable vice, preventing them from buckling and eliminating all likelihood of the tire's twisting or slipping from the rim.

It is exceptionally resilient and soft enough that in contact with the road service, it spreads out over a much larger area than a solid rubber tire of the same size. In actual service some remarkable mileages have been secured, ranging from 25,000 to 45,000 miles on one and two ton trucks, to which the new cushion tire seems to be peculiarly adapted.

MAXWELL AGAIN GRABS A MOUNTAIN RECORD

Now and then some car steps out and breaks a Maxwell record. It has been done. But not long thereafter a low, rakish looking craft with the familiar Maxwell name on the hood may be seen dashing out to regain its laurels. And it always does.

All of which leads up to the announcement that the Mount Wilson (Cal.) mountain-climb record is once more within the Maxwell fold, placed there by the daring driving craft of Walter Lord of the Lord Motor Co., Los Angeles.

This Mount Wilson mark was originally set by the late Billy Carlson in his Maxwell. Carlson's time was 29m. 1s. The record stood for a couple of years and was broken, just recently, by a 12-cylinder car which negotiated the hard trail in 27m. 17 2-5s. This time, the mark stood for one week, when Walter Lord, in his sturdy four-cylinder Maxwell, went after it, with the almost inevitable result. When any Maxwell combination goes after anything, that thing, particularly if it is a motor record, generally plays dead.

And it did this time, for the Maxwell made the strenuous, dashing climb, in just 26m. 56 1-5s, clipping 21 1-5 seconds off the mark made by the 12-cyolinder car.

SKID CHAINS MUST SLIP.

There are new motorists being born every day. And they, as well as their more experienced brethren of the wheel, need counsel. Experts of the B. F. Goodrich Rubber Co. have found during the winter that a great many new owners have come to regard as the nadir of misfortune the loss or loosening of a tire chain, and, as a protective measure, they have been tying the chain to the spokes. The damage to a tire accruing from this practice is greater than the loss of the chain would be.

"If the crosspieces of the chain are kept in one place," one points out, "they will cut into the tread and tear off pieces of the rubber. The chains are constructed to slip round and not remain at one point."

THE "BABY" OVERLAND A REAL SENSATION

The Willys-Overland Inc. of Toledo, O., has produced a distinctive car, which during the St. Louis show has caused the crowds to congregate around the Overland exhibit.

"In this little car, we have a proof positive that the small, low-priced passenger car has finally come into its own," said T. L. Hausmann of the Overland Co. of St. Louis. "This could not have been possible till a company of immense resources, by volume output became able to apply to low cost production, methods formerly possible only to the high-priced car; such a company is the Willys-Overland.

"The average production of 150,000 machines a year; their immense plant covering 112 acres of floor space renders such a car possible. They have 18,000 highly trained men available at Toledo for work on this car. Machinery and equipment not only for immense production, but scrupulous accuracy, have been installed at a cost of millions. By purchasing supplies and material in large quantities this company is able to secure prices that would not be possible to a smaller organization. The company's entire history as planned by its founder, Mr. Willys, has been continuously marked by a successful effort to reduce the cost of the motor car without impairing its efficiency.

The car has what is known as a three-point cantilever spring suspension, a result of engineering genius whereby in extending this spring 15 inches forward of the front axle and 15 inches to the rear of the rear axle, you gain thereby 30 inches over the actual wheel base of the car, which is 100 inches. In other words, you have practically the riding qualities of a car with 130-inch wheel base with a turning radius of but 19 feet.

The car is equipped with uniform sized tires all around—30 by 3½ inches—plain in front—nonskid in the rear, clincher type. The frame is of pressed steel in two pices—securely joined at either end by clamps and bolts. The body is pressed steel with welded joints—fenders pressed steel, crown. The finish black enamel baked on.

The rear seat in the five-passenger body is 46 inches in width—the front seat 40 inches. The cushions, sides, seats and back are all removable—the upholstering duratex—the top also duratex with rubber cover.

This car is provided with a very good tire carrier in the rear—it has a one-man top—slanting windshield with all instruments in cowl, speedometer, ammeter, spark and throttle control. Gasoline tank also in cowl—capacity of 11 gallons, suspended from frame and entirely independent of body movement. Radiator just over forward exle squarely across the car with capacity of seven gallons, cellular in form and vertical in action, thermo-syhpon cooling system being used with radiating capacity of 327 inches.

The motor has 3¼-inch bore by 4-inch stroke—cast en bloc—removable head so as to be readily accessible for repairs — three-bearing crank shaft. The oiling system very complete and simple. The oil placed in the crank case is forced by the fly wheel action as a centrifugal pump up to a well and from there to the clutch, transmission and universal joint. The universal joint is a split ring.

So carefully have the engineers planned this oiling system that there are only 10 oil cups on the car, and no grease cups. The equipment is standard, Champion spark plugs, Tillison carburetor, Connecticut ignition, the Auto Light starting and lighting system, all nationally known. The transmission is selective type, mounted on annular ball bearings; three speeds forward and reverse, a transmission brake and a disc clutch running in oil—the clutch and brake pedals are adjustable. The hand brake operates in a nine-inch drum on the rear wheels, internally expanding—metal against metal.

The entire car equipped and filled with gas and water ready for the road weighs 1500 pounds. Motor speed in actual service 45 miles an hour, giving ample assurance of horse power of motor being adequate for car.

The price has not yet been established and the car will be ready for delivery in midsummer.

LIBERTY MOTOR MAN A FORMER ST. LOUISAN

Lieutenant-Colonel Jesse G. Vincent, formerly of St. Louis, has just received his promotion in the army from the rank of Major. He had been vice president of engineering for the Packard Motor Car Co. of Detroit, but went to Washington last summer to assist in designing the new Liberty motor.

Col. Vincent was born at Little Rock, Ark., in 1880, and came early to St. Louis, and graduated from the St. Louis public schools. He went through all of the grades of apprentices, machinists, and is an expert toolmaker. In 1902 he was connected with the Universal Adding Machine Co. of St. Louis. Soon after that he joined the forces of the Burroughs Adding Machine Co., and was transferred to Detroit. From there he went to the Hudson Motor Car Co., and in 1912 went to the Packard company. He and Maj. E. J. Hall designed the Liberty motor.

BOUGHT SHOW CARS FOR ANOTHER SHOW

W. S. Roberts, manager of the St. Louis branch of the J. I. Case T. M. Co., closed a deal Saturday morning at the Automobile Show for representation of the Case car at Little Rock, Ark., including the territory surrounding that city. The deal was closed with J. N. Wheeler and John Quarels of that city.

Part of the contract insisted upon was that the three cars displayed at the Automobile Show must be delivered to them for immediate shipment to Little Rock, where they will be shown together with two others from the factory at the Little Rock Automobile Show, which opens March 6.

MORE PROOF OF UTILITY OF THE MOTOR CAR

There is an old adage that says something about "necessity being the mother of invention"—and certainly whoever coined that apt phrase knew what he was talking about.

When the coal shortage became so acute that National Fuel Administrator Garfield issued his drastic five-day industrial shut-down order, the Norton Grinding Company of Worcester announced that 700 of their employes would go into the company's wood lot and chop enough wood to keep Worcester warm until the situation could be relieved by the coal men.

When the manager of the Worcester branch of the Studebaker Corporation read of this generous contribution to the relief of a situation already assuming alarming proportions, he, too, felt a keen desire to co-operate. That 700 busy wood-choppers would have many an axe to grind before the completion of their five-day campaign brought to the Studebaker manager a realization that there was where he could be of invaluable service.

Loading a double-headed grinder on a Studebaker service car, a hurry up trip was made to the scene of operations. The question of power for the operation of the big grinder was settled when the automobile man suggested the use of a six-cylinder 50-horsepower motor then under the hood of a rakish Studebaker Sport Model in the retail salesrooms.

The motor mounted on a new one-ton truck from the Studebaker warehouse, with heavy leather belts streached from the flywheel to the pulleys of the grinder, a test was completed and the operator stepped on the starter button. And then to the engineers of the Norton Company came the greatest problem of all. The Studebaker motor lazily resting on its rough cradle, developed from 1800 to 2200 revolutions per minute, turning the twelve-inch stone wheels at the terrific speed of 11,000 revolutions, all too fast to properly grind any axe.

By the application of countershafts the speed was reduced to 2700 revolutions per minute, insuring the safety of the men who volunteered to pile up the sticks.

When Jack is Needed.

In the absence of a lifting jack for use in changing a tire, the wheel requiring the change can be driven upon the curb or a small rock, resting there until the front axle is blocked up. When on the curb the wheel will have to be turned in order to remove the tire.—Motor.

HARVESTS ICE WITH PASSENGER CAR

Motor trucks haul ice through city streets in summer, but it has remained for Wellesley, Mass.—that center of culture to harvest ice with a motor. And once more necessity is the parent of the idea.

Reuben Currier cuts ice from Morse's Pond in Wellesley. He was particularly anxious to get at the job early this winter, for the first ice was thick and clear and fine. Ordinarily, his work requires 25 horses and 85 men. But both horses and men were scarce this winter, so Currier's ingenuity devised spiked rims for the rear wheels of a Dodge Brothers touring car. After that the ice harvest proceeded merrily—and profitably—the Dodge Brothers car doing the work of four horses.

First the car was tried with the ice marker and then with the grooving plow, and it was found that a much larger expanse was covered than with horses. Then the car was turned to hauling the ice from the far side of the pond to the icehouse channel; and it easily towed cakes 100 feet long while men laboriously poled cakes only five feet long.

FORMAL DORT OPENING.

A formal opening of their new quarters has been arranged for this week by J. M. Neskov, president of the Neskov-Momperow Motor car Co. This firm has very recently taken over the retail distribution of the Dort line from the Kardell company which has the wholesale distribution in this territory.

A special display of Dort models together with the Dort chassis, which caused much comment at the auto show, will be at the salesrooms, 3116 Locust street, which will be decorated for the occasion.

A 13-YEAR-OLD DRIVER.

Ortheldo Smith, a thirteen year old youngster, left St. Louis yesterday driving a Big Reo Six for his home at Nashville, Ill, where his father is the Reo Dealer.

Last Summer when the Kardell Motor Car Company was experiencing a great deal of trouble securing freight equipment at the Reo factory, Smith and the boy drove a car apiece from Lansing Mich. to Nashville, a distance of nearly 600 miles and taking three days on the road.

Try This on Cylinder.

Opening the relief valves to see if a cylinder is missing is not always a reliable guide unless you speed up the engine. Feed plenty of gas and you will frequently get a burst of flame through the valve from what you thought was a dead cylinder.

STATE OK'S TINTED LIGHTS

Many motorists have been in doubt as to whether the Novial Conaphore headlight for motor cars complies with the new State law which calls for "white" lights. To settle this question, the Conaphore people asked for a ruling from the legal department of the State which construed the law as using the word white as a relative term as distinguished from a red or green light.

While the Conaphore lens is made both in the Novial and the clear glass, the manufacturers strongly urge the use of the Novial which has a yellow tint, claiming certain fog-piercing qualities which are of great value to the driver.

In addition to the tinting of the light, the rays are deflected downward by a series of prisms which keep them below the 42-inch line. The exterior is perfectly smooth, offering no creases to catch the dirt.

NEWEST WRINKLE IS A "GARAGELESS" CAR

In these times of wheatless, meatless and heatless days, we expct the unusual in the way of sacrifices and the automobilist is always ready to do his bit in the way of wartime economy. The "garagless" automobile, the last word in national thrift, has been successfully introduced this winter to the promenader of aristocratic Michigan Boulevard, Chicago, by a Franklin owner, who resides at the Illinois Athletic Club, located opposite Grant Park on the wind-swept shores of Lake Michigan.

The originator of the outdoor garage is a prominent Chicago business man, and judging from his experiments, or rather "experience," it is a success. His garage is situated in Grant Park, and may be located at night or day by a certain lamp post, which after a heavy snowsorm reveals, in periscope fashion, just where the Franklin lies underneath the surface.

Following the recent severe blizzard in the 'windy city," Mr. McDonald awoke one morning to find his enclosed car buried in a drift as high as the car. For nine days it was submerged, and then the S. O.S. was given to a South Park policeman and the steward of the Chicago Athletic Club, who together with the owner dug the car out after several hours work with shovels.

A suspicious crowd collected to see what the three gentlemen were mining and when they saw the automobile, they had visions of frozen radiators and water-pumps, for they had forgotten the air-cooled feature of the Franklin. They were amazed when they saw Mr. McDonald jump into the car and start it up just as if it were in a snug little garage.

TEST TO BE MADE OF THE MISSOURI INCOME TAX LAW

Chamber of Commerce Will Take Validity Question Before State Supreme Court.

The Chamber of Commerce announced yesterday that it would test the constitutionality of the State income tax law, under which returns must be made before March 1. The action is to be taken on the strength of an opinion of former Gov. Joseph W. Folk, general counsel of the organization, that the law's constitutionality is doubtful.

The test will be made in a suit to be filed in a few days by the Ludlow-Saylor Wire Co., which will bring the question before the Missouri Supreme Court.

McAllister Questions Validity.

When the act was under consideration at the last session of the Legislature, Attorney-General McAllister gave an opinion that it was unconstitutional. Before it was passed some amendments were made that were intended to make it constitutional, but Folk thinks the constitutionality is still doubtful.

Jackson Johnson, president of the Chamber of Commerce, says the decision to make a test case is not with a view to evading taxation, nor is it taken up at the instigation of any certain interests, but simply to clear up the doubt and confusion concerning it as a public service to St. Louis and the State.

It is expected that the case will be heard at an early date by the Supreme Court, and it has been suggested to the Attorney-General that in the meantime State Assessors be requested to delay demands for returns.

Folk's opinion was mailed yesterday to all the members of the Chamber of Commerce by President Johnson, who suggested that they apply to the Assessor for an extension of time for making the return, until there is a decision, or make return under protest on a form attached to Folk's opinion for the purpose.

Text of Folk's Opinion.

Folk's opinion is as follows:

"The Board of Directors of the St. Louis Chamber of Commerce having requested advice as to whether returns should be made under the Missouri Income Tax law of April 12, 1917, and if so when and to whom such returns should be made, I have the honor in response there to to submit this memorandum in the premises:

"The Income Tax law of Missouri levies a tax upon the income of every individual, citizen, or resident of Missouri on the basis of one-half of one per cent of such income. A like tax is also assessed on the net income of every corporation, joint-stock company; association, or insurance company organized in this State, but partnerships are excluded.

"An exemption from the income tax is provided, in the case of individuals in the sum of $3000 plus $1000 additional if the person making the return be the head of a family or a married man with a wife living with him, or plus the sum of $1000 additional if the person making the return be a married woman with a husband living with her; but in no event shall this additional exemption of $1000 be deducted by both a husband and wife.

"There are also exempted incomes of agricultural or horticultural organizations, mutual savings banks, fraternal societies operating under a lodge system, domestic building and loan associations, and co-operative banks without capital stock; cemetery companies owned and operated exclusively for the benefit of its owners, charitable, religious, scientific or educational associations, no part of the net income of which inures to the benefit of any private stockholder or individual; business leagues, chambers of commerce, civic leagues, and clubs not organized for profit and no part of the net income of which inures to the benefit of any private stockholder or individual; farmers or other mutual hail, cyclone or fire insurance companies, mutual ditch or irrigation companies, or telephone companies of a like character, the income of which consists solely of assessments, dues and fees collected from members for the sole purpose of meeting its expenses; farmers, fruit growers, or like associations; corporations or associations organized for the exclusive purpose of holding title to property and turning over the income therefor, less expenses, to an organization, which, itself, is exempt from the income tax Federal land banks and national farm associations; joint stock land banks as to income derived from bonds or other joint-stock land banks, or any Federal land bank belonging to such joint-stock land banks; income derived from any public utility performing functions of the national Government or in the exercise of any essential governmental function accruing to any state, territory or the District of Columbia.

Cites One Section in Particular.

"I call particular attention to section 32 of the act, which provides:

> "'Any person, corporation, joint-stock company, association or insurance company who shall have paid a tax assessed upon his real or personal property to the State during any year shall be permitted to exhibit the receipt or receipts thereof to the Assessor to the full amount in the payment of incom taxes assessed against such person, corporation, joint-stock company, association or insurance company during said year.'

"It is obvious that this provision exempts the owner of real or personal property from income taxes to the amount of the State taxes paid upon such real or personal property, and thus imposes an income tax upon the owner of real or personal property different from the income tax imposed upon the man who owns no real or personal property.

"Article 10 of section 4 of the Constitution of Missouri provides that all taxes on property must be according to its value. The Supreme Court of Missouri, in Glasgow vs. Rowse 43, Mo. 479, held that a tax on incomes is not a tax on property within the meaning of the clause of the Constituion. But the Supreme Court of the United States, in Pollock vs. Farmers Loan and Trust Co. 157 U. S., page 558, held that a tax upon one's whole income is a tax upon the annual receipts from his whole property and as such falls within the same class as a tax upon that property and is a direct property tax within the meaning of the Federal Constitution. If the Supreme Court of Missouri follows Glasgow vs. Rowse 43, Mo. 479, and decides that a tax on incomes is not a tax on property, this law may be sustained. If, however, the Supreme Court of Missouri follows the later decision of the Supreme Court of the United States to the effect that a tax on incomes in a tax on property, then, under the Constitution of Missouri, such a tax on property must be according to its value; and the income tax law in question not being upon that basis, would be in conflict with the constitutional provision under consideration.

"Article 10, section 3, of the Constitution of Missouri provides that all taxes imposed by the State of Missouri shall be uniform upon the same class of subjects. The exemption of $3000 and $4000 in taxation in case of individuals, the exemption of the different stock companies and associations named and the exemption of the real and personal property owner to the extent of State taxes paid on such real or personal property, might be held to render this law in conflict with the clause of the Constitution above quoted. State ex rel Switzer, 143 Mo., 287, 331.

"Moreover, if the Supreme Court of Missouri follows the Supreme Court of the United States in holding that a tax on incomes is a tax on property, then the act in part at least, seems to conflict with Article 10, Section 7, of the Constitution of Missouri, which holds that all laws exempting property from taxation shall be void.

"Several states have income tax laws of somewhat similar character to this, but the constitutional provisions of those states are not as restrictive as are the constitutional provisions of the State of Missouri. There is of course no such limitation upon Congress under the Federal Constitution.

"The Supreme Court of Missouri alone has power to declare an act of the Legislature of Missouri void as being unconstitutional. Until the Supreme Court has spoken in condemnation of the act it is the duty of all citizens to obey it.

Advice to Members of Chamber.

"My conclusion is, therefore, pending a decision of the Supreme Court of Missouri as to the constitutionality of this law, that the members of the Chamber of Commerce should under protest make returns as provided by the act. This course would relieve the members from the penalties provided by the act for failure to make returns, which penalties are not less than $100 or more than $5000 and increased taxation, in the event the law should be eventually held valid; and if the law should be held unconstitutional by the Supreme Court of Missouri the taxpayer would be protected.

"The returns should be made on or before March 1, 1918, to the Assessor of the Revenue, city hall, St. Louis, in the case of a resident of the city of St. Louis or in the case of a resident of a county to the Assessor of such county. Under the circumstances, while the validity of the act is being tested, it is likely that the Assessors will be liberal in granting extensions of time within which to make returns, if application be appropriately made for such extensions. It is probable that the Attorney-General of Missouri will advise Assessors to extend the time of filing returns for 60 days, or pending a determination by the Supreme Court of the Constitutionality of the act."

Under Inflation Is Expensive.

Some motorists do not keep the tires properly inflated, giving as their reason that the car rides so much easier with a soft tire, and that when inflated to the pressure recommended by the maker the car rides hard. If one can afford such luxury, well and good, but it is expensive comfort. Under-inflated tires mean a greater consumption of fuel, a breaking up of their fabric due to the weaving movement and other stresses that separate the plies of fabric, and short life of the casings. With the cost of tires rising, it is economy to observe the instructions of their makers, and if the car rides hard to try and discover the real cause.

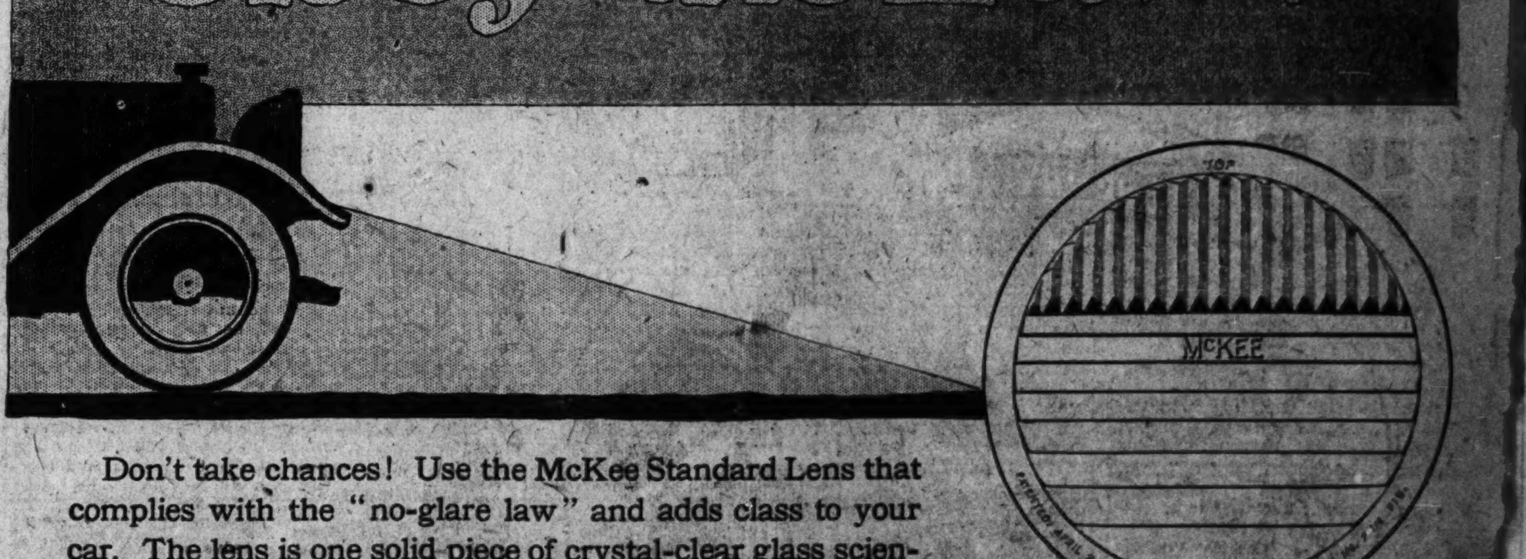
Obey the Law!



Don't take chances! Use the McKee Standard Lens that complies with the "no-glare law" and adds class to your car. The lens is one solid piece of crystal-clear glass scientifically designed—needs no dimmers—no attachments.

It saves the light that is wasted by the ordinary window glass lens and adds it to the intense beam of light which is concentrated and projected through the horizontal prisms down close to the road bed for 600 feet ahead. And not a ray of this bright white road beam can go above 42 inches from the ground to blind approaching drivers.

Extract from Law in Effect February 1st

Every motor vehicle.... during the period from a half hour after sunset to a half hour before sunrise .... shall carry, at the front, at least two lighted lamps not exceeding thirty-six candle power each (except that motorcycles shall carry one lighted lamp), showing white lights, visible, under normal atmospheric conditions, at least five hundred feet in the direction toward which said motor vehicle is facing, which lamp shall produce sufficient light to reveal objects one hundred and fifty feet ahead, and shall be adjusted and directed so that, on level ground, the main shaft of clear, condensed light, shall be projected straight forward, and no portion of it shall be above the level of the lamp nor more than forty-two inches above the ground. Such adjustment and direction shall be permanently maintained.

McKee Standard LENS

You must have a strong light on the side of the road for passing cars and turning corners in safety. This you get from the McKee Standard Lens by reason of its exclusive concave-convex shape.

If your dealer cannot supply you, send price, size of lens, model of car direct to us.

FUTURE JUDGED BY EVENTS OF THE RECENT PAST

Automobile Conditions, in Line With Those in Other Businesses, Promise Most Optimistic Results.

Richard H. Collins, president and general manager of the Cadillac Motor Car Co. of Detroit, in an interview with the Post-Dispatch, said:

"The country is now passing from one state of affairs to another. The process has been under way since last April. It will not be completed for some months to come.

"In the process, we have become somewhat disturbed. War makes reorganization necessary. Not only in the nation as a whole, but in every activity which we carry on in normal time, and which will be continued in times of stress and abnormality.

"All industries are affected. Even our daily lives in our homes feel the influence and are readjusted in a score of different ways.

"Yet there is one basis from which the nation—and the business nation in particular—can face the future with optimistic confidence.

"This is the basis on which all business itself is founded—observation, experience and application.

"Let us concede that it is natural that men should be somewhat uncertain during this period of change from one thing or one set of things to another.

"Having conceded that, let us proceed on the assumption that this present state, and in of itself, argues no ill for the future. Because, as a matter of fact, it does not do that.

"Here is where experience comes in.

"Great Britain is at war, and has been at war for more than three years. Yet the people in Great Britain today are living better than they did before.

"The great dressmakers of Paris are selling more costly gowns now than they ever have, if private information is reliable.

"Australia—far removed from the scene of war's activities—is enjoying more business and more prosperity than ever in her history.

"The same is true of our own next-door neighbor—Canada. Wages are high; people have plenty of money. They are buying themselves things which they never before had the money to buy.

"And in all these countries people are giving their Governments all the financial aid asked. There is no shirking and slacking on that score.

"Such are conditions among our allies today. They, too, passed through a period of change and uncertainty like that which we are now in. They have reorganized themselves to a war basis, the same as we shall eventually do.

"The task before us is one of sensibly planning our lives and our affairs. We are faced with the problem of preparing to do many things which we normally would not do. Some of these may be distasteful at the outset. But our duty to our Government, and to our own selfish interests—if the two can be coupled together in this fashion—demands that we do them, nevertheless.

"Unless the temper and the mettle of Americans have been misinterpreted—unless our history is a history of perversion and falsity—American business is more than justified in regarding the future with full and complete confidence."

WHITE 16-VALVE ENGINE STILL OF ACUTE INTEREST

The Automobile Show this week will be especially interesting as a mirror of wartime sentiment. While many of the motorists are interested chiefly in luxurious custom-built bodies, the mechanical side is expected also to be studied closely. Last year the White company introduced the 16-valve four cylinder engine which was the magnet for public attention in every city where it was shown. The fact that it was displayed in the automobile show will not lessen interest in such a type, particularly at a time when motorists want high performance at low operating cost.

This double valve engine is the most recent improvement of a fundamental nature and is the result of a long effort to develop a four cylinder engine capable of the high power and flexibility of a multicylinder engine, without sacrificing the great virtues of simplicity, ruggedness and economy of the "four."

As an engineering achievement the 16-valve "four" is in line with the White company's unvarying policy to raise the standard of performance and lower the cost of operation through the medium of simplicity and high quality.

By using a double set of valves in each cylinder, a counter-balanced crank-shaft and lighter reciprocating parts, the company has produced an extraordinarily powerful engine of the high speed type with no less economy.

Many advantages accrue from the double valve design. It permits the use of two small valves, which admit more gas than one large valve. By locating each valve in what might be called the four "corners" of the cylinder, valve pockets are practically eliminated and a full charge of gas is admitted. The combustion chamber is practically uniform in shape and the spark plugs are placed in the center of the cylinder head so that the explosions occur squarely over the center of the pistons. With an extremely small chamber and no pockets to fill, each explosion is more powerful than would be produced by an engine of the same size if the valves were larger.

Applying New Tires.

In applying new tires, put them on the rear wheels, moving the half-worn tires to the front wheels—this will give them a longer life. In applying a single new tire, put it on the right-hand rear wheel, as this is the one that has the hardest work, and needs to be stronger than others.

A Versatile Engineer.

There are few engineers in the [illegible] industry as versatile as A. C. Hamilton, chief engineer of the [illegible] Motor Car Company, who has built automotive craft of three different types—those that fly through the air, those that sail the sea and those that speed over land. The head of the Oakland engineering staff worked on marine engines before he took up motor car designing, and spent several years in France as an expert on aviation.

WASHINGTON LANDS SECOND GAME FROM KANSAS U., 32-18

Marquard, at Center, Is Outstanding Star for Pikers Against Jayhawkers.

PLAY BILLIKENS NEXT

Local Teams Open Three-Game Championship Series at Mueggés Wednesday Night.

Gaining a lead in the early minutes of play and never being headed once throughout the contest, the Washington University basket ball team gained its second straight victory of Kansas University at the Francis Gymnasium last night, 32 to 18. The decision evened up the count between the two Missouri Valley Conference quintets for the campaign, each having won two of the four battles staged.

While the Pikers won by a wide margin, the Jayhawkers made a better showing than in the opening contest. The visiting aggregation had none more chances to score than on the previous night, but the shooting was very poor. At the end of the first half the score stood 19 to 9 in favor of Rutherford's men.

Marquard Outstanding Star.

The play last night was not nearly as rough as in the opening game and very few fouls had to be called. This fact also aided in making the conflict a bit more uninteresting than the opening clash. There was little spectacular play by the tossers of either team.

Al Marquard, the center for the Pikeway aggregation, again stoout out. This player has developed into one of the best centers in the Missouri Valley and his work last night again brought out this fact. Marquard scored more than half of the locals' points—he having 18 to his credit. He had eight field goals, while he made two free throws.

That Captain Kamp of Rutherford's aggregation is one of the best guards in the Valley also was brought out in the two battles with Jayhawkers. Kamp played Uhrlaub so closely that in the pair of conflicts, the latter was unable to score a single field goal. And this despite the fact that Uhrlaub is considered star of the Kansas quintet and one of the best forwards in the conference.

Play Billikens Next.

While Marquard was the outstanding star of the game, Benway and Duncker, at the forwards, also played well for the locals. Miller, who replaced Uhrlaub, was the leading point-getter for the Jayhawks with six to his credit.

The next contest on the Washington schedule will be the first of the three-game series to decide the collegiate championship of the city with St. Louis University, Wednesday night. This battle will be waged at Muegge's gymnasium, the home of the Billikens.

The linups:

Washington (32)	Position.	Kansas (18)
Russell (2)- Benway (6)	Left forward	Uhrlaub (4)- Miller (6)
Duncker (4)	Right forward	Rice (4)
Marquard (18)	Center	Matthews
Kamp (2)	Left guard	Lassiett
Roddin	Right guard	Knowles

KEEN KUTTERS DEFEAT BANK OF COMMERCE, 2-1

The Keen Kutters, leaders in the Saturday division of the Municipal Soccer Association, defeated the Bank of Commerce yesterday afternoon at Fairground, 2 to 1. The losers were late in arriving and forfeited one goal, which proved their undoing. Flood scored the other marker for the winners, while Duggan tallied for the losers.

The Union Electrics failed to put in an appearance for the schedule game with Eden Seminary. The games yesterday were the last on the regular schedule for this division.

Hoblitzell Will Take Examination for Army Mar. 11

First Sacker Has Recovered From Operation and Plans to Join Dental Corps.

CINCINNATI, Feb. 23.—Firse Baseman Dick Hoblitzell of the Boston Red Sox enjoys the distinction of being the only major league ball player to undergo a dangerous and serious operation in order to fit himself, if possible, for service in the United States Army. Hobby had been afflicted with an internal trouble, which did not interfere with his ball playing, but would prevent him from passing the severe examination required for entrance into the ranks of the army.

When a contract was offered him soon after the close of last season, he returned it unsigned, declaring he intended to go into the service and would not play ball this season if accepted by the Government.

So he came to Cincinnati, went to a hospital and had the operation performed. It was quite successful, but he had to remain in the hospital for three weeks, and for another month or two was very careful in moving around. He has now practically recovered and is ready to make his effort to join the Medical Corps.

Hobby is trying to enlist in the Dental Department. He is a graduate dentist and has practiced for some time, having been associated with his brother, a prominent dentist of this city, who is now in the army. Hobby received word today that his examination will take place at Camp Sheridan, Chillicothe, on March 11.

The first baseman said today that he may start the season with the Red Sox. It all depends when he is called into service.

Sullivan's Manager "Framed Up" Fight Against Him, but John L. Won Anyway

With Police Steaming After the Vessel and Knowing That Thugs Were Ranged Around the Ringside to Interfere, Sullivan Refused to Be Scared Out of Fighting.

Life Story of John L. Sullivan

Told for the Post-Dispatch

—By JIMMY WAKELY—

HEREWITH is published the first of a series of articles on the life and battles of John L. Sullivan, the most popular fighter the world has ever known.

This series, which comes first hand from Jimmie Wakely, Sullivan's friend, manager and backer during the old days when John L. was just emerging from obscurity as the "Boston Strong Boy," touches on the human as well as the fighting side of this gladiator, whose career bridged the gap between the bare-knuckle days and the padded glove era of pugilism.

"JOHN L." AT 57.

Wakely is the only man in a position to boast a really intimate knowledge of Sullivan's earlier experiences, since all his other backers have died. Recently Billy Madden, Sullivan's trainer, also "checked in" for good.

In the next article Wakely will tell the inside story of Sullivan's fight with Herbert Slade, the Maori.

By Jimmy Wakely.

Lifelong Friend and Only Living Backer of John L. Sullivan.

HEART disease!" was what the doctor pronounced caused the death of the famous John L. Sullivan up Boston way the other day. That wasn't what caused his death. It was a broken heart. I know this to be a fact.

John loved his second wife more than the average man loves his wife—yes, far more. Sullivan idolized her. When she died about a year ago John was down-hearted. He had plenty of warning, though, that her days were numbered, as she had been suffering for years.

"I know I won't live long after she passes away," John frequently said to me. "It was she that made a man of me. When she goes I'll have nothing to live for."

When I received word of the death of John's wife I thought that he would fall off the water-wagon, which he had been so manfully clinging to for 12 years. I knew that the big fellow was so devoted to her that I thought her death would grieve him so that he would once again sign articles with John Barleycorn, the old-time enemy whom he had knocked out. But I guess it was because of his promise to her to never let a drop of liquor pass his lips again that checked him.

Greatest Opponent Whipped

ONE day I met a mutual friend of ours who was on his way to Boston. We were discussing John L.

"The poor fellow is so blue now, he'll be hitting it up again," I remarked.

Little did I think that this chap was going to tell John what I said. Later he came back with this message from John.

"You tell Wakeley for me, that I'd rather cut off my right arm than take another drink."

And that went.

If Sullivan never whipped another opponent he should be extolled for the great victory he scored over the Demon Rum. For a man who had trod the primrose path so oft, it was a wonderful thing for him to have suddenly quit and ended his days in a sober, industrious way. And it was his second wife that deserved a heap of credit for seconding him to his triumph over John Barleycorn.

SULLIVAN took great pride in having won the big fight. But even though he became such a steady driver of the water wagon, he didn't go about preaching to his friends. If he was in the company of a friend, he never lectured when the friend ordered a drink.

If you went to him and asked his opinion regarding drink, that was a different matter. Then he would tell you that there wasn't anything in the "grape" but sorrow and regrets.

Sullivan greatly admired Billy Sunday. He considered Sunday one of the greatest sources of good in the world. He even started taking up lecturing, after Sunday's style, lecturing on temperance.

"It's a funny thing," said Billy Muldoon to me after John had been buried, "but on Feb. 8 Sullivan had an appointment with me at the Hotel Astor, New York. I was to take him to a heart specialist." "John called me up on the long-distance phone," continued Muldoon, "and informed me that he had been bothered with pains in his heart for months. He told me that some Boston specialist told him that I was in touch with one of the greatest specialists in the world on this disease, and he asked me if I would set a date with the doctor for him. I told him to meet me on Feb. 8 and I would see to it that he received good medical care."

Was to See a Specialist

FUNNY, wasn't it, that the poor fellow should have been laid away two days before the time for his examination by the heart specialist?

Sullivan and I had been friends for years. But when I say that we were friends I don't mean to say that we never quarreled, for we often had arguments.

Who wouldn't argue with Sullivan? He had many set opinions that he wouldn't change for anyone. These arguments often resulted in our being on the "outs" temporarily, but it was usually the big fellow—whole-souled chap that he was—that made overtures of peace.

"Forget it," he would say in his philosophical way. "Life's too short to be scrapping like a couple of old women."

Then he'd put out his good right hand, give mine a hearty shake, and order a drink.

He Was Fine Irishman

AS I now think of the mighty gladiator, the words of that old song that Georgie Cohan wrote some years ago, come to my mind:

Bim Tim, you all know him;
John L., you know him well;
There never was a man named Sullivan,
Who wasn't a damn fine Irishman.

When Sullivan was KO'd by the Grim Reaper, he didn't have a cent in the bank. He left a little real estate, probably not worth more than $4000.

Of course you will wonder why a man who had been making the money that John had been earning during the past decade did not leave a fortune behind. I'll tell you the reason. Sullivan was the biggest hearted man I ever knew. He never knew the value of a dollar, before or after he quit drinking.

When John L. was running around the country, spending a fortune over the bar, he contracted hundreds of dollars' worth of debts. Everybody was glad to lend such a famous man money. And when John got the money, it went just one way, over the bar and into the hands of the cafe owner, providing the bartender happened to be honest.

WHEN John stopped drinking, he was given extensive booking in vaudeville, through the efforts of the late Tim Sullivan, the big New York politcian. And Sullivan owed Big Tim a small fortune, too. Tim never expected or, in fact, never wanted a cent back.

Well, when John got on his feet, his creditors throughout the country received a series of shocks. He started paying back every cent he borrowed. He paid men who forgot that he had owed them. How he ever remembered so many debts is beyond me.

When he went up to see Big Tom and paid him off—to the cent—Tim could hardly speak. It was so unusual for a man to pay back money that had been squandered in drink. Tim didn't want to take the money.

"If you don't take it," said John L. to Tim, "you and I are going to be bad friends." Tim caught the flash of determination in the famous fighter's face. So he took the money.

This is just a sample of what John did. He paid off everybody. When he went on his journey across the Great Divide he didn't owe a copper.

His Real Popularity

WHAT an achievement! To have owed so many and to have died without anyone being able to say that John L. owed him money.

It wasn't because of Sullivan's personality that he was so popular. He was a gruff sort of fellow, who spoke in a harsh voice. If you didn't know him real well, you would have said that he was rough. It was because of his great achievement in the ring that Sullivan was so popular. Children throughout the country heard his name mentioned before they knew anything about George Washington or Abraham Lincoln. When he lost the title to Corbett, thousands shed tears of genuine sorrow.

Sullivan was a genuine fighting man. That was why he was popular. He didn't pick his opponents. Not only did he meet all-comers, but anybody who challenged received a chance at his title.

It was solely because of his ring record that John L. was popular. He was a real fistic idol.

KID McCOY told me at the memorial services held for John L. in New York of the great exultation he felt when he was a boy—I think it was in Indianapolis—when he just touched Sullivan's coat.

McCoy's joy knew no bounds.

"Hey, fellows!" McCoy cried to his pals, "I just touched John L. Sullivan's coat."

The Kid was envied by all his playmates.

Can you imagine anybody going into ecstasies because he touched the coat of Fred Fulton or Jess Willard? More likely a person would become angered if he had to come so near either one of these alleged fighters so that he had to touch his coat.

Sullivan always had a chip on his shoulder; that was the reason of his remarkable popularity all over the world.

How I First Met John L.

"NOW, I'll tell you how I first happened to meet Sullivan. In the month of August, 1879, I matched Johnny Dwyer against Jimmy Elliott for the heavyweight championship of America. We had to go way up to Long Point, Canada, to pull off the fight. The battleground was on an island in Lake Erie. The only resident was the lighthouse keeper. We had to charter a steamboat to reach the scene of the encounter.

The men fought for $1000 a side. Dwyer won in 11 rounds, the battle being fought according to the London ring rules, each knockdown constituting a round. The fight only lasted 12 minutes.

It was not long after this contest that I took Dwyer to Boston. He was a big card there, being hailed the champion of America. He exhibited at the Washington Music Hall. He was scheduled to box a fellow by the name of Steve Taylor, whose right name was Johnny Mahan. He was from Jersey City.

Cockey Woods, an old-timer who had at one time been matched with John C. Heenan, came to me and asked me if I would allow Dwyer to box John L. Sullivan, a young fellow he was interested in. I told him that it made no difference to me, and I suggested to Dwyer that he take on the youngster.

Was Waiting Anxiously

SULLIVAN was on the stage, anxiously awaiting the chance to face the champion. He was a great big lad, weighing about 185 pounds. He wore a bicycle cap. I don't think he had had fists up over once or twice.

But Dwyer would have no part of him.

"Go ahead," I said; "mix it up with this boy. He wants to meet you."

"Sure, I'll spar him," spoke up Sullivan.

"You're as bad as Woods is," Dwyer said to me.

He boxed Billy Mahoney, no persuasion inducing him to fight John L.

A year later, after Sullivan had had considerable experience in the ring, he came to New York and offered to pay fifty dollars to anybody who would stay four rounds with him.

Saved From Being "Jobbed"

OWNEY GEEGHAN sent me an English fighter named Morris to fight John L. I was advised by friends not to bother with Morris. Instead I matched John Flood to oppose the Boston Strong Boy.

On May 18, 1881, a big crowd boarded a barge at the foot of West Forty-third street. It was one of the toughest crowds I ever saw in my life. Some of the worst characters in New York were aboard. And in all fairness, I must say that I was the cause of many of the tough birds being on deck.

I'll mention one of the reasons I say Sullivan was one of God's noblemen. In repeated interviews, Sullivan claimed that it was I who saved him from being jobbed on the barge that day. I must confess—and I know John L. was aware of the truth—I was the one who planned to job him.

When that boat left the dock, Sullivan was doomed. There wasn't a chance in a million for him to win. At all costs, Flood was to win. That was why all those tough citizens were on hand. If Sullivan looked like a winner, these roughnecks were to stampede and stop the fight, which would have meant that all bets were off.

It was Sullivan's gameness that enabled him to score a victory despite such overwhelming odds.

Police Had Been 'Tipped Off'

THE police had been tipped off about the fight. They had to come around from the East River. The barge was towed up the Hudson by a tug. We knew that the police boat was on our trail. We sailed up to Yonkers. I pitched the ring myself on the floor used for dancing. When everything was ready, I went up to Sullivan's dressing room and said to Billy Madden, who was handling him:

"You'd better hurry up and get that big fellow of yours downstairs, so that he can take his licking and have it over with." Madden knew about the plot. Sullivan did, too.

"I know the best of it will be the worst of it," said Madden.

Do you think that Sullivan quailed? I should say not.

"Come on, Billy," said Sullivan, "let's fight, anyway."

Sullivan's indomitable fighting spirit, in the face of the knowledge that there were hundreds of the Big City's worst thugs down there to see that he didn't win, won my heart.

I went down to the fellows that I had previously instructed to job John L., and told them to lay off.

They were dumfounded. They couldn't understand why I switched plans. I told them how I came to do it. They didn't like my new orders. At that they cut the ropes when Sullivan won in the eighth round.

The fight had hardly ended when the police boat drew up alongside of the barge.

PETERSON BEATS HOPPE TWICE IN PLAY IN DAYTON

Wins Balkline Game 250 to 238, Then Takes Three-Cushion Match, 25 to 24.

Has Grand Average of 28.4 for 738 Balkline Points Since Leaving Here.

Away from his home city, Charles C. Peterson is having much better success against Willie Hoppe, world's champion billiardist. An even break resulted in the balkline and three-cushion games between Hoppe and Peterson at Dayton, O., the champion winning one of the 18.2 games, 250 to 33, while Peterson copped the other 250 to 238. Charlie calls the latter game "some battle."

At three-cushions in Dayton Peterson beat Hoppe, 25 to 24, running out in 30 innings. Hoppe then turned the tables in an angle contest, 25 to 12, in 23 innings.

Average Normal in Dayton.

In the first game of balkline, which Hoppe won, the champion finished in three innings with a high run of 130. Peterson took nine innings to count 250 points in the contest he annexed.

For the stay in Dayton, Hoppe counted 488 points of balkline in 12 innings, for an average of 40.6. Peterson scored 283 in 11 innings, an average of 26.1. In three-cushions, Hoppe's total points were 49 scored in 53 innings, an average of .92, while "Pete" counted 37 at the angle game in 52 innings, average .71. Each had a high run of five in these games.

Switching over to Columbus, Hoppe lost his stroke apparently as it required 14 innings for him to make his 250 points at balkline. He had a high run of 75. Peterson got 142 points in this match. In the three-cushion contest in Columbus, Hoppe won, 25 to 19 in 27 innings, an average of .93. Each had a high run of five.

Falls Below Standard.

Thus, since leaving St. Louis Hoppe has scored a grand total of 738 points at balkline in 26 innings, an average of 28.4, far below normal. Peterson's balkline record for a similar period is 425 points in 24 innings, an average of 17.7. In three-cushions, the score sheet reads 74 points for Hoppe in 80 innings, an average of .93, fully up to the standard he has maintained on his exhibition tour, while for Peterson it is 56 points in 78 innings, an average of .71.

Peterson's improvement may be accounted for in two ways, viz.: Hoppe has run short of oil or Peterson has found a scorekeeper, thus enabling him to devote more time to actual playing. The duo are now on the first part of their Eastern swing. Peterson is expected to return about May 15.

MANAGER OF FIGHT CLUB FINED $1000 AND PLACED IN CLASS A-1, RESIGNS

LITTLE ROCK, Ark., Feb. 23.—Being fined $1000 and costs for violating the State prize fight laws and being put in Class 1 Division A, in the draft and ordered to be prepared to report, were too much for Paul Grabiel, secretary and manager of the Army Athletic Club here. He announced his resignation today.

GIANTS' ROOKIE HURLER CALLED TO DRAFT ARMY

NEW YORK, Feb. 23.—George O'Neil, a St. Louis catcher is to be given a tryout with the New York Nationals on their spring training trip. Two other young players, W. W. Hubbell of Buhl, Idaho, a pitcher, and Clarence Pipp, an outfielder, will be given an opportunity to show their metals, it was announced today.

Sterling Stryker, a young pitcher obtained last year by the club from the Rochester Internationals, notified the National club today that he had been called in the national army draft. He said he had obtained permission from his local board to enlist in the navy.

Millers Lead Is in Danger Today

Ratican's Men Must Defeat Innisfails to Retain Top Berth in Soccer League.

The lead of the Ben Millers in the St. Louis Soccer League is again in danger. The Millers must win from the Innisfails today, should the Leos defeat the Navals, or hand over first place to the blue and white aggregation. The Leos and Navals fight it out in the opening game, while the Millers and Irishmen battle in the closing encounter.

The Ben Millers and St. Leos will be crippled for the contests today, because of the absence of several stars. Doc Shea and Jimmy Dunn of the Millers left during the past week for the Great Lakes Naval Training Station, while Eddie Mulligan of the blue and white was called into the national army. This will force both Managers Ratican and McCarthy to switch their line-ups for the clashes.

The league has gone back to the double referee system, Pete Harris, the former Innisfail star, who was injured recently, being down to assist Billy Bascom. Harris drew the opening game, while Bascom will officiate in the second.

The standings of the teams in the circuit are as follows: Ben Millers, 12 points; St. Leos, 16 points; Innisfails, 13 points; Naval Reserves, 10 points.

'DROP SWEENEY, IF YOU WANT A. B. C. TOURNEY'—HOWARD

Chicago Tenpin Czar Declar He Opposes St. Louis Bowl ing Politician.

LOCAL FANS DEPRESSE

Failure to Get 1919 Event, Ho ever, Fails to Deter Conventions Bureau.

While the St. Louis delegation the American Bowling Congr meeting at Cincinnati Friday w disappointed over the failure in landing the 1919 tournament, Char E. Hatfield, secretary of the c ventions bureau, said yesterday t the Mound City would be in t running for the 1920 tournament.

In an address to the delegates f lowing the final count of the vot Hatfield said as follows: "We w be in Toledo next year with our re lar number of teams, and will be the thick of the fight for the 19 tournament."

Before the gathering, the Clev land delegates had made it know that they would go after the 19 rolling, but with Toledo getting t tourney, they withdrew.

"With Toldo getting the tourn ment, we are out of it for 1920, b cause this would bring the nation rolling to Ohio for three straig years," said William Agnew, president and leader of the For City delegation, to Hatfield.

Hatfield also stated that many the Chicago delegates told him "th they were tired of the way thin were being run, and that they wou vote in favor of St. Louis should t city be in the hunt for the next t rolling."

St. Louis Made Good Impressio

"We are figuring on the America Bowling Congress for 1920, as one o our coming events," stated Hatfiel yesterday. "Our disappointment i Cincinnati may be a God-send in disguise. I think that we left a favorable impression.

Many of the visiting delegates came to me after the meeting and stated that they would vote for St. Louis the next time."

While it was said that the objectio to St. Louis was its geographical situation, George B. Howard, bett known in the tenpin world as "Judg Howard, and the man who rules th A. B. C., stated this was not his re reason for opposing St. Louis. H main objection to this city he state was one man—Dennis Sweeney.

They Don't Like Dennis.

"Get rid of Sweeney, and we w vote for your city," stated Howa "I have no objection to St. Louis, as long as Sweeney is prominen connected with the game, I'll fi you."

And beating Judge Howard his combine is something the Louisans have been unable to acco lish to date. That Howard politics r the meeting was shown clearly. the annual gathering, Howard p three motions before the delegat and every one of them carried. A when Howard said:

"I make a motion that we go Toledo next season" even before a talks had been made in regards the 1920 rolling that just abo settled things.

The "Howard combine" takes in t Chicago vote and also the Milwauk which withdrew from the running went solid for Toledo. And beati Milwaukee with 47 votes and Chica with 41 is a task. This alone brin 88 votes to the city that is after t tournament and which is backed Howard.

Bowlers Disgusted.

While Hatfield stated that St. Lo would be in the field for the 1 tourney, many of the bowlers, pressed themselves as far from isfied.

"This is once too often," was announcement from most of th "and there is a chance that we pass up the A. B. C. next year go to the international at Minneapo

However, many things may happ between now and the next nation tournament, and without a dou St. Louis will have its regular qu of quintets on hand.

Nothing was said at the annu meeting in view of doing away wi the five-man teams for the ne tournament. It had been stated th this would be one of the questio brought up, but everyone seemed have forgotten about it. The pl was to make the teams of either f or six men so that all the tenpinne would get a chance at the all-ava prize.

JIMMY BURKE IS SIGNED BY BALL TO ASSIST JONES

Local Boy, Formerly With Detroit, Expected to Help Browns in Flag Struggle.

Managed Several Clubs Previous to Big League Berth—Rickey Returns Tomorrow.

Jimmy Burke, one of the foremost citizens of Goose Hill, was signed to a contract by the Browns after a conference with Phil Ball yesterday afternoon. Jimmy's particular tasks during the coming season will be to sit in on the Fielder Jones Board of Strategy, keep the players in a good humor, exercise his vocal chords on the coaching lines, put the young pitchers wise to the tricks of the trade, lasso the other fellow's goat, tell the umpires where to get off, give his manager the benefit of his four years' experience in the American Lague, earn his salary and otherwise make himself useful.

Aside from that, Jimmy will have plenty of time for his pinochle games.

Jimmy Is a Wise Boy.

The acquisition of Burke, however, isn't to be treated lightly, for there are those thoroughly versed in affairs of the American League who will tell you Phil Ball has picked up a mighty useful subordinate. Jimmy has been attached to the Detroit club for the past four years and acting in the capacity of coach and assistant manager of Hughey Jennings' club has been given not a small share of the credit for keeping the Tigers up there, Tyrus Raymond Cobb notwithstanding.

While the fact may not be generally known, Jimmy has had a long career in baseball, more or less of which was successful. He started out with the American League when it was organibed in 1900 as a member of the Milwaukee and Chicago American League clubs.

In 1906 and 1907, he was manager of the Kansas City club in the American Association, while in the following year, he piloted Louisville, In 1909, he held down third base for the Indianapolis club and accepted the management of Fort Wayne in 1910. In 1911 and 1912, he was manager of the Indianapolis club and in 1913, returned to Fort Wayne.

He Gets Results.

The next year, he was signed by Hughey Jennings for the Detroit club, mainly because of his experience and ability to get the maximum of results out of his players. Jimmy and Jennings have provided an inimitable pair on the coaching lines and they do say Jimmy is rated as the best in the league in the art of making opposing pitchers seek higher altitudes despite their disinclination to do so.

When Bill Donovan was signed by Frank Navin several days ago, Burke found himself without a job. Navin wrote Phil Ball, recommending Jimmy and after Ball had gotten Fielder Jones' approval, Burke was signed to a contract. Jones believes Burke will prove a valuable man during the coming season.

George Davis, present assistant to Jones, is coaching the Amherst College baseball club and will not report to the Browns before June. It was this fact that probably influenced Fielder to line up Jimmy Burke, as he will go south with the club and help out on the spring training trip.

What's This Worth?

Here is one more shot at that ornsby rumor and then let's hope they embalm it. Charles Weeghman is now reported willing to give Pete lduff and $50,000 in cash for the shortstop. Because Branch Rickey is out of the city and will not return until Monday, it is impossible to give the local angle to it. However, Jack ndricks still contends that he knows of no trade pending.

Whitted in Deal.

According to a report from Chicago yesterday, George Whitted was in consultation with Cubs' officials. Whitted, the report says, has been given permission to deal with the Bruins, in order that he may join Alexander and Killifer.

Shocker Ready to Start.

Bob Quinn, business manager of the Browns, received a letter from rban Shocker yesterday, in which the new Brownie hurler conveyed the information that he was ready to start south any time the club suggested. Quinn hopes to announce the complete training trip itinerary next week.

WRAY'S COLUMN

Return of the "Yellow Peril."

LOOK out for the Japanese invasion of 1918—it's coming! The "yellow peril" that will soon be launched against us promises to have even better fortune than the one which made such a valiant attack on 1916.

The invading army will number only one, and he a mere mite weighing not over 125 pounds; but the conditions under which his campaign will be undertaken seems to spell disaster.

The saffron tinted menace is Ichiya Kumagae, the bespectacled, polite and capable tennis player who made his first bow to an American gallery in a championship event on the Triple A Forest Park, and who still holds the trophy he won then—the Central States championship cup.

Kumagae, if he lost none of ability, will find conditions easy, compared to those encountered during his last tour, when the country was stocked with championship talent.

In fact, it is almost certain, at this time, that the American Championship will be for the first time won by a player not of Caucasian race, if he decides to compete.

ENLISTMENTS in the army and navy have taken practically all of the first 15 or 20 ranking U. S. players of 1916. R. Norris Williams, Griffin and others are already in France and the remainder will either soon be there, or will be so lacking in tennis practice as to be unable to afford the little brown star adequate competition.

This situation was made possible by the recent action of the National Tennis Association, in restoring championship play. Last year, all title tourneys were abandoned and Kumagae did not even return to America to play in the various events that he had won during his campaign. He renewed his bond on his trophies and remained at home.

A Star of First Water.

IT is not straining the fancy to picture Kumagae in the title role of American—yes, world's champion. His opponents will be the old "has-beens," like Belas Wright and Fred Alexander, or upcoming juniors who do not seem equal to the task of trimming the cool, careful, undaunted little fellow.

Kumagae lacks one or two points of being a genuine champion, but his merit and stamina are attested by his 1916 campaign when he figured either as winner, finalist or semi-finalist in practically every big tournament in which he participated, in this country.

Starting with the Central States tourney in St. Louis, and the sectional doubles also held here, Kumagae played continuously every day except Sunday, in tournaments of the hardest character, up to and through the national championship early in September.

He astonished the country by winning the Newport tourney, the New York State tourney and the Central States championship. He defeated Wm. M. Johnston, then champion, Clarence Griffin twice, Nathaniel Niles, and many other high ranking opponents. Only four players defeated the Jap during the entire two months of play—Washburn, Armstrong, Murray and Church.

None of these men, it is believed, will be in the race against the Jap this season, when national tourney time rolls around.

The Other Angle.

STATISTICIAN IRWIN HOWE has figured that Derrill Pratt is a better fielder than Eddie Collins because he has accepted 5.52 chances on the average per game during his entire American League career. The famous Eddie Collins' figures are 5.14 chances. This is supposed to make Pratt a better infielder than Collins; but to arrive at the conclusion you have to forget Collins' superiority in base running, hitting, headwork and pinch efficiency.

Pratt may make a great keystone defender and run-producer for Miller Huggins; but he has seldom shown the dependency or emergency stuff that goes to make up the truly great performer.

Oh Boy, This Is Early.

IN fact, it wouldn't be such a bad guess that Miller Huggins' tribe will finish further in second division than last year, unless the "Rabbit" lures more talent to his fold before the season starts.

Huggins' pitching staff is by no means what it is heralded, with Ray Fisher and Love gone to the wars, Caldwell unreliable and Mogridge an in-and-out star. Shawkey seems to be Huggins' ace at this writing, and he won't win any pennants.

Huggins has one of the feeblest hitting outfields on the map. Hendrix, Miller, Gilhooley, High and Marsans did the outfielding last year. They may have done a good job defensively, but on attack the biggest punch was carried by Miller, .251. The stars; Gilhooley, High and Hendrix, hit .249, .242 and .236. Hitters of this stripe absolutely block a team off from hope.

The Browns' pitching staff will be superior to the Yanks'. The club has one truly great player, Sisler, such as New York cannot boast; it is splendidly equipped with veteran catchers, two of them hard clouters; it has an outfielder who led the American Association hitters last year; another who led the Western League sluggers; and a third who practically led the Pacific Coast League. All of them are long hitters and at least one, probably two, will be permanent. The club is trying hard for a proven extra-base slugger, caliber about .275 or over, who can field some and clean up with the bat when men are on base. They have a man lined up but have not signed him.

Jones' Outlook Fair.

THE situation Manager Jones will be confronted with is therefore not so bad, containing strength where he most desires it—in battery work, with a promise of speed and hitting. One-half the infield and two-thirds of the outfield are still problematical.

Fielder's case is at least as hopeful as Huggins', and with luck in new material landed he might nose his way into fifth place ahead of the Yankees.

Even with good fortune, he would still have to go some to lift his aggregation into the first division over clubs like the Sox, white and red, Cleveland and Detroit.

Dempsey "the Goods?"

This Jack Dempsey seems to be a real heavyweight terror. Stopping Carl Morris in six rounds is a better job than either Willard or Fulton could do. It outranks the performances of a dozen well-known heavyweights. Carl has always been easy to hit, but hard to floor.

Perhaps Dempsey is going to have something to say about Fred Fulton's claim to be first in line for consideration by Jess Willard.

The ring can stand a little new blood in the heavyweight class.

Kumagae, Japanese Net Star, to Invade U. S.

ICHIYA KUMAGAE, the diminutive Japanese tennis player whose wonderful campaign in the United States in 1916 resulted in his being ranked fifth in the country, is coming to America again.

Word received here is to the effect that he will soon leave Japan to take up a permanent residence in the United States. He is expected to enter the employ here of a Nipponese importing firm.

Cleveland Beaten by Soldan Five; Central in Lead

Dope Jolted in High School Double Header; Central Nears the Title.

Once more Solden spilled the dope in the High School Backet Ball League by defating Cleveland yesterday afternoon in the feature game of the weekly double-header. Soldan had previously beaten Cleveland, but because of a reversal in form in the interim, Cleveland went into the contest yesterday the favorite.

The final score was 20 to 17, Soldan holding a 10 to 7 edge at the half way mark. The second period was one of the most exciting of the season. Cleveland was leading with about five minutes to play, when Soldan tied it at 17 all. French then scored a field goal, puting Soldan two points in the lead and Smith's free throw about 2 minutes before closing time, spelled defeat for Cleveland.

Scores Are Scarce.

One of the real features of the game was the scarcity of scores. Placke, for Cleveland, counted 11 free throws out of 22 attempts, while Smith for Soldan, counted 12 free throws in 20 tries. Thus was the game won largely on free throws, as Cleveland counted but 3 field goals while Soldan bagged one more.

The lineup.

Soldan.	Positions.	Cleveland.
French	Left forward	Placke
Smith	Right forward	Hamel
Calhoun	Center	Lippert
Gazzolas	Right guard	Scholz

Substitutes—Long for Calhoun, Schnaus for Gazzolas, Crumm for Placke, Gilbert for Hamel.

Points—French, 6; Smith, 14; Placke, 11; Hamel, 2; Lippert, 4.

Central Nears Title.

Central all but clinched their right to the Interscholastic title in the first game of the double bill yesterday, by beating Yeatman 22 to 14. As the race now stands, all the teams have two more games to play and Central can lose their two, while either Soldan or Cleveland must win both to tie the Centralites for the lead. On the other hand, if Central wins next week, they will clinch the title.

Widdicomb's playing was a big feature of the game. The Central guard got back in the game after an absence of several weeks and he minimized the work of Linnemeyer to such an extent that the latter was able to count but one field goal. This weighed heavily in the balance against Yeatman.

Yeatman counted but four field goals, while Central scored twice that number. The winners wheeled into the second period on the long end of a 13 to 8 score. The lineup:

Central.	Position.	Yeatman.
Farnsworth	Right forward	Meyer
Cristal	Center	Crauswick
Widdicomb	Right guard	Samel

Substitutes—Foster for Crossley, Wassal for Foster, Wellman for Meyer, Weinel for Crauswick, Roettger for Samel.

Points—Crossley, 7; Farnsworth, 4; Cristal, 9; Widdicomb, 2; Linnemeyer, 6; Crauswick, 2; Weinel, 2; Hausladen, 4.

LOCAL YOUNGSTER TO GET TRIAL WITH LITTLE ROCK

Harry English, St. Louis boy, will be given a chance to hold down the shortstop job for the Little Rock club of the Southern Association during the coming season. English has been ordered to report to Little Rock on March 20. Norman (Kid) Elberfeld, former big leaguer, is managing the club.

English is just 18 years old and has been playing semipro baseball here for the past two years, as a member of the Gray-Adams club. Those who have seen the youngster perform predict a successful career for him. He is fast, a good fielder and has hit well in the company in which he has been traveling.

ATHLETICS PROVE "LIFE SAVER" FOR MEN 'OVER THERE'

Sodiers Take to Sports as Soon as They Embark From Transports in France.

BASEBALL REAL LEADER

French Peasants Always Interested Spectators at Games Between the Teams.

PARIS, France, Feb. 23.—In the language of the soldiers themselves, sports have been a "life-saver" for the American expeditionary forces in France. No sooner does a transport land its quota of troops than the big athletic field at the American demarkation port in France is crowded. Games of all kinds furnish the best possible means of resting cramped muscles and providing relief after the long nerve-straining trip overseas. At the big base camps inland, too, and in every village where Americans are billeted, athletics are the constant diversion in leisure hours.

Baseballs by the thousand have been sent over to meet the insatiable demand. From far and near the French peasants have come to view these curious soldiers from another land and to watch in puzzled astonishment the even more curious game that is their favorite.

Miniature World's Series are regular events every Wednesday and Saturday afternoon at the many places where Americans are found The French crowd around utterly regardless of foul tips and the players' warnings not to stand behind the bat.

Other Sports Are Popular.

But if baseball is most popular, other sports run it a close second. Athletics of every kind are so highly regarded by the military that this phase of the new recreation center established for American troops in the French Alps has been placed in charge of the Y. M. C. A. with instructions to provide every means of interesting and recreating the soldiers on leave from the front.

The American soldier is almost never too tired or too hungry or too homesick or "blue" to play. The footballs and baseballs and other athletic equipment which the Y. M. C. A. provides for him are seldom idle, unless the weather is such as to drive him indoors. Even then he resorts to indoor games, such as ping pong, which now has a great vogue throughout the American camps.

A good many games the American soldier boy has learned since coming to camp. Volleyball is one of the outdoor games which was new to the soldier, but has won a wide popularity under the auspices of the Y. M. C. A. physical directors who perfected the game in their big gymnasiums back home.

The games that require no change of clothing are the ones that have won the greatest numbers of enlisted men. A soldier doing intensive training has little or no time for changing his clothes.

Inter-Unit Games Fostered.

In the furnishings and incidentals of the standard type of Y. M. C. A. hut, a standard athletic equipment costing more than $300 is always included. More than 140 different items are included in this equipment, for such games as volleyball, baseball, football, quoits, basketball, soccer, medicine ball, boxing, wrestling.

Competitive sports in the camps all have a direct bearing on the morale of the troops. Esprit d' corps is being fostered by way of inter-unit competition in games, meets and other contests; by bringing about through the medium of athletics the group spirit and loyalty that "root for the home team."

In practically every one of the big camps and cantonments, often on direct invitation of the commandant, the head Y. M. C. A. athletic director has worked out a comprehensive scheme of divisional athletics.

Its aim is to have every company represented by a team in some one of the leading athletic activities.

Ticket Sale for Municipal Event Now Totals $804

Association Is Assured of Making Money at Benefit Carnival Next Saturday.

The Municipal Athletic Association, which is staging an athletic meet for the benefit of the Soldiers and Sailors Club at the Coliseum next Saturday night, will make money on the venture, it was announced by Rodowe Abeken yesterday. To date $804 worth of tickets have been sold, while the expenses will amount to about $600. This means that $204 is already cleared.

The tickets sold represent 1000 reserved at 50 cents each and 304 boxes at $1. The only remaining tickets to be sold are those for 25 cents. Many houses in the city have asked for reserved seats, but it was impossible to accommodate them. Among those who asked for these were the Forest Park Golf Club and Grover Cleveland High School.

The Missouri Athletic Association will have a three-man team in the meet, it was announced yesterday. Irving Biel, the veteran ten-miler, will be entered in the 6000 and 1000 yard runs, while John Mohen will start in the 600. The other entrant is Fritz Laumar, a former Central High School star, who will compete in the shot put.

Entries for the meet close on Friday night.

New Orleans Man Will Referee Bout Between Fred Fulton and Moran

NEW ORLEANS, Feb. 23.

DICK BURKE, a local man, has been chosen to referee the Fred Fulton-Frank Moran 20-round fight, scheduled to take place here Monday. The announcement followed the arrival here yesterday of Moran, who came from Hattiesburg, Miss., where he had chaperoned his Camp Wadsworth boxing team through a tournament with the Camp Shelby fighters.

Moran really is in splendid condition, thanks to his post as boxing instructor and to the unusual efforts he has expended in getting himself into condition. He says he weighs 196 pounds, which is less than when he faced Willard, two years ago.

Preparations have ben made to care for the largest attendance in the history of ring affairs in this city.

Third Meeting of Cole and M'Govern Set for March 5

Eddie Randall or Kid Regan Wanted by S. B. A. C. for Subsequent Bout.

With the return meeting between Billy Cole and Benny McGovern slated March 5, South Broadway Athletic Club officals now are looking ahead for a suitable bout for two weeks from that date. It is the hope of the promoters that they can find opponents for either Eddie Randall or his bantamweight protege, Kid Regan.

Cole and McGovern have agreed to make 125 pounds at 3 o'clock on the afternoon of their bout and there was no hitch this time involving finances. McGovern got the long end of the purse in their previous meeting, but agreed the next time they were matched to meet Billy on evee financial terms.

There has been much dispute since the second meeting of the boys as to the supremacy. Many critics called the bout a draw, while Cole was given a shade by others. It appears they are about as evenly matched as any two boys in the city and a knockout probably will be the only satisfactory means of determining who is the better man.

Young Zulu Kid, who has been asked to meet Kid Regan at the South Broadway Club, is trying to perpetrate a holdup in the matter of terms, according ot South Broadway officials and there is little chance for the match. Joe Sarno, Zulu's manager, claims his boy is the most sought after boxer in the business and says any club which doesn't meet his demands won't get a look at Zulu. Broadway Club officials are wondering whether, if this is the case, Zulu can find time to fill an engagement here, if he were given the chance.

TWO MANAGERS AND FOUR MUNICIPAL SOCCER STARS ARE SUSPENDED BY HEADS

Two managers of teams in the Municipal Soccer Association, and four players, were suspended indefinitely during the past week by the officials of the league. This is the greatest number of kickers that have been set down in a single week during the present campaign.

Those suspended were R. E. Golden, manager of the K. F. M. team; Ben Gilbers, manager of the St. Liborius, and players J. Burke, St. Matthews; W. Dillon, St. Teresas; Phil Keagher, St. Teresas and J. Howard of the K. F. M. Juniors.

Louis LaBarge of the Herrmanns and L. McSkimming of the Alpen Braus were reinstated.

STEPS MAY BE TAKEN TO STOP RACING IN ARKANSAS

LITTLE ROCK, Ark., Feb. 23.—Legal steps to prevent the spring race meet at Hot Springs, scheduled to open next Thursday, for which 25,000 race fans and 1500 horses already are at the Spa are to be taken, it was learned today.

The old story of "fussing" among themselves is said to be behind the move.

Downtown bookmakers at Hot Springs have been refused the privilege of making books and they are said to be behind the legal steps. Several years ago when racing was stopped former Gov. Jeff Davis, prohibited them because track officials refused to reinstate horses owned by his friend, the late R. R. Rice.

PIRATES SIGN SANDERS

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Feb. 23.—John Ganzel, manager of the Kansas City Club of the American Association, announced tonight that Roy Sanders, pitcher, had signed a contract with the Pittsburg Nationals, completing a deal arranged last season by which Sanders and Fred Molwitz were to be traded to Pittsburg for four players. Molwitz went at once, but Sanders refused to sign with the National League team until paid a $500 bonus he alleged was due him on a contract with George Tebeau, the owner of the club.

DEMPSEY TO BOX BRENNAN

Coast Heavyweight Is Scheduled to Appear in Hard Test Tomorrow Night.

By John E. Wray.

The fires under the heavyweight pugilistic point, which have been allowed to die away to ashes to Champion Jess Willard, will be rekindled tomorrow night in two places—New Orleans and Milwaukee. Conversation Jess has been completely ignored of late, thanks to the genuine interest excited in two live wires of pugilism, young giants who are getting into the ring at every opportunity and are literally fighting down the growing sentiment against heavyweights, caused by the champion's sloth and sidestepping.

These two young Richmonds are Jack Dempsey, the Pacific Coast meteor, and Fred Fulton of Rochester, Minn. Both will take part in matches Monday, Dempsey against "Kayo" Brennan of Mayo, Ireland, and Fulton against the oft-defeated but tough Frank Moran of Pittsburg.

Outstanding in interest is, of course the match at New Orleans, between Moran and Fulton. Willard, in the course of many contradictory statements, has been quoted as saying that he would meet the winner of this bout, or the winner of a Fulton-Dempsey contest. The New Orleans fight is a 20-rounds affair, to a decision, whereas the Brennan-Dempsey mill is to be just a 10-round, no decision event.

"Moran Is Dangerous."—Collins

New Orleans is wrought up over Fulton's match. Both principals have paid especial attention to training for it. The following extract from a letter written to the Post-Dispatch by Fulton's manager, Mike Collins, expresses the Minnesotan's view of the encounter:

"Fulton has really worked hard for this match, doing eight miles on the road each morning. Yesterday he boxed 20 rounds in gymnasium to test his wind for the derby route. He finished as fresh as when he began. Barring accidents he will step into the ring, Monday night, a practically perfect fighting machine.

"We are taking every precaution not to disturb Fulton's health and have even brought our own water here. I have reports on very good authority that Moran has worked harder for this bout than ever before in his life. He is in better shape than he was when he opposed Willard, knowing that he faces the possibility of a longer and much harder battle. All we have to remark concerning his improved condition is that he will have to put up a lot better fight Monday than he did against Willard to win from Fulton.

"Interest here is very keen, the betting being now [illegible] to 5 on Fulton. I know it will be a tough fight and a dangerous one for Fulton, as Moran can hit; but I figure the prestige to be gained by a victory over Moran will be well worth any chance we may be taking.

"We expect to box at Chattanooga, on March 1 and will start an engagement of one week at a St. Louis theater, March 3, matinee.

Moran's Record Is Poor.

Notwithstanding Collins' estimate of Moran, as a "dangerous" opponent, there is nothing in his record to prove this. He has fought a few good fighters but has lost to all of them. Third raters like Tony Ross, Jack Geyer and Jim Savage, have beaten him. He has had but 11 fights in five years, and last year took part in but three contests, in two of which he was outpointed. He is 31 years old, slow, lacks science and is a mark for a clever boxer. He will be outclassed by his opponent, Fulton, in height, weight, reach, speed, skill and possibly punching power.

Moran's reputation has been built up by good publicity, he himself being a good talker and of engaging personality. He has a tremendous "haymaker" and is game—those factors about cover his merits.

While in St. Louis recently Collins stated that Fulton was confident he could stop Moran in five or six rounds. That is the way this bout figures.

Dempsey Coming Fast.

At Milwaukee the 22-year-old Jack Dempsey will encounter more rugged opposition than any he has faced since he came out of the far west. Since his arrival in the mid-west Dempsey stopped Homer Smith in a punch, knocked out Jim Flynn almost as quickly, and was winning from Carl Morris when the referee allowed him a victory on a foul.

Brennan was a busy fighter last year, he participated in 32 bouts of which nine ended in knockout victories in his favor. No notable names are among those "kayoed," however. Joe Bonds, Joe Cox, Jack Clifford and fighters of that stamp being about the average of those beaten down. Men like Tom Cowler, Bob Devere and other fighters of fourth rate lasted 10 rounds with him, indicating that Brennan is no world-beater. He's rugged, however and can stand the gaff better than the men Dempsey has previously encountered.

Dempsey must win, if he's to be a real candidate for a match with Fulton.

280 MEN INSURED FOR $2,800,000 AT BARRACKS IN DAY

Total of Policies Taken Out There by Soldiers to Date is $60,000,000.

Two hundred and eighty enlisted men were insured yesterday at the war risk insurance office at Jefferson Barracks. Each took $10,000, making the day's business $2,800,000. Up to date, says Capt. John Andrews, in charge of the office, enlisted men passing through the post have taken a total of $60,000,000 insurance.

The percentage of men taking the insurance is 99.0. The average policy is in excess of $9000. The maximum amount one man is permitted to take is $10,000.

Capt. Andrews made public a statement issued by Secretary of the Treasury McAdoo, calling attention to the fact that persons who receive compensation for assistance in collecting benefits under the war insurance law are subject to fine and imprisonment. The statement is prompted by the fact that survivors of men who have died in the service and others entitled to compensation are being circularized by persons who offer assistance in making collections.

The Secretary desires everybody to know that the employment of attorneys or claim agents is unnecessary and that the Treaesury Department will save them the needless expense. Blanks for the presentation of claims can be obtained by writing to the Bureau of War Risk Insurance, Washington, D. C., and telling the name of the person who has been killed or injured and his relationship to the person making the claim. If any further information or assistance is needed in the filling out of the blanks the Bureau of Risk Insurance will furnish it.

LARGE INTERESTS SEEK QUARTERS IN SHOPS BUILDING

Proximity of Columns an Obstacle to Its Selection as Home by St. Louis Union Trust Company and Its Companion Bank.

DEPARTMENT STORE PROBABLE LESSEE

Considerable Space in 16-Story Structure to Be Completed in About 18 Months Reported by Builders to Have Been Already Engaged.

By Berry Moore.

Developments during the week disclosed that the Shops Building, in course of construction at the southwest corner of Eighth and Olive streets, is receiving noteworthy attention from large interests in quest of pretentious quarters in the business district of the city.

It became known yesterday that the first three floors and basement of the building have been under consideration as a home for the St. Louis Union Trust Co. and its companion, the St. Louis Union Bank. While the directors of the Trust Co. admitted that the building had been under discussion for this purpose, its construction, they stated, had proceeded too far to be amended to conform with their requirements.

The principal objection to the plans was found, it is said, in the proximity of the columns to one another. These as arranged are only 25 feet apart, thus rendering the building unavailable as a spacious and untrammeled banking room, such as is contemplated by the directors, according to an official of the Trust Co. The building, which otherwise appealed to the bankers, was rejected, it was said, for that reason.

The columns, it is contended, are essential, owing to the great weight of the structure, which will be 16 stories, with basement and sub-basement, and this notwithstanding the fact that it will be of reinforced concrete construction, in which a minimum of steel is used.

The Trust Co., in conjunction with the bank, now occupies an imposing and spacious building at the northwest corner of Fourth and Locust streets. This building, because of the great growth of the twin institutions, is inadequate both as to size and and centrality of location.

Other Home Sites in View.

The company has, it is understood, several other sites in view, with plans for the erection of a home according to its own ideas. Notable among these is the southwest corner of Sixth and Olive streets, where a site of ample dimensions is available, and of which immediate possession can be obtained.

The St. Louis Union Trust Co. was originally established at the northwest corner of Seventh and Olive streets, where it occupied commodious quarters in the Central National Bank building, formerly known as the Union Trust Building.

The Eighth and Olive streets corner, where the Shops building is being erected, and which constitutes one of the strongest and most commanding sites in the business district, has been under consideration for home purposes by other leading banks and trust companies. These included the American Trust Co. and its associate, the Title Guaranty Trust Co., which are erecting a building for their exclusive occupancy on the south side of Locust street, between Seventh and Eighth streets.

This quarter of the business district was established as a financial center 16 or 17 years ago, when the Mercantile Trust Co. staked its claim at the northeast corner of Eighth and Locust streets, erecting there a building which has since been enlarged to more than twice its original size by the erection of an addition at the southeast corner of Eighth and St. Charles streets. This building occupies the entire west half of the block with an arcade, extending from Locust to St. Charles streets, and is accessible to Locust, Eighth and St. Charles streets.

Two weeks ago promoters with plans to consolidate two large retail concerns, obtained an option on the first eight floors of the Shops Building. The negotiations involving these interests collapsed, however, and the option was permitted to lapse.

The proprietors of a local department store, with a large and long-established business, it is understood, are very much attracted by the potentialities of this building for retail purposes. A deal with this concern for this building, it is belived, is not unlikely.

The dominant feature of the Shops building will also be an arcade extending from Olive to Pine streets, the former site of the Moser Hotel building having been purchased for a Pine street entrance to the structure.

Considerable space in the upper stories of the Shops Building has been leased by both local and outside interests, the indications being that the building will be leased from the plans before its completion, which will be within about 18 months, according to the builders.

The building is being erected by the Mortgage Finance Co., of which Edward A. Mallinckrodt, a director of the St. Louis Union Trust Co., is president, and the Jane Realty Co., of which Isaac T. Cook is president, the two companies being affiliated. The Mortgage Finance Co. is erecting the structure that will occupy the Olive street part of the site, which embraced the holdings of Thomas Wright, a strip fronting on Eighth street, purchased from the Carmody estate, and the site of the Burlington, or Holbrook-Blackwelder Real Estate Trust Co., on Olive street. The Jane Realty Co. is erected the building on the site of the former Moser Hotel.

Box Company Leases Structure.

The Martin-Breitt Real Estate Co. reports having closed a lease of the two-story and basement building at the northeast corner of Nineteenth street and Washington avenue, to the Glueck Box Co. The building contains about 60,000 square feet of floor space. The property is owned by the Wrought Iron Range Co.

Coffee Company Leases Building.

Barngrove & Spect report the closing of a lease of the three-story commercial building at 612 South Sixth street, for Mrs. Hattie Watkins to the Empire Coffee Co., which, after extensive alterations and repairs, has put in modern equipment.

Apartments All Leased, $60,000 Annual Rental

THE demand for high-class apartments of the unit kind in St. Louis is exemplified in the fact that all the suites in the Westmoreland at 5330 Berlin avenue have been leased, although the building was only recently completed. Many of the apartments were leased from the plans, while the building was under construction.

The building comprises 77 apartments of from four to six-room efficiency, including kitchenette and bath and shower. All the suites are grouped and arranged with a view to the health and comfort of the occupants.

The structure rises eight stories in height and occupies a site 150x225 feet. It is absolutely fireproof and of the highest order of construction.

The equipment includes two high-speed electric passenger elevators and one freight elevator, and all the labor-saving devices known to the higher class of buildings of this character.

Attractive features are a roof garden, equipped with swings and other vehicles of pleasure and a cafe which, it is said, rivals the finest in the West End.

The building was promoted by Sam Hamburg Jr. and was erected by the Midas Apartment Realty Co., of which former Mayor Kreismann is president; W. H. Niederluecke, vice president; W. H. Hauschulte, treasurer and Julius C. Muench, secretary.

The building was erected under the supervision of Sam Koplar, vice president of the Sam Koplar Real Estate and Building Co., which was awarded the contract for its construction, and was financed by the Title Guaranty Trust Co.

While the cost o fthe structure has not been disclosed, its valuation may be gauged by the rentals, which, according to the Rosenbaum-Hauschulte Real Estate Co., the agents, aggregate $60,000 annually. The apartments are adjacent to Forest Park and Westmoreland and Parkland places. The lease run for two and three years.

BE MODEST IN REPAIR DEMANDS, REALTY MAN SAYS TO TENANTS

Points to High Cost of Everything, Especially Coal for Heating Apartments.

Frederick A. Dalumer of the Henry Hiemenz Realty Co., reports an increasing demand for flats, houses and apartments. Indications are, he says, that there will be few vacancies in St. Louis at the end of the current year.

Owing to the increase cost of everything tenants, he thinks, should be modest in their demands for repairs, etc., especially those of apartment buildings, which are heated by the owners and at 60 per cent greater cost than a year ago.

JOHN S. HARRIS WILL HEAD FARISH & CO. SALES DEPT.

Former Independent Operator Placed Many Suburban Tracts on Market.

John S. Harris has been engaged by J. H. Farish & Co. for their sales department. Harris is one of the best-known and most resourceful real estate men in St. Louis. He formerly conducted a real estate office on his own behalf, making a specialty of sales of large tracts for subdivision purposes. Hill Crest, North Parkview addition, the Country Club and other high-class additions were placed on the market by him.

INTO ADVERTISING BUILDING

Tenants Begin Moving to New Structure at Seventeenth and Locust.

The Advertising Building, Seventeenth and Locust streets, to which the finishing touches are being given, began the past week to fill with tenants.

Among the lessees first into the new structure are the Fisher-Ruebel-Brown Advertising Co., which has the entire ninth floor. This company vacated quarters in the Drygoodsman and Boatmen's Bank Building. The Rapid Engraving Co., the Garrison-Wagner Printing Co. and the Drygoodsman Publishing Co. are others which moved into the building last week, the four filing the seventh, eighth and ninth floors.

ST. LOUIS REALTY FIRM EXTENDS OPERATIONS TO TULSA, OK.

Bush-Burns to Specialize in Homes There, for Five of Which Ground Is Broken.

The Bush-Burns Realty Co., which has for several years been specializing in the building and selling of homes in St. Louis, is exjanding its field to Tulsa, Ok. A branch office has been established in that city, to conduct a general real estate and building business.

Robert A. Burns has been spending considerable time in Tulsa for several months, arranging for the establishment o fthis branch, and has purchased a number of choice lots in the best residence section of the city for the erection of high-class homes.

Ground has been broken for the erection of the first group, consisting of five houses to sell at $8000 to $12,000. Burns says there is a good demand for high-class homes selling from $10,000 to $25,000, and his firm expects to build between 25 and 50 such houses this year.

The firm will at the same time continue active operation in St. Louis.

Flat Is Traded for Farm.

The Christian Brinkhop Real Estate Co. reports having traded the two-story single flat at 2242 Osage street, containing six rooms, for a client of the John H. Utthoff Real Estate Co., for a 100-acre farm at Cedar Hill, St. Louis County, owned by August C. Altmeyer and wife. The firm also reports having made loans aggregating $28,500.

SUPPLY COMPANY LEASES 17TH AND OLIVE BUILDING

WALL BUILDING AUCTION

Capitalists Expected to Compete for West End Business Property to Be Sold March 7.

That early developments in the real estate sphere will be on a higher scale is perceived in the renewed demand for commercial buildings, warehouses and for apartment houses for investment and revenue purposes.

The feature of the week was a lease acquired by the Southern Railway Supply and Equipment Co. of a seven-story and basement building to be erected at the southwest corner of Seventeenth and Olive streets by the George T. Burdeau Realty Co. The lease is for 10 years and was negotiated by the Martin-Breitt Real Estate Co.

While the plans for the building, of which Preston J. Bradshaw is the architect, had been completed, the capital for its erection was not forthcoming until the lease had been executed. The building will be of reinforced concrete construction and will have a frontage on Olive street of 80 feet by a depth along Seventeenth street of 117 feet. It will be equipped with three elevators, two freight and one passenger. The cost of the structure, including the site, will approximate $200,000.

The Southern Railway Supply and Equipment Co. is composed of Joseph C. Reed, president; Ephram Catlin, secretary and treasurer, and Walter D. Achuff, vice president and sales manager. Its capital was recently increased from $150,000 to $200,000, its original capital being only $65,000. The concern, which was established in a small store on Walnut street, opposite the Southern Hotel, is now located at 1113 North Second street. The growth of its business has been such that it has had to suplpement its main quarters with warehouses in various parts of the city.

Third Big Addition to Olive Street.

This is the third lagre supply company to locate on Olive street within the last six months, which, according to the Martin-Breit Real Estate Co., indicates the life imparted to this thoroughfare with the erection of the Post-Dispatch building at Twelfth and Olive streets. The other two concerns are the Continental Supply Co., which has taken extensive quarters in the Post-Dispatch building, and the H. W. Johns-Manville Co., which has acquired a 20-year lease of the seven-story building at the southeast corner of Eleventh and Olive streets. The first-mentioned lease was effected by Cornett & Zeibig, and the second by the Martin-Breit Real Estate Co. in connection with the Cornet & Zeibig Real Estate Co.

Capitalists are expected to be in imposing array at the aution sale of the six-story Wall building, at the northwest corner of Vandeventer avenue and Olive streets, to be held March 7, under the provision of a first deed of trust for $100,000, the interest on which has been delinquent since Nov. 1.

The structure was erected a few years ago by the Hanover Realty and Power Co., in which Charles Wall was the prime mover and which held the site under a 99-year lease. The Meyer Bros. Drug Co., of which Wall was treasurer, financed the project, and as a result was plunged into bankruptcy.

The sale will be made under the auspices of the St. Louis Union Trust Co., as trustee under the deed of trust. The cost of the building, exclusive of the site, was $230,000.

Sale of Apartments Probable.

Negotiations are virtually concluded for the sale of the Jeffersonian Apartments, at the northeast corner of Waterman and DeBaliviere avenues, owned by a corporation of which A. J. Francis is president to an East St. Louis capitalist.

In part payment the East St. Louis capitalist will transfer to Francis a 500-acre farm in the vicinity of Lebanon, Ill., at a valuation of about $100,000, it is understood.

The Jeffersonian Apartments comprise 90 or more suites and vies with the handsomest and most modern structures of its kind. The location is midway between Delmar avenue and the Jefferson Memorial entrance to Forest Park. The building is under the management of the Oreon E. & R. G. Scott Realty Co., which makes a specialty of financing and managing buildings of this type.

The Harlan Court Apartments, at 5455 and at 5463 Delmar avenue, were also erected by a company of which Francis is the head. The University Investment Co., of which Francis is president, is erecting the Brentmoor Apartments in the 5400 block of Delmar avenue, the site of which is adjacent to Washington terrace.

The Harlan Court Apartments have been in negotiation many times during the last six months, at prices ranging from $750,000 to $1,000,000. The annual rental from these apartments aggregates nearly $100,000.

Office Buildings Filling.

According to W. K. Morrison, manager of the Fullerton building, vacancies in the large downtown office structures are being rapidly absorbed by tenants from the Navarre and other buildings, which are to be converted for hotel purposes. He announces having received numerous inquiries as to office accommodations from outside interests, which are contemplating establishing offices or branches in St. Louis. These, he says, include many concerns which closed their offices in other large cities, for various reasons, when the war broke out. In most instances large space is sought, he declares. He is now in correspondence with large coal mining interests, which have expressed a desire to open offices here. The Coal Operators' Association of the Fifth and Ninth District of Illinois occupies quarters on the sixth floor of the structure. The Fifth and Ninth District Coal Bureau, of which P. H. Greenlaw is secretary, also has its offices in this building.

Obviously, Morrison says, these concerns are preparing for after-the-war business, which, it is predicted, will be unprecedented.

Contracts Let for $50,000 Garage

ALBERT G. ECKHARDT has let contracts to the Farrish & Gray Contracting Co. for the erection of a handsome garage building at the southwest corner of Pine street and Leffingwell avenue.

The building, the sale of the site of which was negotiated by the Weisels-Gerhart Real Estate Co., will have a frontage of 105 feet on Pine street by a depth of 132 feet along Leffingwell avenue. It will include a storeroom, 90x35 feet, and a garage 100x105 feet.

The work will be done under the supervision of Victor Klutho, architect. The Haase Realty Co. represented Eckhardt, who is president of the Yellow Taxicab Co.

The cost of the building is estimated at $50,000.

This announcement is noteworthy as indicating the potentialities of Pine street as a certer for garages.

Confusion and Loss Laid to War Building System

T. C. Young Doubts Correctness of Recent Statement That Government Has Not Asked for Restricted Construction.

"According to a statement recently made before the St. Louis Chamber of Commerce, with authority said to have come direct from Washington, the Government has in 'no case requested that construction cease in St. Louis,' but that 'Washington desired the building industries to continue to supply the local requirements and demands,'" said T. C. Young of the firm of Eames & Young, architects.

"This is quite surprising, in view of apparently contrary advice which received wide publicity in the press," he continued. "The impression has been created that banks have been requested to make no building loans except for purposes directly connected with war contracts, and that municipalities had been asked to issue no building permits except for similar purposes. That the latter understanding is widespread and very generally observed is indicated by reports received from Chicago, New Orleans and other widely separated districts.

"As at present every executive department of the Government and every department of the army and navy has its own special building program, with separate official direction, it would be interesting to know from what source the Chamber of Commerce committee derived its information.

Abnormal Conditions Created.

"Collectively, the Government will require for war purposes an enormous amount of permanent and temporary building for various public purposes, besides much that is required for building new factories or enlarging old ones of private ownership. The concentration of most of this work in the East has resulted in a slowing up of the building schedule and an undesirable congestion of population, for which no adequate provision could be made. The results in other parts of the country has been an almost complete cessation of building activities, causing much unemployment of labor, or forcing it into unaccustomed channels. This condition might be remedied by a broader distribution of contracts and the adoption of a unified system of building, which would bring into complete, instead of only partial, use the resources of the country in building industries and trades.

"There seems to be no good reason for mixing munition contracts with contracts for construction work, as has been the usual custom.

Avoiding Confusion and Waste.

"Indeed, much confusion of direction could be avoided, besides effecting an enormous saving in time and money, should this separation occur and all governmental building activities united under a single authority. The training and experience necessary to the successful direction of the manufacturing branch do not furnish the requisite qualification for direction of building construction. It would be difficult to find both qualities combined in any individual.

"There seems to be no authority, except that of the President himself, to decide what building or work of construction may or may not be undertaken without conflict with the interests of the Government. Perhaps the President has something of this sort in mind in asking authority of Congress to establish other bureaus as might be required to better co-ordinate all war activities.

"It is difficult to understand where the Government may gain by the practical annihilation of an important industry, particularly when the skilled technical and physical labor so released cannot well be usefully employed in other occupations more directly concerned in making war."

Discussing the proposed zoning system, Young said:

Delay of Planned Improvements.

"In view of the restrictions imposed by the Government on building or works involving construction not connected with war activities, it is improbable that St. Louis will be able in the near future to put into effect many of the public improvements recommended by the City Plan Commission. It might, however, without conflicting with the interests of the Government, make an effort to establish the zoning system in St. Louis. The unrestricted right of use in private property is now very generally condemned as a bar to progress and the evil results have been pointed out, the best illustration being provided in the present condition of St. Louis, with more than one-quarter of its territory abandoned as useless. If this is true, it would indicate a loss in real estate value that undoubtedly would greatly exceed the cost of the most extravagant improvements likely to be proposed.

"It was quite startling, however, to learn that the proposed zoning system would in no way affect the present occupation of land. It would seem as though this would merely be to continue the present condition without showing how it might be converted to better use. It would, for instance, be difficult to assign certain 'blighted districts' for industrial use unless there are more new industries to fill the territory and unless the facilities for transportation, etc., are provided to make the property desirable for this purpose. The architects are generally agreed that to restrict the hight of buildings and their use is as necessary as to regulate the methods of construction. The proper application of the zoning system would tend to improve the appearance of the city and to stabilize the value of real estate investments."

EXHIBIT BUILDING PROVED ITS VALUE BY AUTO SHOW

General Manager Phelps Says Judgment of Directors of Enterprise Is Vindicated.

M. F. W. C. GIVEN QUARTERS

State Organization Tendered Use of Space for Offices and Conventions.

"Importance as a St. Louis asset has been demonstrated by the Exhibit Building, according to popular verdict voiced to me during the Auto Show this week," said George H. Phelps, general manager of the enterprise, yesterday. "With that verdict as reinforcement of the company's judgment, the original plans for the future of the permanent exposition, or buyers' and sellers' club, will not only be carried forward in detail with the utmost rapidity, but we shall promptly supplement them whenever we are convinced that the institution's usefulness to the community will be enhanced thereby."

The first suggestion, other than that by the musical people of the city for a recital hall equipped with an adequate pipe organ, announcement of which was made last week, came from Charles Hatfield, secretary and general manager of the Convention and Publicity Bureau. This was that the Federation of Women's Clubs of Missouri be provided with headquarters in the building without charge to the organization. The proposal was at once adopted and the officials of the organization, which is a body composed of nearly 50 clubs, notified that accommodations were at their disposal at once, with assurance that later, when the task of converting the entire building to its new use had been completed, better provision would be made for them.

Women's Work Appreciated.

"What we are here to accomplish is all that may be found to be practicable for the general welfare and progress of St. Louis," Phelps said, "and in our plans the women are of equal importance with the men, even if the latter do constitute the business element and the Exhibit Building is a business enterprse. We hold it to be a community institution.

"One or two more big exhibitions are on our schedule for accommodation, extending over two or three weeks. While these are being taken care of we will push the work of conversion of the building early and late, so that when they are out of the way we will be ready to inaugurate the buyers' and sellers' club idea with every detail worked out and in almost perfect operation.

"It would hardly be possible for the average man or woman to realize just what the institution means for St. Louis. Even we who are intimately acquainted with its general scope and purpose expect to be agreeably surprised at developments in this direction. Under the one roof there will be assembled the best of what has been produced in the shop, the laboratory, the soil, or in any quarter where human knowledge may add to the world's store of commodities, also the creations of art and of science, no matter whence they emanate. While we are not announcing it as an international enterprise, foreign exhibitors will be welcomed, because if the old world has anything which the new one has not but ought to have, here will be a center for its display.

St. Louis Has First Call.

"St. Louis, of course, has the first call on space and we hope that local exhibits will demand a large proportion of the more than 200,000 square feet available for displays. We know that demands here are going to be extensive, but the greater they are the more distinctive the exposition as a St. Louis enterprise, and this is the paramount desire of the company. It will mean vastly enlarged trade for the city, and to this will be added national fame as a convention center, for we are going to give close attention to that section of our program as one of the great means of drawing people to St. Louis."

TIRED OF POVERTY

If you are tired of slaving for wages or salary, or the poor rewards of small business, while others around you grow rich and independent, if you have the ambition that every American ought to have and are determined not to stay poor in this land of Opportunity, I want you for a partner. Plan backed by the best men and women. Not space enough here to tell about it. Don't pass this by, it may change your life for the better. Tear this advertisement out right now, this minute, send name and address and get interesting illustrated book and full information, all absolutely free. Do it right now, for this opportunity won't last. CHARLES K. SAUNDERS, 310 Denham Bldg., Denver, Colo. (99)

ENTER A BUSINESS

Of your own and earn big annual income in professional fees, making and fitting a foot specialty to measure; readily learned by anyone at home in a few weeks; easy terms for training; openings everywhere with all the trade you can attend to. No capital required or goods to buy, no agency or soliciting. Address Stephenson Laboratory, 8 Back Bay, Boston, Mass. (c09)

SIXTY DOLLARS MAY START YOU ON FORTUNE'S ROAD.

Every man or woman has a dream of what he could do if he had the money. One wants enough to "buy a home," another to buy an automobile, the clerk to start a grocery, the milk-wagon driver to start a dairy, the maid to own a millinery, the father the means to educate his son. We all dream of a sum of money that will make us happy ever after. Without that dream we would be unfortunate, indeed. An investment is not safe merely because it earns 4 or 6 per cent; sometimes it is so watered it can't earn more; you call it seasoned when it's merely water-logged. The Standard Oil Co. doesn't want seasoned stuff at 4 per cent; it wants 500 per cent. We offer a proposition that differs from every and any ever offered. We don't want you to "take a chance," but to make a real investment that is sure and certain. All we ask is a chance to "show you;" the least you can do if you are wide awake is to give us a chance. You have an opportunity to "strike it rich;" at the same time your money is as safe as if it were invested in a corner lot of the busiest street in your city. Let us show you.
FRANCITAS CO-OPERATIVE ASSOCIATION, Mid-City Bldg., Grand and Olive.

RECORD CATTLE PRICES SCORED IN TRADE HERE

Market Is 50c to 75c Higher for the Week; Hogs Also Are Strong.

Reported for the Post-Dispatch by the National Livestock Commission Co., National Stockyards, Ill.

COMPARATIVE RECEIPTS.

	Last week.	Week before.	Last year.
Cattle	20,000	20,200	20,000
Hogs	84,700	73,000	85,000
Sheep	1,750	2,100	7,000

Last week was interesting in the cattle trade. The market showed activity and strength, closing with a net gain of 50c to 75c per cwt on all varieties of cattle. The advance in the market, on top of that of the week before, indicates a price rise of $1 to $1.50.

The strictly prime, finished cattle lacked several notches of being as high as the record basis last year, but the average kind that are selling from 7c to 12c per lb are in reality higher than ever known in the history of this market.

Choice to prime beef steers are quoted at $13 to $14; good to choice, $12 to $13; medium to good, $11 to $12; common to medium, $10 to $11; good to choice stockers and feeders, $10 to $11; medium to good, $9 to $10; common to medium, $8 to $9; good t choice stock cows, $7.75 to $8.25; good to choice heifers, $8.25 to $9; choice to prime fat yearling butcher cattle, $11 to $12.50; good to choice, $10 to $11; common to medium, $8.50 to $9.50; choice to fancy heavy beef cows, $10.50 to $11.50; good to choice, $9.25 to $10.50; medium to good, $8.50 to $9.25; cutters, $8 to $8.50; canners, $7 to $7.50; good fat beef bulls, $10 to $11; heavy sausage bulls, $9 to $10, and light sausage bulls, $8.50 to $9.

The upturn in hogs last week proved conclusively that urgent demand for fresh pork products, not only for local consumption, but for exterior movements in various quarters. While it had been expected that the market would move upward, an extreme advance was hardly looked for. Compared with the market week before last, the advance can best be explained in a comparison of the tops, viz.: $16.80 against $17.60, the extreme high point made on Friday of last week.

All varieties and weights shared in the advancing market, though the strongest gain centered on the weightier hogs.

On yesterday's market the city butchers secured a few hogs nearly steady with Friday, paying a top of $17.55. However, other good butcher grades brought $17.40 to $17.50, though only a few sales were made at the prices; then the market broke fully 15c per cwt, owing to unfavorable advice from other centers and the prospects for a liberal run Monday.

On yesterday's market good to choice hogs sold from $17.25 to $17.55; good mixed hogs, with weight, $17 to $17.25; 120 to 140 pound pigs, $15.50 to $16.25; lighter pigs, $11 to $15.25, and rough hogs at $16.25.

Scarcity of sheep receipts last week was a handicap to the market rather than a benefit, as hardly enough were available any one day to thoroughly bring out the fine points of the outlet, and in the limited competition, due to the small supply, the lamb market broke unevenly, though fat sheep commanded prices about as good as they have ben for some time.

Good to choice lambs are quoted at $16 to $16.50; fat sheep, $12 to $12.50. Goats bring $8 to $10, and kids, $11 to $12.

Northern Pacific Shows Big Losses in Earnings.

ST. PAUL, Minn., Feb. 23.—The operating income of the Northern Pacific in 1917 decreased $4,109,146.59, according to the report made today by Comptroller G. A. Gray to the Interstate Commerce Commission. The 1917 income was $27,423,034.78, and the 1916 was $31,532,181.37. The decrease is held due to the greatly increased cost of operation and maintenance resulting from war prices.

By Leased Wire From the New York Bureau of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Feb. 23.—The Evening Post, in its copyrighted weekly financial review, says:

"The form in which the railway control bill passed the Senate yesterday will probably encourage better feeling in regard to the railways, which has already been manifested on the Stock Exchange. The Senate, it is true, rejected the amendment providing for return of the railways to their private owners six months after peace is declared, and left the provision for 18 months of retention by the Government.

"If the House were to accept the Senate's action, and future Congresses were to make no change, the probability is that the railway managers themselves would be better satisfied with the longer than the shorter period; for 'demobilization' of armies and industries will create temporarily as complicated a situation as 'mobilization,' and there may be quite as much need for the exercise of paramount war powers in one process as in the other.

The Action of Congress.

"But the truth is that no provision enacted today, and naming the date for returning the railways to their owners, can amount to anything more than an expression of the wish of the present Congress. Any future Congress or any future session could amend or rescind it. The real importance of any specific declaration of the sort, in the present bill, is that it sets forth clearly the purpose of the present lawmakers.

"It will dispose altogether of the possibility that the courts might hereafter construe the railway control act of 1918, as having implied the intention, on the part of Congress, to retain the roads indefinitely.

The more practically interesting parts of the Senate bill are its provision—necessary under the circumstances—that the Government, in administering the roads, need not be bound by existing restrictive legislation, and the further provision that changes in rates shall be initiated by the President, but reviewed by the Interstate Commerce Commission.

"Apparently, this last provision was drawn up with a view to making possible prompt increase in rates, while still leaving the commission to pass on and correct inequities or injustices which might arise from such action.

"The Government's action in this matter, if the bill passes in the present form, will be highly interesting, and may conceivably set some sort of precedent for the longer future. At all events, rates must apparently be raised at once, unless the Government is to be a heavy loser through such drastic orders and embargoes as have already been promulgated, represents an important achievement. But it was accomplished at the expense of the railways' earning power, and the same result is likely to follow future policies of the Director-General.

Market Shows Selling.

"It is possible that the week-end reaction of the Stock Market in some way reflected the market's views of the German advance into Russia, and the situation created by it. If this meant simply that Wall Street was unable to draw any except confused and perplexing inferences from that episode, the market might be pardoned for retreating. Anyone can construct his own theory as to what will immediately result from this extraordinary invasion, and how it will affect the fortunes of the war.

"It is not illogical to assume that Germany's weak-kneed allies will be heartened, her own sullen people silenced, or stupified, and the war continued with enhanced prestige for the Berlin militarist cabal.

"Still there are a multitude of other and conflicting possibilities in this strange chapter of events. Through its captures in the wake of the fleeing Bolshevik troops, the German army has added largely to its own artillery and munitions. But it is diverting from other purposes, the army of invasion and occupation, which has its bearing on the much-advertised 'grand offensive' on the Western front.

"It is creating for Germany herself a political problem of great complexity and gravity, and, while pursuit of the hair-brained Bolshevik fanatics, who begin resistance by demobilization and surrender, can hardly parallel the circumstances of Napoleon's ill-fated Russian campaign, there are opportunities for military, as well as political miscarriage.

"On all this, it is hardly worth while to speculate. Very recent experience has shown how very apt the Eastern situation is to change completely over night, and it may be reversed tomorrow, so far as concerns the German policy.

"Apart from the purely military aspects of the episode, there is this much of actual reassurance in it—that the world has witnessed a highly practical demonstration of the result of the ultra-socialist scheme of government in operation. The ignominious collapse of the whole grotesque performance, and its visible results in the social and political, and now the military field, will hardly serve as a text for spreading the propaganda hereafter among reasoning men.

"The stock market showed irregular changes on the week's trading. Yesterday's dealings reflected profit-taking."

Stocks Active and Higher on New York Curb.

NEW YORK, Feb. 23.—The important movements on the Broad street curb during the past week were to materially higher prices, with vigorous trading in various groups of stocks at frequent intervals.

The war order stocks were more prominent, with Aetna Explosives unusually active and advancing from 6⅞ to 8½. Marlin Arms, which has been neglected for a long time, was traded in at 78 to 81½ and Submarine moved up from 13¾ to 13⅞. Charcoal Iron attracted attention because of accumulation by inside interests, with transactions at 8 to 8¼.

The Aeroplane stocks showed pronounced strength in the first half of the week, when Curtiss advanced from 39 to 41⅞, losing much of this gain on Thursday, and Wright-Martin, which had been quiet for some time past, developed a strong tone, advancing from 7⅝ to 8¼.

The motor stocks made the greatest gain shown in any group, Chevrolet advancing from 121 to 130⅞, and United Motor rose from 25 to 30. Standard Motor was traded in at 10 to 12.

Oil stocks showed an uncertain tone early, strength being followed by sales at concessions. Midwest Refining was the most prominent feature, advancing from 108 to 113. Cosden, after selling at 8⅝, reacted to 7⅞, and Houston Oil, which was in demand for a time, selling at 44, reacted to 41. Merritt ranged from 22 to 21¼. Oklahoma sold at 7 to 7½, and Sinclair Oil at 22½ to 21½.

The mining stocks were also irregular. Mainga, after advancing to 14¼ yielded about 1 point, and United Verde Extension, which moved up to 42, reacted to 39½.

St. Joseph Lead sold at 16⅝ to 16½, after the announcement of the reduced dividend.

A good deal of interest was shown in the outcome of important conferences in this city, by the financial interests concerned in Washoe Copper and Nixon-Nexada. These conferences have been going on for several days, but no information in regard to matters under consideration was furnished. The two stocks showed a firm tone, reflecting buying by Western interests.

Russian 5½s were traded in at 41½ to 38, and the 6½s sold at 45½ to 45.

Special Cable to the Post-Dispatch and New York Evening Post.

LONDON, Feb. 23.—"Belief is general in financial quarters here, that Germany's policy is to avoid conclusion of peace on definite terms with Bolshevik Russia, to secure physical possession of Petrograd, and then to pose as absolute conqueror.

"As for the Western front, the city expects a strong German effort at any moment, based on the hope of so improving the German position in that area, as to secure favorable terms of peace before your co-operation is fully effective.

"We attribute the rise on your Stock Exchange mainly to Government assumption of responsibility for increased cost of materials and wages, and to its virtual guarantee of existing railway dividends. The rebound in prices from the extreme depression of November and December, is considered natural and logical.

"Doubt is expressed, however, as to its lasting power. This is based on the experience of British rails, which, despite high yields at current prices and dividends, are friendless on the market, owing to fears regarding the problem of wages and cost of maintenance when public control ends. Your railway problem is presumably the same.

The Coming Loans.

"It is believed that our Government has no present purpose of issuing another fixed war loan; the intention being apparently to continue issuing the national war bonds, which now are producing ~~on~~ the average over £20,000,000 weekly. This, with taxation yielding £25,000,000, nearly equals the total current expenditure. It is hoped that subscription to the bonds will be increased still further through the reduction in money rates.

"The fiscal position, however, will possibly be somewhat different after March (the end of the fiscal year) when revenue will be reduced. Especially, there will be some change, if the Government's policy is to be to reduce considerably the floating debt.

"National revenue for the fiscal year to date is £564,000,000, against an estimate of £639,000,000, and £50,000,000 or £60,000,000 surplus over estimates is expected from the final returns. But expenditures is also nearly £500,000,000 over the original estimates.

"The Chancellor of the Exchequer recently stated that new taxation would be necessary if the war should extend beyond March. Further increase in the income tax has been discussed, otherwise, no strong views are expressed as to the direction of the new taxes."

"MAXIMUM" ON OATS HERE SET AT 94 CENTS

Futures Drop Three Cents at Week-End Session; Corn Is Slightly Lower.

A drive against oats futures on the Merchant's Exchange yesterday, sent prices prices down 3c, after the market had mounted at the preceding session to the highest point ever known. The declining followed action by officials of the exchanges in various markets, in placing maximum figures on all options up to and including May.

Prices here were set at 94c, or the market of the last sale in March oats. In Chicago and Kansas City the price set was 93c. In Winnipeg the maximum was placed at 99c. The Canadian market has ruled 5c to 6c higher than our markets for several months.

The action of the exchanges was taken in an effort to curb speculation which has carried oats up over 12c in about two weeks. Last fall when it was seen that the crop would be a record-breaker, oats sold at close to 50c in domestic markets.

Much of the buying that carried the market to the top, was induced by favorable recommendation in the Senate at Washington, of the bill to increase the price of the 1918 wheat crop from the Government's fixed value of $2 to $2.50 or $3.

Traders immediately bought oats and corn on the theory that this big jump in wheat's price would mean increased valuation for coarse grains, as they are being used so extensively for wheat substitutes, and the movement to market has been materially below last year, despite record harvests.

Just what the ultimate effect of the maximum on oats will be, has the trade guessing. The boards of trade set a price of $1.28 on corn futures, and since then every option has expired at the maximum, as cash corn has been selling at $1.50 to $2 a bushel.

Now with the maximum set on oats futures at 94c, the cash market is selling well over the future market of 88¼, and unless conditions are materially altered by peace in Europe, or a large run of oats in the next 60 days, the trade expects to see corn history repeated in oats, and each option go out at the maximum level.

OATS FALL FOUR CENTS IN THE CHICAGO MARKET

CHICAGO, Feb. 23.—Quick shrinkage in values took place today on the Board of trade as soon as new rules establishing maximum price limits on every commodity were put into effect.

Oats especially made a sharp descent. Net declines were: Corn, ¼c to ⅝@1¼c; oats, 3¼c to 4¼c, and provisions, 35c to $1.

In the oats market there was a general rush to sell at the instant the opening gong struck. Notwithstanding, however, that transactions amounted to a big aggregate, the pressure was of a widely distributed sort, which gave no evidence of affecting any large individual holders. Rallies that followed severe initial breaks in prices appeared to be due wholly to profit taking by shorts. Liquidation broadened again in the last part of the day.

Corn was easier with oats, but the new restrictions did not apply directly to corn any more than has been the case for some time. The fact that all freshly arrived corn here was in request helped to prevent radical weakness.

Sudden wiping out of all chance to make money on the buying side of provisions brought about a collapse of the market to the greatest extent allowed for one day. Virtually all the business done was at the extreme bottom.

ANSWERS TO QUERIES

A REMARKABLE FISH.

HOOK.—Carp came from Germany. Some States exempt them from their fish protection laws as nuisances. The carp in some places have conquered. Huge fellows—they often weigh 20 pounds apiece—they have driven out the little fellows to the disgust of anglers, and as they root up the mud in appetite for water vegetation and thereby pollute streams, the sanitarians are against them, too. Abhorred by the American fish eater, the carp have fattened and thriven like a privileged class and unless some very radical measures are geenrally adopted they will outlive their human enemies. Carp are said to live to be 200 years old. Thackeray moralized at Sans Souci over some carp he saw there which were said to have been fed by Frederick the Great. This was published in 1908: The German carp of our waters is taking the place of the buffalo to a great extent. Tons of these fish are sold in St. Louis every week. The fish dealers claim that they at times cannot supply the demand. The carp abounds in nearly all the waters that are tributary to the Mississippi. The Illinois River and adjacent sloughs and lakes furnish more carp for the Eastern market than people would imagine. Hundreds of car load lots are sent to New York and find a ready sale among the poor of the East Side, who consider the carp a fine table fish. Some of the dealers sell carp by another name. When addressed with his sucker head cut off he will have a ready sale as silver bass to the unsuspicious housewife, who doesn't know the difference. 224 men of the North American Fish and Game Protective Association and the fishery department of 3 provinces of Canada, were purposely deceived by being fed carp as red snapper, and the fish had been so well prepared that the deception was not discovered. The carp is hardy, very prolific, very free from parasites, grows rapidly to large size, and is easily handled and shipped. Its high percentage of protein, or muscle-building material, makes it an excellent substitute for beef or mutton, as its deficiency in fat can be entirely replaced by vegetables.

SAID OF NUTS.

VALENTINE.—Never use nuts as the main supply of food, but in company with more bulky foods. One authority says: Nuts are nature's meat and butter, and can therefore be used, with legumes, in the place of both meat and butter. In a word, the bulk of our food should consist of fruit, vegetables and some of the less hearty cereals and bread, with a sparing use of proteid fats. An excess of proteid foods is responsible for serious diseases. Faith is a large factor, even in the matter of eating. One who believes firmly that meat has a high nutritive value will feel satisfied after eating steak, with little else of real nourishment. But such a one, not knowing the value of nuts, would not realize that it takes only 3 walnut meats, or 8 pecan meats, or 14 blanched almond meats, to equal the 100 food units of the steak in question. Furthermore nuts are a less expensive form of proteid than meat. Says Dr. Winfield S. Hall: "On a diet of peanuts and apples, assuming that these foods were taken abstemiously and were very thoroughly masticated—in fact, pulverized—the body would be maintained in a proper state of nutrition for an indefinite period." You can make a delicious and hearty luncheon dish by mixing ground chestnuts with mashed potato seasoned with butter or oil and such seasonings as paprika and onion. Inclose small cake of this mixture in pastry crust, bake and serve with mushroom or tomato sauce. Pecan is 70.7 per cent fat, 12.1 protein, 8.5 sugar, starch, etc. Masticate all nuts thoroughly. (Try Department of Agriculture for caterpillar information.)

WAR TALK.

MISSOURI.—Write Navy Department.

G. A.—One cross-eye not accepted in draft.

DISTRESSED MOTHER.—Your Congressman or lawyer might take up the matter of discharging your son. Perhaps only an appeal to the President is the road—a very uncertain one. You would need strong reasons.

INTERESTED MOTHER.—Your Congressman or a lawyer might take up the matter of discharging your son. Perhaps only an appeal to the President is the road—a very uncertain one. You would need strong reasons.

MISCELLANEOUS.

ANNA W.—Write Motion Picture Magazine, New York.

KENTUCKY.—There is but one Secretary of the Navy. Salary $12,000.

READER.—Nearest osteopathic schools: Kirksville, Kansas City, Des Moines, Chicago.

OLD SUB.—We hope some reader will tell you how to put up crushed fruits and nuts to be used at a soda fountain.

ONE WHO BELIEVES IN JUSTICE.—Are you sure you have laid all the facts before the Excise Commisioner, with evidence?

TILLY.—"You all," applied to 6 persons, is correct. The best type of middle English prose is full of the expressions "we alle," "ye alle," "they alle." Shakespeare uses the three forms, his preference being for the post position of "all." "We all were sea swallowed," Tempest, II, 1. 251. "You all do know this matle," Julius Ceasar, III, 2, 174. "I tell ye all I am your better," Henry VI, V, 5, 35. "They all have met again," Tempest, I, 2, 233. "Better it were they all came by the father," Richard III, 2, 3, 24. Bible translations have used it: "For one plague was on you all," I Samuel, VI:4. "We give thanks to God always for you all," 1st Thes., 1:2. "I speak not of you all," John, XIII:18.

H. W.—Ingersoll on Lincoln: Lincoln was the grandest figure of the fiercest civil war. He is the gentlest memory of our world. Strange mingling of mirth and tears, of the tragic and grotesque, of cap and crown, of Socrates and Rabelais, of Aesop and Marcus Aurelius, all that is gentle and just, humorous and honest, merciful, wise, laughable, lovable and divine, and all consecrated to the use of man; while through all, and over all, an overwhelming sense of obligtaion, of chivalric loyalty to truth, and upon all the shadow of the tragic end. Lincoln never finished his education. To the night of his death he was a pupil, a learner, an inquirer, a seeker after knowledge. You have no idea how many men are spoiled by what is called education. For the most part, colleges are places where pebbles are polished and diamonds are dimmed. If Shakespeare had graduated at Oxford, he might have been a quibbling attorney or a hypocritical parson. (Try Public Library for complete oration.)

DEATHS

In Memoriam.

In loving memory of my dear brother, Fred Hase, who died one year ago today.

Days of sadness still come o'er me,
Tears in silence often flow,
For memory keeps you ever near me,
Tho' you died just one year ago.

Sadly missed by his loving sister,

JULIA HASE, Detroit, Mich.

In Memoriam.

Our dear mother, Lizabeth Paul, wife of Jacob Paul, departed this life 7 years ago.

You are not forgotten,
Peaceful be your sleep, dear mother;
'Tis sweet to breathe your name.
In life we loved you dearly,
In death we do the same.
God called you home,
It was His will,
In our hearts you linger still.

Sadly missed by

HUSBAND AND CHILDREN.

In Memoriam.

In memory of our dear mother, Elizabeth Dickheroff, who died one year ago at the age of 92 years.

A shadow fell upon our lives when Death, the reaper, came
And took our mother dear away from earthly care and pain.
But when the mist has passed away
We'll meet dear mother some sweet day,
And may God help us all in time
To awaken in a brighter clime.

Sadly missed by your daughter,

MRS. CARRIE HENGER, CHILDREN AND GRANDCHILDREN. (c)

In Memoriam.

In memory of our dearly beloved mother, Alice Rolves Nieman, who passed away Feb. 22, 1917.

Just one year ago since our dear mother passed away.
O Lord, keep green the grave that lies
Beneath the wide and starry skies;
Keep sweet with sleep and give her rest.
Whose hands are folded on her breast.
O loving mother, true and kind,
No friend on earth like her we'll find
God called him home, it was His will;
But in our hearts she lingers still.
For all of use she did her best,
May God grant her eternal rest.

DEATHS

In Memoriam.

In loving memory of our dear son and brother, Melville S. Shaw, who departed this life Feb. 27, 1917.

Sad and sudden was the call
For our dear son loved by all;
We little thought that on that day
Our dear son would be called away.
Day by day we sadly miss you,
Friends may think the wound is healed,
But they little know the sadness
That's within our hearts concealed.
A precious one from us is gone,
A voice we loved is still,
A place is vacant in our home
Which never can be filled.

ATTENTION AUTOMOBILE OWNERS

Get away from spark-plug trouble, fouling, missing, dirty spark plugs and carbon. It is annoying, costs money and shortens the life of your motor. Don't keep constantly changing, cleaning or buying new plugs. I positively guarantee my little attachment—the Marvel Spark Intensifier—to fire any old plug that has two points left on it; that it will keep carbon down and keep the firing points in clean, working condition. I guarantee it to make starting easier and save your magneto or batteries. No matter how good your spark plugs may be, the Marvel Spark Intensifier will boost the current to the firing points and produce such a hot, intense flame that it will give instant and complete explosion every time, regardless of quality of gasoline. It is the only thing to cope with the poor-grade gasoline and insure your money's worth out of every gallon. The Marvel Intensifier fits on top of the plug; easily attached in less than five minutes. The Marvel Spark Intensifier will put snap and power in your motor; greatest little invention of the age. Can't get out of order, lasts for years. Don't be misled by other "so-called" spark intensifiers that are nothing more than old-fashioned spark gaps with improper insulation and complicated adjustments. I have the real Spark Intensifier, that the United States Government recognizes as a real, bona fide electrical invention and fully protects with a patent. I sell thousands, and my written guarantee goes with every one I sell. Put one on each plug. Use them 10 days; if you are not completely satisfied and if you don't see a wonderful difference in the operation of your car, send them back and your money will be promptly refunded. You take no chance. Send $2.50 for set of four; $3.75 for six. Mail orders filled promptly. Order right now, or call at Sales Dept., Automobile Products Co., 522 Wainwright Bldg., St. Louis, Mo.

MEDITERRANEAN BREEDS ARE BEST EGG LAYERS

Leghorns, Minorcas and Anconas Do Not Employ Feed to Make Fats.

I do not claim that there is any best breed or variety, and claims of this sort are [illegible] now often made. But for egg production the Mediterranean varieties, [illegible] Leghorns, Minorcas and Anconas, have strong claims. They are natural egg producers. They tend to use their food for making eggs, rather than for putting on fat. They are small or medium in size, active, hardy, quick to mature. They are good hustlers, and they pick up a considerable part of their living if given free range. They cannot be said to equal the larger breeds for meat, though when properly fattened they are not bad table fowls.

One successful white Leghorn breeder gives her general plan of care and feeding about as follows: She keeps this variety chiefly for the eggs they produce. Her flock is fed a variety of grains and mashes. Alfalfa, oyster shell and bran are kept before them at all times. They are provided with plenty of scratching material, and Leghorns can use scratching materials on the floor to good advantage. They are very active and will dig deeper for food into hay or straw than larger fowls.

This woman sees to it that her hens always have plenty of good water, not forgetting that eggs are chiefly composed of water. Skim milk in moderate quantity is fed daily. On the farm this is about as cheap food as there is, and there is nothing better for growing chicks or for laying hens.

COLD WEATHER HURT LEAVENWORTH CONTEST

More Than 500 Leghorn Pullets Laid at Half Normal Rate During Zero Weather.

Cold weather that disrupted the laying of virtually all flocks in the country seriously impaired production of birds under observation during December and January at the Leavenworth (Kan.) egg laying contest conducted by the American School of Poultry Husbandry, according to T. E. Quisenberry, president.

The Leghorn pens led for January. About 500 pullets were laying about 50 per cent production with the temperature below zero. The best record was by pullet No. 1104 from Pennsylvania, with 28 eggs in 31 days. The five highest pens were No. 110, Pennsylvania, 105 eggs; No. 91, Arizona, 94 eggs; No. 132, Kansas, 91 eggs; No. 101, Ohio, 98 eggs; No. 79, Colorado, 81 eggs.

The five highest pens in the Leghorn contest for the three months were: No. 110, Pennsylvania, 256 eggs; No. 70, Washington, 226 eggs; No. 121, Pennsylvania, 212 eggs; No. 91, Arizona, 204 eggs; No. 67, Washington, 196 eggs.

In the breeders' contest the pens were not up to the record of the Leghorns for January, but excelled the Leghorns' record for three months. The five highest pens in the breeders' contest to date are Pen 43, Illinois, White Wyandottes, 263 eggs; No. 48, Light Sussex, Ohio, 219 eggs; No. 27, White Orpington, Ohio, 217 eggs; No. 35, R. I. Whites, Illinois, 192 eggs; No. 46, Red Sussex, Illinois, 185 eggs.

The five best pen records for January were made by No. 44, White Wyandottes, Kansas, 83 eggs; No. 25, White Orpingtons, Ohio, 83 eggs; No. 43, White Wyandottes, 78 eggs; No. 47, Red Sussex, Ohio, 77 eggs; No. 37, Silver Wyandottes, Iowa, 75 eggs.

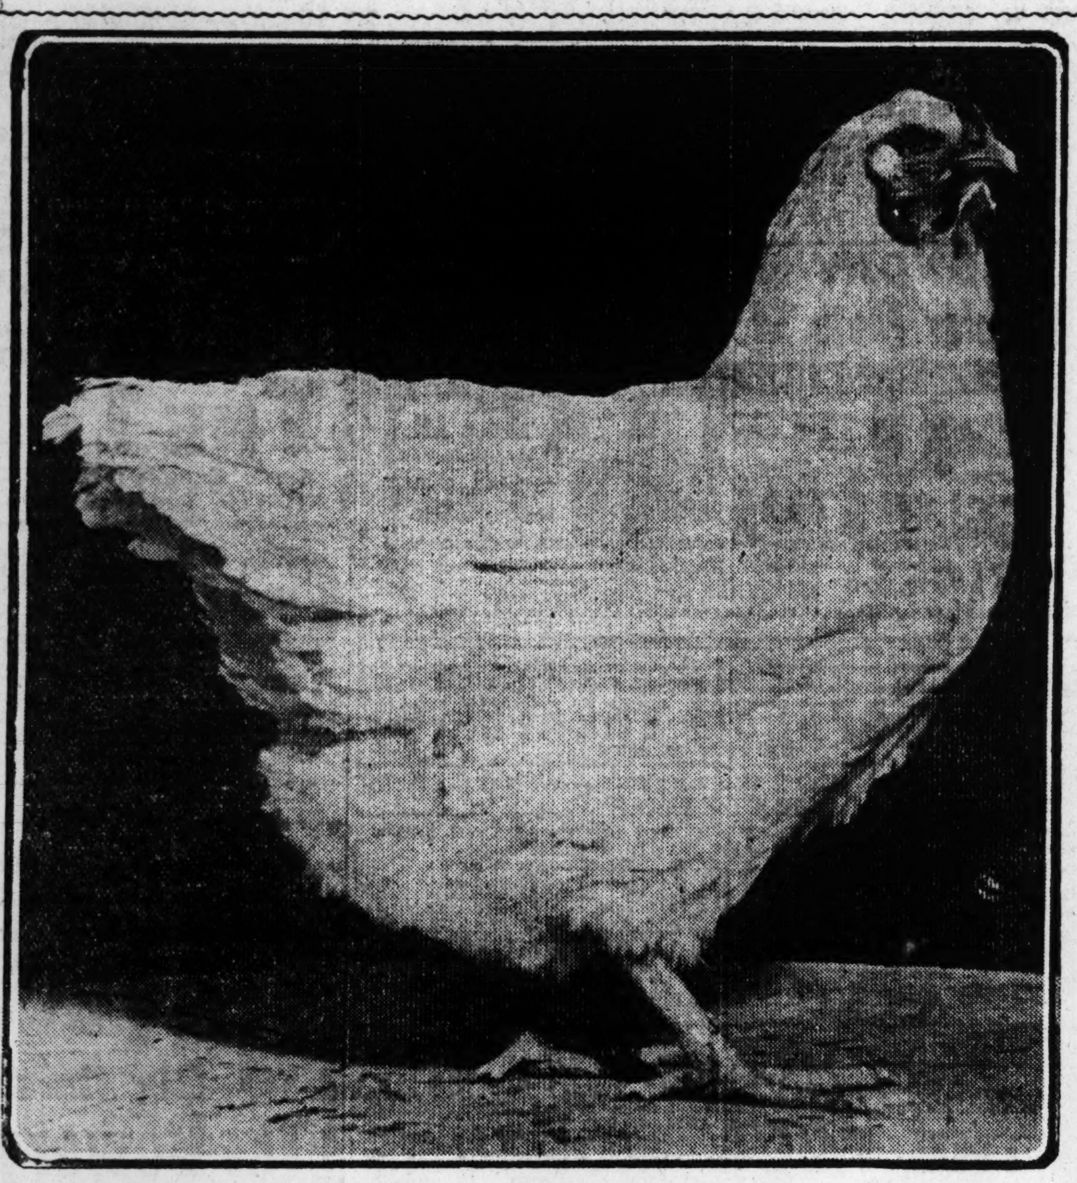
In the yearling hen contest some of these pens just began to lay the last of the month. The five highest pens to date are: No. 35, Black Langshans, Kansas, 159 eggs; No. 43, R. I. Whites, Texas, 115 eggs; No. 45, R. I. Whites, New Jersey, 94 eggs; No. 19, Silver Wyandottes, South Dakota, 90 eggs; No. 37, White Wyandottes, Arkansas, 85 eggs.

The average sales value of eggs per bird to date is $1.07.

Public More Critical in Purchasing Eggs

An English authority, speaking of the conditions as they exist in his country, said the general public, it must be admitted, is becoming very much more fastidious than it was as regards the food it consumes, and it does not like overkept eggs or small eggs. As yet, the English farmer has not got into the custom of weighing his eggs in the way his continental competitors do. Eggs that weigh at the rate of seven or eight to the pound command a more ready sale than those that take 10 or 11 to tip the scale. The brown shell does not command the preference to the same extent that it did a couple of years ago, and polished eggs are not in request. They suggest too much either having been preserved or cold-stored, and, therefore, it behooves the poultry farmer to keep his hens' nests critically clean, as having to wash his eggs tends to give them a polish, and a fresh polish is all the same to the consuming public, whether it is on a six-months' "water-glasser" or on the day before "new-laids." It will not differentiate between them.

Fancy Utility Hen



Poultry raisers who like to combine the qualities of the fancy birds with those of the solid and steady egg layers concede a high place to the White Plymouth Rock. This hen won first award at the St. Louis Coliseum Poultry Show. She was bred and exhibited by the Whistlecote Farms, Waterloo, Ill.

Healthiest Chick Comes From the Freshest Egg

"The fresher the eggs the better the hatch." That is logic—that is old-time advice. It cannot be improved upon. But poultrymen are not always so situated that they can have strictly fresh eggs when they are ready to incubate.

Equally true is the old-time advice: "The older the eggs the weaker the germ." A hatch made up of old eggs will show that the germs perished at different stages of incubation, running from a few days to the close of the hatch, and those chicks that do hatch do so very weakly and slowly, extending the period several days over the alloted time of 21 days.

In other words, the fresh egg will at least hatch on time, and in many cases a day or two before time. The chicks will be strong, as a rule. Practically, this condition will hold good for a week, but after that time the percentage of deaths in the shell, dead germs, and weak, puny chicks will increase as the eggs increase in age before being set.

Cheap Poultry Stock Is the Most Expensive

As a rule, the average buyer of breeding poultry obtains just what he pays for. It takes extra care and expense to raise cockerels for breeding, and those of any merit cannot be sold at a profit for market prices.

There is too much scrub poultry in the country now, and the average amateur poultry raiser seems to believe that the cheap mongrel stock is as good as the more expensive until he has had experience with it on his own place. After a year's experience he will see that not only has the time been lost, but money, too, for it costs just as much per fowl to keep scrub stock as that of a much higher grade.

Buy stock for which a fair price is asked and the chances are largely in favor of something that will prove profitable.

Poultry Problems Solved

Will you kindly inform me what amount of scratch feed and whole corn to feed to 22 Leghorn chickens for eggs? I feed them table scraps at noon.—Reader.

This is a difficult question to answer in a definite way. Feed requirements differ quite largely among birds even of the same breed and variety. Besides you are feeling table scraps and the allowance of grain would depend very considerably on the amount of scraps fed. A little experimenting and observation should soon tell you how much to feed.

They should never have so much feed that they will not be eager to work for it. The weight of the birds also is a good indicator as to whether too much or too little is being fed. If you are feeding the usual scratch mixture, I should start by feeding about a quart of this in litter in the morning. Table scraps boiled up with bran at noon, and possibly a quart of corn at night. Then watch your birds and regulate the allowance according. I assume that you are giving a dry mash in a hopper along with your other feeds. This mash makes a good balancer as to quantity of feed consumed as well as otherwise, and by noting how much the birds are eating you can tell whether you are giving too little or too much of the grain feed.

Indications of Roup.

Two of my chickens are sick. They breathe heavily and open their mouths wide. It seems as though they had sore throat as there seemed to be a rattling there. Have separated them from the rest of the flock and have given them coal oil and lard with a little pepper in it, but don't know whether this is good for them.—Reader.

This undoubtedly is a roupy condition brought on by a cold, perhaps, or exposure to a draft. Would suggest a small swab of cotton tied to the end of a stick, and wash out their mouths with hydrogen peroxide. Also wash the nostrils with a carbolic acid solution, about 2 per cent, especially if there is a discharge or if sores have formed. The treatment you gave should have helped, although would prefer mixing equal parts of cayenne pepper, ginger and mustard with lard in the form of small pellets and giving these to the sick birds. You did the right thing by isolating the sick birds.

High Prices.

I have a flock of 30 hens. How can I procure feed for them at a reasonable figure? The feed stores charge me $2.50 for wheat, $2.20 for corn, 85 cents for oats. All these are of the lowest grade, in fact, the oats I bought could not be induced to sprout. Prices are the same whether I buy in 5-pound or 100-pound lots. I tried to buy from jobbers but they refer me to retailers. Is there no Government regulation on feeds? Bran, alfalfa middlings, etc., also are out of sight. I cannot break even at these prices, to say nothing of my time and labor. Is there any way or place that I may buy feed at a reasonable figure? Or must I dispose of my flock?—Poultryman.

There are thousands of poultry raisers in this same situation. Poultry feed is higher than ever before, but so also are eggs and other poultry products. They are enough higher than usual to easily cover the increased cost of feeding, but when hens don't lay there is little consolation in that fact. I take it that this poultryman has not been getting his share of winter eggs. At 60 to 75 cents a dozen it will not take many eggs to buy a week's supply for 30 hens even at prices quoted above.

A great deal may be done to cheapen feed costs through substitutions. Wheat is not a necessary part of the laying ration. In an 18-month test the U. S. Department of Agriculture found that a scratch mixture of 2 parts cracked corn and 1 part oats (by weight) compared very favorably as an egg producer with the laying rations that contained wheat. A dry mash of 3 parts corn meal and 1 part beef scrap (by weight) was fed with the above scratch mixture. A pen of Buff Orpington pullets put on this feed in the fall averaged 53 eggs apiece during the 20 weeks following which took them through the most unfavorable laying period of the year. Thirty Leghorns kept on this feed for 18 months averaged 147.3 eggs apiece for their pullet year. In all cases the scratch mixture was fed sparingly enough so the hens ate approximately equal parts of the mixture and mash. It was found that it took a total of 4.6 pounds of this feed to produce a dozen eggs. This was the average for one year. When wheat is omitted it is necessary to feed more heavily of some meat food, but these feeds are relatively cheap nowadays, considering their high protein content.

Poultrymen who have motor cars or other conveyance, reduce feed costs by getting their feed direct from farms. As to Government regulation of mill feeds, the Food Administration has established a system of price control so far as the mills are concerned. Mills selling bran in carload lots, for example, may not charge more than 38 per cent of the price for the same weight of wheat. The price of shorts or standard middlings is not to exceed $2 a ton more than the price of bran. Mixed feeds are not to exceed $4 a ton more than the price of bran. Flour middlings are not to exceed $9 a ton more than the price of bran, and "red dog" flour cannot exceed $15 a ton more than bran.

No prices have been established for dealers but excessive charges should be reported to the State Food Administrator, and these complaints will be acted upon. Based on the foregoing scale of prices you can readily determine whether the dealer is making too large a profit

Must Cull Flocks to Keep Standards High

To keep up the poultry flock to a high standard of efficiency it is necessary to cull out the drones and imperfect ones every year. Even those of the highest grade are sometimes poor layers and others are dwarfted and unfit to breed from. Therefore each year poultry raisers who know their business are on the lookout for breeding stock to replace the culls.

One cannot breed over and over with the same stock with even moderately good results, and hence the infusion of new blood into the flock is absolutely necessary.

If this is not done the entire flock soon loses its vitality and becomes scrubbish and small producers, requiring just as much care and feed as those of the highest grade.

Wood Pigeons Destroy Crops.

LONDON, Feb. 23.—At a meeting of the Ongar Farmers' Union, reference was made to the destruction of crops by wood pigeons. It was stated that these birds could be seen flying over the fields in thousands, and that unless they were killed off considerable damage would be done. It was resolved to organize weekly pigeon shoots.

EDWARD F. LASAR'S THIRD WIFE FILES SUIT FOR DIVORCE

Alleges Manufacturer Was Rude and Says He Stopped Her Credit at Stores.

Mrs. Lucia A. Lasar, third wife of Edward F. Lasar of 5092 Raymond avenue, wealthy president of the Lasar Manufacturing Co., 1313 North Sixteenth street, yesterday filed suit for a divorce, alleging that he was rude in his treatment of her, that he stopped her credit at stores, although she practiced economy, and that six months ago he transferred the management of their home to his daughter by a former marriage. He also objected to her entertaining her friends.

They were married at Springfield, Ill., Sept 19, 1907. Mrs. Lasar, in her petition, says he abandoned her in September, 1912, but that they continued to live together until Feb. 13, last, when she left, being no longer able to endure conditions there. She says that she raised his three children by previous marriage and did all a dutiful mother could do for them.

Mrs. Lasar complains that her husband had no right to deprive her of the management of the household, as she was an efficient housekeeper. Her attorney declined to divulge her whereabouts, saying she was nervous and that her doctor had ordered her to take a rest.

Lasar, in discussing the suit, said he did not stop his wife's credit and that she was at liberty to make purchases. He also denied that they had been living virtually estranged in the same house for six years, and said that he always thought they were getting along about as well as most married couples. He said he was surprised when he went home several weeks ago and found she had departed.

"I think she had it pretty soft there and made a big mistake in going away," he said.

Lasar also denied that he was worth more than $100,000, as his wife alleges. He said that he did not object to her receiving friends at home and that they had plenty of company. Lasar's first wife died and he says he divorced his second wife about 12 years ago.

COURT ORDER RESTORES GIRL TO MOTHER AFTER SEVEN YEARS

East St. Louis Couple Who Took Child From St. Louis Orphanage Wanted to Keep Her.

An order entered upon the St. Clair County Court docket by Judge Messick, in Belleville yesterday afternoon, declaring Martha Steppel, 9 years old, a dependent, will result in reuniting the girl and her mother, Mrs. Robert Livingston of New York City.

The girl, 7 years old, was placed by her mother, then Mrs. Alice Blank of St. Louis, in St. Ann's Orphanage. Later Mrs. Blank married Robert Livingston, a Government employe at New York, and at her request a search was started by Mr. and Mrs. Nocholas Hagedorn of St. Louis, brother-in-law and sister, respectfully, of Mrs. Livingston, which extended over seven years.

The girl had ben placed in a home by the Sisters of St. Ann's Orphanage and could not be found until a month ago, when she was located in the home of Mr. and Mrs. John Streppel in East St. Louis. The St. Clair County Humane Society was appealed to when the couple refused to give up the child and court action followed.

Following the entry of the court docket the child was turned over to Humane Officer James Ewing with instructions to find a home for her. He turned her over to a relative, who left last night for New York to be reunited with her mother, another sister and a brother.

Alton Man Dies of Grip.

Special Cable to the Post-Dispatch.

STOCKHOLM, Feb. 23.—The impending German intervention in Finland, predicted a few days ago, is an accomplished fact. Today's official dispatches of the Finnish Government describe the arrival of four German transports at Vasa, laden with everything that Gen. Mannerheim's militia needs most, in addition to several hundred well-trained members of the Finnish rifle brigade of Germany. Every man among these riflemen is given the rank of a non-commisioned officer. When they stepped ashore they were accompanied by 400 German officers uphemistically described as "volunteers," with field guns, machine guns, hand grenades, 100,000 rifles and great quantities of munitions, food and fodder.

Ten minutes before the expedition anchored in the lee of a group of little islands below Vasa's water front, Mannerheim had less than 100 trained officers, the scantiest food rations and only 10 firearms to every 100 men, half of these old shotguns. There was less than 50 rounds of cartridges to each rifle and practically no artillery. Gen. Mannerheim had scores of thousands of men eager to defend their homes and country—in fact, the rough results of the levee en masse.

There are no two conclusions to be drawn regarding the outcome. Dispatches state that these four transports are only the first contingent of the expeditionary force. Finland will speedily be "freed."

How Sweden Is Affected.

Now let us see how Sweden is affected. Germany has played the biggest card she could have played for Scandinavian popularity. It gives her the reputation here of being an altruistic liberator, and overshadows and draws public attention away from her annexationist schemes in the occupied regions of Poland and Russia. It furnishes her with a powerful claim on the gratitude of the Swedish Conservatives, which class owns Sweden's iron ore and ships. It gives the German Government a powerful reply to its own people when, as now, the military authorities, pan-Germans and supporters of the Mittel Europa idea are being accused of lust for imperialistic annexation.

"What we have altruistically done in Finland we are doing elsewhere," they can reply.

In the last two weeks Sweden has become feverishly eager to see Finland crush the terrorizers. Day after day meetings are held, petitions are prepared and deputations to see the Government officials are named. Newspapers of all political creeds except the Socialists are almost hysterically demanding armed intervention by Sweden. Even a large section of Hjalmar Branting's party (the Social Democratic) regarded his opposition to intervention as ill-timed.

Knew Germany's Intentions.

"There is reason to believe, however, that Branting, like other members of the Cabinet, knew the intentions of Germany and merely threw his weight, as the former most powerful member of the Cabinet, against the growing pressure of the nation's demand for intervention, in order to save the present Cabinet from being swept away before Germany's expeditionary force landed.

In an exciting session of the Riksdag the Premier, Marcus Eden, replied to an interpellation by Wennerstrom, member of the Chamber, by flatly refusing armed aid to Finland. Now the Cabinet's troubles are ended. Though it is not expected that the clamor for intervention will die down for a few days yet, Sweden's attention has become concentrated on the much simpler problem of the Aland Islands, with the certainty of a safe and successful termination of Swedish efforts.

Newspaper Advertising Is Profitable to Those Who Value the Constant Record of Years More Than Spasmodic Accomplishment

Newspapers Grow Much Like the Sturdy Oak—the Process of Gradual and Persistent Development. There Is None of the Mushroom or Sudden Flare in the Newspaper That Holds the Public's Confidence and Likewise Maintains Its Towering Supremacy.

OF what special import to advertisers can the occasional "extra" total in the day's accomplishment of any newspaper be? A step forward for today, alone—unconnected with like groups of achievements in the past, and foretelling nothing similar for the future—assuredly holds no interest in comparison with the record that is wholly the outgrowth of an established reputation for consistent record-making and record-breaking. Place your utmost faith in the newspaper that has formed the regular habit of supremacy.

Dependable Effort Is Worth a Dozen Dozen of "Maybes" and Perhapses"—Nay, More!

The Hall-mark of Newspaper stability is found wherever constant results are factors in cementing the friendship of advertisers and publishers. The confidence of the former arises solely from the enduring ability of the newspaper to repeat its successes in spreading measure—to add victory upon victory in endless succession.

Years have followed years in the procession of POST-DISPATCH successes, but none has brought a halt. Record after record has been hung to the credit of "St. Louis' ONE BIG Newspaper," and still are they being hung. It is with a feeling of justifiable pride that the POST-DISPATCH points to the record of POST-DISPATCH years—a record of connected strength, of accomplishment dovetailed with past accomplishment that will now lead to even greater future accomplishment.

EAST ST. LOUIS TO FIGHT EFFORT TO END ARBITRARY

Chamber of Commerce of Illinois City Repudiates Attitude of R. W. Sikking.

LAWYER IS EMPLOYED

"East St. Louis Will Not Permit Itself to Be Camouflaged," He Says.

Hope recently expressed by Joseph W. Folk, counsel for the Chamber of Commerce, that the East St. Louis Chamber of Commerce would join in the movement to abolish the bridge arbitrary of 20 cents a ton on coal coming to St. Louis from the Illinois field, was dissipated yesterday when the East Side organization announced that it would vigorously oppose the efforts to do away with the arbitrary.

The action is a repudiation of the attitude taken by R. W. Sikking, secretary of the East St. Louis Association of Commerce, now the East St. Louis Chamber of Commerce, who as the representative of that organization testified that he considered St. Louis and East St. Louis in one commercial zone, and that rates from all points, both in Illinois and Missouri, to both cities should be the same.

Sikking's testimony was in a proceeding before the Interstate Commerce Commission, brought by East St. Louis cattle dealers, to obtain the same rate on cattle from Missouri points to East St. Louis as from the Missouri points to St. Louis. Under the rates that existed at the time the proceeding was instituted St. Louis cattle dealers had an advantage over East St. Louis dealers, but the St. Louis Chamber of Commerce joined in the effort to have the rates made the same. The commission held they should be the same, and Folk takes the position that the rule applied in that case will apply on coal coming from Illinois to St. Louis.

Sikking's testimony in detail was published in the Post-Dispatch last Wednesday.

Attorney Is Employed.

The East St. Louis Chamber of Commerce yesterday employed R. W. Ropiequet, a Belleville attorney, to oppose the St. Louis efforts before the Interstate Commerce Commission.

In a statement issued yesterday the East Side organization defends its attitude by contending that the present rates are fair, and charges that St. Louis is guided by selfishness. The statement includes the following by Ropiequet:

"East St. Louis will not permit itself to be camouflaged. According to statements in the St. Louis press, the St. Louis Chamber of Commerce will appeal to East St. Louis for the latter's co-operation in removing the so-called bridge arbitrary on coal.

"Without, at the present, attempting to discuss either the legality or the propriety of this so-called arbitrary, it might be well to remember that the Interstate Commerce Commission approved it because it was simply a fair transaction charge for additional transportation for long distances over expensive terminals.

St. Louis Accused of "Sophistry."

"Lest some of the East Side people might be confused by the barrage fire and the sophistry with which our West Side friends are attempting to camouflage the situation, permit us to briefly call attention to a few facts which must be considered in connection with the situation:

"1. Prior to 1906, the trunk line scale, governing rates from Eastern territory to East St. Louis, was upon a 116 per cent basis, to which a varying charge was added for the transportation to St. Louis. Under the pressure brought by the Municipal Bridge and Terminal Commission of St. Louis the rates were equalized by the advancing of the East St. Louis rates.

"2. The Business Men's League case, to which reference has been made by the St. Louis pamphleteers, was simply the effort of St. Louis to equalize the rates between East St. Louis and St. Louis from Illinois territory by advancing the East St. Louis rates. But in this case the Interstate Commerce Commission recognized the propriety of an additional charge on the nearby traffic, that is, that which was within the 100-mile limit.

"3. In the related passenger-fare case, the Interstate Commerce Commission recognized the propriety of a bridge charge, but directed the equalization of rates on transportation, not including the bridge, and this was to be accomplished by advancing the Illinois-East St. Louis rates. The advance of these latter rates, however, were not upheld by the Supreme Court of the United States.

Refers to Stockyards Case.

"4. The stockyards case, to which reference has been frequently made, and which can easily be differentiated from the coal situation, brought about an equalization, but the result was the advancing of the East St. Louis rates.

"5. The present attempt is simply one on the part of the St. Louis interests to make East St. Louis bear the burden of the additional transportation required for the St. Louis coal, this to be brought about, as was suggested by the representative of St. Louis in a recent interview, by the advancing of the East St. Louis coal rate, which, in some cases, now exceeds the maximum distance coal rate in the State of Illinois.

"We present these facts for the consideration of the East Side people in order that they may understand the situation, realize what the issue is and act understandingly.

"If the East Side interests desire to burden the industrial and coal-consuming population of East St. Louis with an additional transportation charge which is not justified by the transportation to East St. Louis, in order that St. Louis may not be compelled to pay its proper transportation charge for the services rendered on its coal transportation, then let the East Side people support and co-operate with the St. Louis interests in removing the so-called bridge arbitrary on coal; but let them understand that the result will be the advancing of the East St. Louis coal rate."

JUDGES POSE FOR GROUP PHOTOS

Did It "For Same Reason Anybody Else Has Pictures Taken."

The 14 Judges of the Circuit Court yesterday posed twice for group photographs, once in Judge Koerner's court room, and again on the east front steps of the courthouse. The picture was a concession to a dissenting minority composed of Judges Rosenfeld, Shields and Grimm. The other 11 Judges voted in favor of the interior photograph.

The daylight photograph was posed where slaves were once auctioned, and sheriff's sales now are conducted. The suggestion came from Judges Grimm and Garesche. Judge Koerner said, replying to a question, that the pictures were made "for the same reason that anybody else has pictures taken."

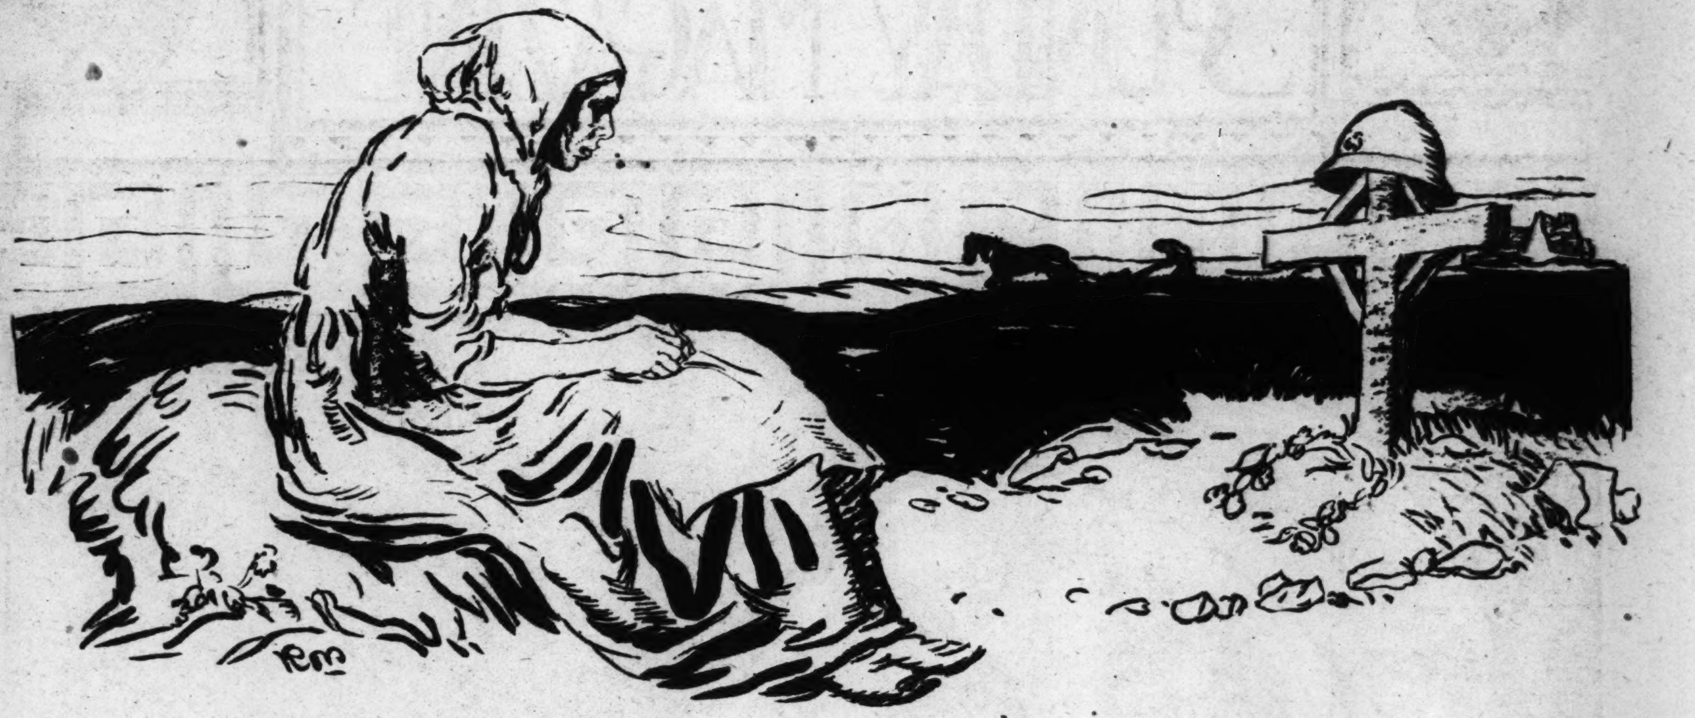
"YSOBEL"

THIS bust, modeled from life, is the work of a young St. Louis sculptor, Benjamin F. Hawkins Jr., of 6108 West Park Avenue, until recently a student at the St. Louis School of Fine Arts, Washington University. Much of his training was received by attending only the Saturday classes at the school, as he is employed on other days at the Scullin Steel Company.

"THE MOTHERS OF THE WAR"

∴ An Appreciation by Maurice Maeterlinck ∴



Following is the preface written by the great Belgian poet, Maeterlinck, for a book of pastels by Levy-Dhurmer on "The Mothers of the War."

Belgium's great poet pays eloquent tribute to women whose sons have been devoured in the furnace of battle—"They do not weep like the mothers of other wars"—"They gulp down their tears as if obeying a password which they have transmitted to one another without the knowledge of men"—"What sustains this courage which so astonishes our eyes?" :: :: ::

THEY bear the great sorrows of this war. In our streets and squares and churches, in our cities and villages, and in all our houses we come in contact with mothers who have lost their sons or are living in an anxiety which is more cruel than death.

Let us try to understand the loss that is theirs. They know what it is, but they do not tell it to us men.

In their declining years, the boys are taken from them in the prime of life. When little children die, it seems as if the infant souls scarcely go away, but linger about her who brought them into the world, waiting for the hour when they shall return in a new form. The death that visits the cradle is not the same death that spreads terror over the world.

But a son who dies at twenty does not come back, he leaves no hope behind. He takes away with him all the future in store for his mother, all that she had given him, all the promise that was in him; the pains and griefs and smiles of birth and childhood, the joys of youth, the recompense and reaping of maturity, the support and peace of old age.

He takes away far more than himself; it is not his life alone that ends; it is days without number that are suddenly cut off, a line of posterity that is snuffed out; a crowd of faces, laughter and games and tiny caressing hands that fall at one blow on the field of battle, say adieu to the sun and return to the earth before they have known it. All this the eyes of our mothers see even if they do not reckon it, and it is this that makes none of us able at certain moments to bear the weight and sadness of their gaze.

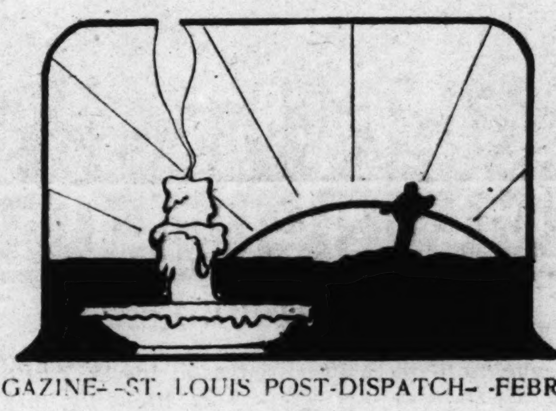
Yet, they do not weep like the mothers of other wars. One by one their sons vanish, yet their moanings and complaints are not heard as in times gone by, when great tribulations, great massacres and great catastrophes were wrapped in the clamor and lamentations of women.

They gather not in the market places, they blame not, they accuse no one, they do not rebel. They gulp down their tears, as if obeying a password that they have transmitted to one another without the knowledge of men.

One cannot know what it is that sustains them and gives them strength to bear what is left to them of life. Some of them have other children; and one understands how they transfer to those the love and future that have been broken by death. Many have never lost their faith in the eternal promises, or are trying to find it again; and again one can understand why they despair not, for neither did the mothers of the martyrs despair. But many others, whose home is forever desolate and for whom heaven is peopled with pale phantoms, cling to the same hope as those who hope always. What is it, then, that sustains the courage which so astonishes our eyes?

The best of us, the most to be pitied, the wisest among us, on meeting one of these mothers who furtively turns away to wipe her eyes that her trouble may not offend those who are happy, when he seeks to find words which shall not sound like odious or mocking falsehoods in the blinding truth of the most poignant grief that can afflict a heart, finds almost nothing he can say to her. We talk to her of the righteousness and beauty of the cause for which the hero fell, of the immensity and necessity of the sacrifice, of the memory and gratitude of mankind, of the nothingness of this life which is not measured by length of days but by sublimity of duty and of glory. Perhaps we add that the dead die not, that there are no dead, that those who are no more, live closer to our souls than when they were in the flesh, and that all we held most dear in them remains still in our hearts, so long as memory can call it up and love can keep it alive.

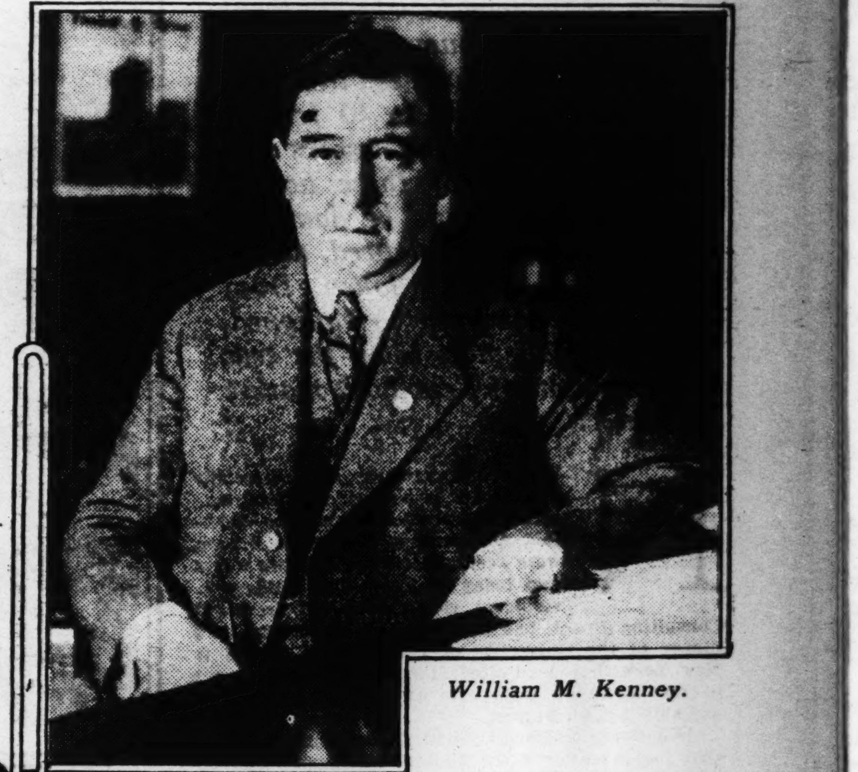
But even while we speak we feel the emptiness of what we are saying. We understand that all this is true only for those whom death has not hurled down into the abyss where words are only hollow sounds; that the warmest recollection does not take the place of a cherished reality which one can touch with hands or lips; that the most exalted thought is worth nothing to the familiar comings and goings, the presence at table, the morning and evening kiss, the parting embrace and the joy of welcome home.



And they know it and feel it better than we; this is why they do not reply to our consolation; they listen in silence and find within themselves other reasons for living and hoping than those that we, by vainly searching the whole horizon of certainties and human thoughts, endeavor to bring them from the outside. They take up the burden of their days without telling us whence they draw their strength, without imparting to us the secret of their sacrifice, their resignation and their heroism.

Former Newsboy Is President, at 48, of Fourth Largest Railroad in United States

William M. Kenney, new Executive Director of Great Northern's 8000 miles of lines, has made way to top entirely by his own efforts—He has been "a horse for work" from boyhood and only his family can divert him from his labors —Self-reliant democrat and diplomat :: :: ::



William M. Kenney.

MANY persons have wondered when William P. Kenney, new president of the Great Northern Railroad, sleeps. Here is part, if not all, of the secret, disclosed by a friend. Sometimes, over the heaps of papers which he takes home with him nightly from his office, Kenney's head droops, his eyelids close, and he "catches 40 winks." Then with a start he is up and at it again. In the morning he will be at his desk at 8 o'clock with so much finished work that his associates incline often to suspect him of not having retired at all.

Kenney once was a newsboy. He has made his own way entirely and has become head of one of the country's largest transportation systems at the early age of 48. Industriousness probably more than any other characteristic has been responsible for his rise. Work is his occupation, avocation, fad and recreation, and has been from his boyhood.' About the only thing which can divert him from it is his family. He married almost at the beginning of his career, and is devoted to his wife and six children—three sons and three daughters.

All over the Hill lines Kenney is known as "a horse for work." But aside from his capacity in that direction he is a democrat of democrats and has a natural tact, an unusual memory and a native ability to absorb details which, in connection with his indefatigable application, have stood him in good stead.

As an instance of his self-reliant methods of work it is related that when Benjamin Campbell was a vice president of the Great Northern and Kenney was his assistant, several officials of the road, including Campbell, were indicted on charges of rebating. Kenney, as a witness, testified that the matters complained of were handled entirely by himself on behalf of the company, and that his chief knew absolutely nothing about them. An attorney for the prosecution fumingly questioned the possibility that practices such as were alleged, and of the importance which attached to them, could go on in a department without the knowledge of its head.

Kenney replied in effect that the test of his value to Mr. Campbell was the extent to which he could stand between him and the detail work of his department; that the matter under examination was a detail for which he felt fully competent to assume responsibility, and that there were affairs of considerable more importance with which he did not disturb his superior.

Although his appointment to the presidency of the Great Northern was the visible mark of Kenney's "arrival," he had been on his way to it certainly for some time. He long ago came under the favorable notice of the elder Hill and for several years has been a trusted man in all of the larger Hill enterprises. He is a director and member of the Executive Committees of the First National Bank and the Northwestern Trust Co. of St. Paul, both Hill institutions.

It is said that Louis W. Hill, whose estimate of Kenney is the same as was that of his father, was directly responsible for one of the more important of his earlier advancements and one which put him in line for the presidency. Vice President Campbell had been obtained by the Great Northern from another road, and after a time surrounded himself with some of the men who formerly had worked with him. Among these was Harry M. Adams, who also has risen rapidly since that time. Adams now is vice president in charge of traffic for the Missouri Pacific Railroad, with headquarters in St. Louis, and recently was loaned by his company to the Government to be director of freight and passenger traffic for the War Department, under Gen. Goethals.

Campbell wanted an assistant, and consulted Hill regarding the matter. Hill asked if he had anyone in mind. Campbell mentioned Adams.

"Well, your man may be all right, and I have no doubt he is," Hill remarked, "but we also have some bright young men of our own, and Kenney is one of them." He was not insistent, but Campbell took the hint and Kenney was moved up from the position of assistant general freight agent. The question, however, apparently was more one of seniority than of the comparative ability of the two men.

Kenney was born at Fort Atkinson, Wis., and moved to Minneapolis when a boy. It was not long until he obtained a delivery route from a morning newspaper. After several hours of work before most persons were up he would put in a full day at school, and then work as a messenger boy for the Western Union Telegraph Co. in the later afternoon. At odd times he studied telegraphy. While still a youth he got a job as night operator at Rochester, Minn., for the St. Paul & Kansas City Railroad, now the Chicago Great Western.

From there he was transferred to the local agent's office of the road in Minneapolis. In those days things were less specialized than now, and local agents had wide jurisdiction. Yard crews, for instance, reported to them. Also, there was more interchange of work. So young Kenney not infrequently would go out to the yards and take a hand at switching. Otherwise he kept himself busy by studying shorthand, which brought him an opportunity to go into the general agent's office as telegraph operator and stenographer. Before long a new executive somewhere above discharged Kenney's immediate superior, the general agent. Feeling that an injustice had been done in the matter, Kenney, in a spirit of loyalty, resigned.

Then, for the only discoverable time in his career, he failed to run true to the form which attaches to all ambitious, energetic young men who eventually blast their way to the top. He didn't go out and hustle for another job, although he probably needed it. His salary had been moderate and he was already married.

However, he had confidence that his work had been sufficiently good to attract attention and to bring some kind of an offer to him, so he went home and "waited for something to turn up," as he expressed it. He waited three weeks, having about the best vacation of his life, and then, at the solicitation of the Empire Line, a fast freight service, he became its local contract agent.

Later he obtained the position of chief clerk to W. W. Broughton, general freight agent of the St. Paul & Duluth Railroad. He stayed with Broughton in that capacity when the Great Northern absorbed the St. Paul & Duluth, in about 1898, and Broughton became assistant general freight agent of the Great Northern; and when Broughton became traffic manager of the Eastern Railway of Minnesota, a Hill property.

Kenney now was beginning to make his real mark and in about a year he was appointed assistant general freight agent of the Great Northern, and it was about a year after that that he became assistant to Vice President Campbell, who now is vice president of the New Haven road. Two years later Campbell resigned, Kenney's old chief, Broughton, became general traffic manager and Kenney himself assistant general traffic manager. Then Broughton resigned to go

Great Northern Railway's Three Chief Executives Average 44 Years in Age

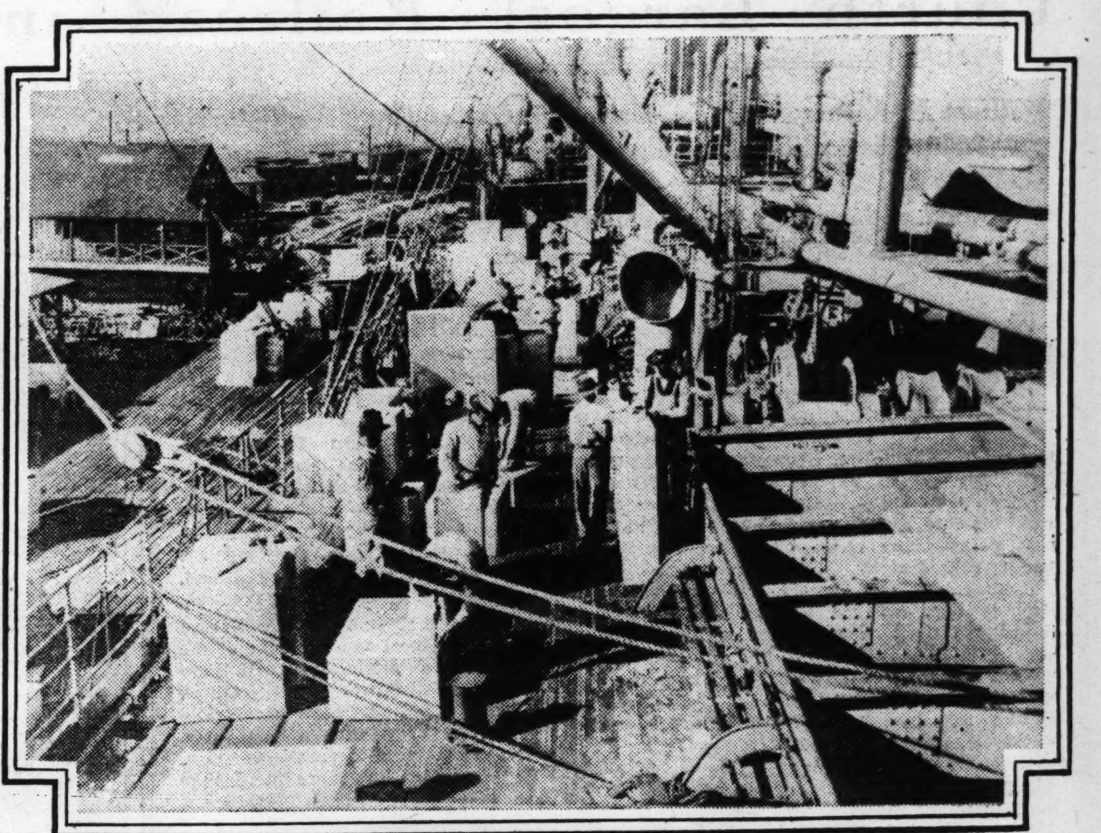
WITH the elevation of William M. Kenney to the presidency of the Great Northern Railroad at the age of 48, another of the road's young men has been given marked advancement. Ralph Budd, who has been assistant to President Hill, has been made executive vice president, meaning that at least part, if not all, of the other vice presidents will report to him instead of directly to the president. Budd is only 40 years old. He was born in Waterloo, Io., and began his railroad career in the engineering department of the Chicago Great Western Railway in 1899. From 1902 to 1905 he virtually reconstructed the entire Rock Island system. While at that task he met John F. Stevens, noted Panama Canal engineer, and in 1906 joined him on canal work. He became identified with the Hill forces in 1909 and his first job was to build the Oregon Trunk Line into Central Oregon, a $15,000,000 project.

His promotion and that of Kenney follows the policy of the late James J. Hill of putting young men in responsible positions in the management of the Great Northern Railroad. The appointments were made at this time, Louis W. Hill announced, because it was imperative the road should have additional executives in order to cooperate in the fullest way with the Government.

Mr. Hill himself is 44 years old, so that the average of the ages of himself, Mr. Kenney and Mr. Budd, the Great Northern's three chief executives, is 44 years.

The Construction of America's New "Unsinkable" Ship

Sides of the hold, bottom, and under sides of the lower decks are lined with airtight "buoyancy boxes," covered with galvanized iron, and though a hole 30 to 40 feet in width be torn in the vessel's side but one-tenth of these honeycombed cells would be damaged and the ship, it is figured, would still float — Prize taken from Germany has been so equipped, and possibly now is on the seas —Invention of New York marine engineer :: :: :: ::



These men on the deck of the "Lucia" are covering the water-tight boxes with galvanized iron.

NEWSPAPER readers, and especially those who have sons, brothers, husbands or sweethearts about to undertake the perilous journey to France, were keenly interested just two weeks ago today to learn that William L. Saunders, vice chairman of the Naval Consulting Board, had announced in an address at a dinner of the University of Pennsylvania alumni in New York that the United States had found a means of making troop transports and cargo carriers unsinkable by submarines.

He declared, presumably with Government authority, that the inventor of the plan, and the man who developed it, was William J. Donnelly, a New York marine engineer, working under the authorization of the Naval Consulting Board. He added that at least one ship so equipped then lay at an American port.

Since that time it has become known that the ship is the Lucia, which was seized from the German Government, and that she now is at Mobile, prepared to make her first journey across the Atlantic in defiance of the worst that the enemy torpedoes can do. Information also is at hand as to the details of how she was converted from a vulnerable ocean carrier to a vessel which, it is declared, will still remain afloat though a hole 30 or 40 feet in width be blown in her side.

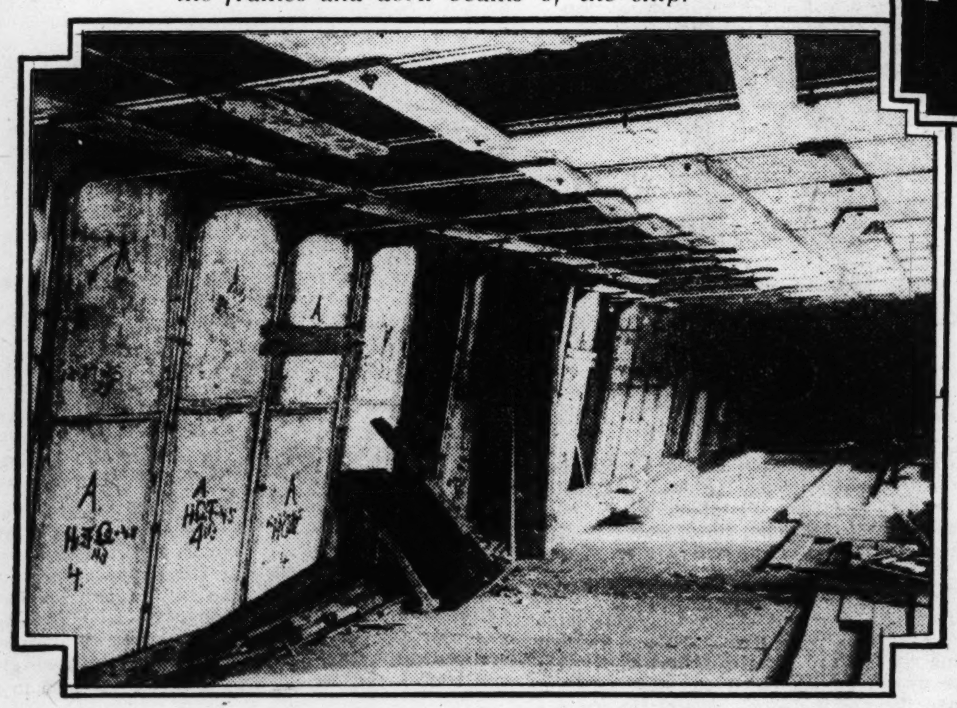
It was accomplished by the use of thousands of "buoyancy boxes," which are added to the structure of the ship. They are put in position on the sides of the hold, the bottom and on the under side of the lower decks. Each box is made of boxboard and each is water-tight. The final process in the construction of an individual box is to cover it with galvanized iron, and it is then ready to be placed in position.

Should the ship be torpedoed, Mr. Donnelly declares, though a murderous hole be torn in her, there would be sufficient buoyancy in the undamaged boxes to keep her afloat. Owing to the vigilance of the patrol ships which now escort American vessels through the war zone, it is doubtful if the submarine could get in a second or a third shot, and the damaged vessel could proceed on her way as if nothing had happened.

The cost of equipping a ship with "buoyancy boxes" is only 10 per cent of the original cost of the vessel, which is inconsiderable, in view of the high insurance rate. While on the one hand the boxes reduce the cargo space of a merchantman 20 per cent, on the other this would be more than offset by keeping the smaller cargoes from becoming the prey of German U-boats. Thus, for every 100,000 cubic feet of cargo space in a ship's hold, 20,000 feet would be displaced by the boxes.

"Of course," said Mr. Saunders in his address, "it will take some time to equip similarly the large number of transports we have. It is my belief, however, that nothing will be left undone to safeguard the large troop contingents to be moved across the Atlantic.

The hold of the "Lucia," showing how the boxes are placed between the frames and deck beams of the ship.



William J. Donnelly, the New York marine engineer who invented the "buoyancy box" scheme of making transports and merchantmen unsinkable.

"I can conceive of no reason why this information should be withheld. On the contrary, I believe it is well that the enemy may come to realize that the time has been reached when American transports are ready for the transportation of our troops which that enemy cannot sink."

A hole 30 to 40 feet in width, Mr. Saunders explained, would waterlog but one-tenth of the water-tight, honeycombed cells.

When Mr. Saunders' statement was made, there were recalled others made recently by Admiral Jellicoe, former First Sea Lord of the British Admiralty; Secretary Daniels and other officials, indicating that a way had been found which was expected to curb if not to eliminate the submarines within the next few months.

In predicting that the submarines would be "killed" by August, Admiral Jellicoe went further than the other officials. But he gave warning that heavy ship losses were to be expected up to that time. Secretary Baker, in his testimony before the Senate committee, indicated that he had information which he did not care to disclose in his replies to questions evoked by his statement that a million and a half American troops could be taken to France and kept supplied during 1918.

Navy officials, without disclosing any of the new instruments that have been developed to meet the submarine menace, have pointed out that efforts started when the United States entered the war were on the point of bearing fruit.

Dispatches a few days ago carried the information that the tonnage sunk by submarines in 1917 was nearly three times as great as the production in the United States and Great Britain during that year. But, it was added, "American and British officials expect a very different story in 1918."

The sinking by submarines last year generally are reckoned at 6,000,000 tons. Andrew Bonar Law, Chancellor of the Exchequer, announced in the British House of Commons that in the same time England produced only 1,163,474 tons and that the output of America was only 901,223 tons, a total of

ANOTHER CHAPTER IN ROMANCE OF -- LEEDS "TIN PLATE" MILLIONS --

Widow to whom American Croesus left $29,000,000 reported wedded in Switzerland to Prince Christopher of Greece, youngest brother of deposed King Constantine—Recalls "War of Diamonds" waged between first and second wives of "Tin King," who was once railroad conductor in Indiana — Prince first cousin of King of Denmark :: ::

When she was Mrs. William B. Leeds, wife of the American tin-plate king.

Prince Christopher of Greece.

A LONDON journal of fashion announced a few days ago the marriage in Switzerland of Mrs. William B. Leeds to Prince Christopher of Greece, youngest brother of the deposed King Constantine. Thus this American woman, whose second husband, the late tin-plate king and railroad magnate, William B. Leeds, was once a railroad conductor in Indiana, becomes allied by marriage with the royal houses of Greece and Denmark, to say nothing of the relations established by the matings of her husband's brothers with Princesses of the houses of Hohenzollern, Romanoff and Bonaparte.

Prince Christopher, who is 30 years old, is first cousin to King Christian X of Denmark. His brother, former King Constantine, is married to Princess Sophie of Prussia, a sister of the German Emperor. Another brother, Prince George of Greece, married Princess Marie Bonaparte; and still another, Prince Nichalos, is the husband of the Grand Duchess Helene of Russia—if she still retains the title abolished by the revolution. The present King of Greece, Alexander, is a nephew of Prince Christopher. The latter is the youngest son of the late King George of Greece, who, a scion of the sovereign family of Denmark, was placed on the Greek throne in 1863 by England, France and Russia.

At about the same time that the diplomats were arranging the affairs of Greece—with world-notorious results in the great war—an American, William B. Leeds, was born in the Middle West. No one could have suspected that these two events, one brilliant and the other obscure, could have had any connection with each other. Yet they were the origins of the royal marriage which has just occurred between the beautiful and spectacular American widow and Prince Christopher of Greece.

In the year 1883 Leeds was a conductor on an Indiana division of the Vandalia Railroad, at a salary of $50 a month. Enjoying a similar position in the same division was Daniel G. Reid, later a tin and railroad millionaire.

Both were dischcarged by a new manager of the road, Leonard F. Loree, who declared they were being paid too much for the work they did. The two young men swore vengeance, which they were able to take in later years in a singular fashion. Reid entered a bank in Richmond, Ind., and by hard work rose to be vice president. Leeds entered the railroad field service with a surveyor's gang, and in 1885 became assistant engineer of the Columbus division of the Pennsylvania Railroad.

About the beginning of the '90s he went to Europe on a holiday, sightseeing, as his habit was, with his eyes wide open. Wales fascinated him. Wales was the country that supplied the world with tin. He knew that huge tin deposits in Indiana had lain idle because the tin of Wales held the world's markets. The people of Indiana, whose houses were built over tin deposits, paid to Welsh manufacturers every year thousands of dollars for tin.

Returning to his native State, Leeds talked tin, thought tin, dreamed tin. A change in the tariff about this time had placed a duty on tin, and here was his opportunity. Reid was his close confidant. In the end they gathered a small group of helpers and built the first tin-plate mill of any importance in the country. In seven years that mill was the head and center of the Tin Trust, and both Leeds and Reid were millionaires many times over.

They gained control of the Rock Island Railroad and made Loree, their ancient enemy, its general manager. They paid him back for the old injury with usury, for their plan in elevating him to this height was only to let him drop the farther and harder when they were ready. In a few months they found fault with his work and eventually turned him out as he had served them in the past.

During all of his years of struggle and poverty, Leeds had been faithfully aided by his wife, who was Miss Jeanette Irene Carr of Richmond, Ind. It is said that her money helped build the first tin-plate mill, the foundation of her husband's millions. But with advancing prosperity their affection grew cold. Leeds traveled much, but she remained at her Indiana home.

Business took him frequently to Cleveland, and there he made the acquaintance of Mrs. George E. Worthington, who had more than a local reputation at the time for beauty. The French artist, Helleu, was to say later that she possessed 98 of the 100 points which constitute consummate loveliness. She had been Miss Nonnie May Stuart, daughter of a wealthy man, the late William C. Stuart of Cleveland.

She was unhappy in her marriage, and obtained a divorce from Worthington soon after meeting Leeds. He, in his turn, went to Mrs. Leeds and suggested a divorce. She agreed, on condition, it was stated, that Leeds pay her $1,000,000 in cash. Leeds and Mrs. Worthington were married in 1904.

But the first Mrs. Leeds nursed private projects of revenge, and she undertook to gain it by methods which set society to gasping. Leeds and his wife went to Palm Beach for the honeymoon, and who should turn up there at the same hotel, with 30 trunks of clothes, but Mrs. Leeds No. 1? The rivals instantly began a war of diamonds, pearls and finery in which money was spent like water. Each attempted to outshine the other in magnificence of attire. The first Mrs. Leeds was conceded to have won the initial skirmish at Palm Beach, for her successor, taken by surprise, had to suffer the humiliation of wearing at a musicale the same dress she had worn at a luncheon that very same day.

Mrs. Leeds No. 1 pursued the couple on their travels in this country and even in Europe, and waged valiantly the battle of clothes and expenditure. The contest grew to have an international interest. But in the end the heavier artillery won, for Leeds had many millions where his former wife had but one, and he was not backward in lavishing them on his wife.

His expenditures for her seemed mostly to have a million dollars as their unit. He provided her with a town house in New York which cost $1,000,000; the same sum was spent on a "cottage" for her at Newport; he paid a like amount for a sea-going yacht, on which the couple traveled from one European watering place to another, with their Nemesis always turning up wherever they arrived.

But she withdrew from the contest at last, when Leeds purchased for his wife a string of perfectly matched pearls at a cost of nearly a quarter of a million dollars. They came to public notice through a contretemps with the customs officials at New York. The dealer from whom they were purchased entered them as unstrung pearls, and paid the 10 per cent duty, amounting to $25,000. Later the officials noticed that the pearls were all pierced and that all needed to convert them into a necklace was a little string of gold or platinum. So it was decided to assess the pearls as a necklace, and an additional duty of $110,335 was exacted. The sum was paid under protest and the case carried to the courts, where the decision was adverse to Mrs. Leeds. But it was money well spent, for when Mrs. Leeds appeared with the necklace gleaming on her throat, her rival gave up the fight in despair.

Mrs. Leeds then began a triumphant campaign for social recognition in New York and Newport. She was able to enlist as her sponsor Mrs. Oliver H. P. Belmont, and Leeds obtained social credentials through James de Wolf Cutting, Elisha Dyer and Sydney J. Smith.

But all his wars of business and society wore down Leeds' health, and in 1906, two years after his second marriage, he suffered a stroke of paralysis. He was stricken a second time at the beginning of 1908, and was rushed to France for treatment by celebrated specialists. There he died in June of that year. By the terms of his will he left nothing to his first wife, but bequeathed $1,000,000 to their son, Rudolph G. Leeds. Except for a few other small gifts, he left his entire fortune to his widow, including the mansion at 897 Fifth avenue, the Newport palace which had belonged to Frederick Vanderbilt, and some $29,000,000 worth of stocks and bonds.

CHRISTINE

The War Time Book of Which Everyone Is Talking

Later.

Bernd came to lunch, but also unfortunately so did his chief. They both arrived together after we had begun—there's a tremendous aller et venir all day in the house, and sometimes the traffic on the stairs to the drawing room gets so congested that nothing but a London policeman could deal with it. I could only say ordinary things to Bernd, and he went away, swept off by his Colonel, directly afterwards. He did manage to whisper he would try to come in to dinner tonight and get here early, but he hasn't come yet and it's nearly 7:30.

The Graf was at lunch, and two other men who ate their food as if they had to catch a train, and they talked so breathlessly while they ate that I can't think why they didn't choke; and there was great triumph and excitement because the Germans crossed into Luxembourg this morning on their way to France, marching straight through the expostulations and entreaties of the Grand Duchess, blowing her aside, I gather, like so much rather amusing thistledown. It seemed to tickle the Graf, whom I have not before seen tickled and hadn't imagined ever could be; but this idea of a junges Madchen—("Sie soll ganz niedlich sein," threw in one of the gobbling men. "Ja ganz appetitlich," threw in the other; "Na, es geht," said the Colonel with a shrug)—motoring out to bar the passage of a mighty army, trying to stop thousands of bayonets by lifting up one little admonitory kitten's paw, shook him out of his gravity into a weird, uncanny chuckling.

The Colonel, who was as genial and hilarious as ever, rather more so than ever, said all the Luxembourg railways would be in German hands by tonight. "It works out as easily and inevitably as a simple arithmetical problem," he laughed; and I heard him tell the Graf German cavalry was already in France at several points.

"Ja, ja," he said, apparently addressing me, for he looked at me and smiled, "when we Germans make war we do not wait till the next day. Everything thought of; everything ready; plenty of oil in the machine; und dann los."

He raised his glass. "Delightful young English lady," he said, "I drink to your charming eyes."

There's dinner. I must leave off.

Eleven p. m.

You'll never believe it, but Kloster has been given the Order of the Red Eagle First Class, and made a privy councillor and an excellency by the Kaiser this very day. And his most intimate friends, the cleverest talkers among his set, two or three who used to hold forth particularly brilliantly in his rooms on Socialism and the slavish stupidity of Germans, have each had an order and an advancement of some sort. Kloster was at the palace this afternoon. He knew about it yesterday when I was having my lesson. Kloster. Of all men. I feel sick.

Bernd didn't come to dinner, but was able to be with me for half an hour afterwards, half an hour of comfort I badly needed, for where can one's feet be set firmly and safely in this upheaving world? The Colonel was at dinner; he comes to nearly every meal; and it was he who started talking about Kloster's audience with Majestat this afternoon.

I jumped as though someone had hit me. "That can't be true," I exclaimed, exactly as one calls out quickly if one is suddenly struck.

They all looked at me. Somehow I saw that they had known about it beforehand, and Bernd told me tonight it was the Graf who had drawn the authorities' attention to the desirability of having tongues like Kloster's on the side of the Hohenzollerns.

"Dear child," said the Grafin gently, "we Germans do not permit our great to go unhonored."

"But he would never," I began; then remembered my lesson yesterday and his silence. So that's what it was. He already had his command to attend at the palace and be decorated in his pocket.

I sat staring straight before me. Kloster bought? Kloster for sale? And the Government at such a crisis finding time to bother about him?

"Ja, ja," said the Colonel gaily, as though answering my thoughts—and I found I had been staring without seeing him, straight into his eyes, "Ja, ja, we think of everything here."

"Not," gently amended the Grafin, "that it was difficult to think of honoring so great a genius as our dear Kloster. He has been in Majestat's thoughts for years."

"I expect he has," I said; for Kloster has often told me how they hated him at court, him and his friends, but that he was too well known all over the world for them to be able to interfere with him; something like, I expect, Tolstoi and the Russian court.

The Grafin looked at me quickly.

"And so has Majestat been in his," I continued.

"Kloster," said the Grafin very gently, "is a most amusing talker, and sometimes cannot resist saying the witty things that occur to him, however undesirable they may be. We all know they mean nothing. We all understand and love our Kloster. And nobody, as you see, dear child, more than Majestat, with his ever-ready appreciation of genius."

I could only sit silent, staring at my plate. Kloster gone. Kloster allowing himself to be gagged by a decoration. I wanted to push the intolerable thought away from me and cry out, "No, it can't be."

Why, who can one believe in now? Who is left? There's Bernd, my beloved, my heart's own mate; and as I sat there dumb, and they all triumphed on with their self-congratulations and satisfactions, and Majestat this, and Deutschland that, for an awful moment my faith in Bernd himself began to shake. Suppose he, too, he with his Prussian blood and upbringing, fell away and went over in spirit to the side of life that decorates a man in return for the absolute control of his thoughts, rewards him for the disposal of his soul? Kloster, that freest of critics, had gone over, his German blood after all unable to resist the call to slavery. I never could have believed it. I never would have believed it without actual proof. And Bernd? What about Bernd? For I haven't more believed in Kloster than I do in Bernd. Oh, little mother, I was cold with fear.

Then he came. My dear one came for a blessed half-hour. And because we, thank God, are betrothed, and so have the right to be alone together, we got rid of those smug triumphant others; and if he had happened not to be able to come, and I had had to wait till tomorrow, all night long thinking of Kloster, I believe I'd have gone mad. For you see one believes so utterly in a person one does believe in. At least, I do. I can't manage caution in belief, I can't give prudently, carefully, holding back part, as I'm told a woman does if she is really clever, in either faith or love. And how is one to get on without faith or love? Bernd comforted me. And he comforted me most by my finding how greatly he needed to be comforted himself. He was every bit as profoundly shaken and shocked as I was. Oh, the relief of discovering that!

We clung to each other, and comforted each other like two hurt children. Kloster has been so much to us both. More, perhaps, here in this place of hypocrisy and self-deceptions, than he would have been anywhere else. He stood for fearlessness, for freedom, for beauty, for all the great things. And now he has gone; silent, choked by the Rote Adler Orden Erste Klasse. It is an order with three classes. We wondered bitterly whether he couldn't have been had cheaper—whether second, or even third class, wouldn't have done it. He is now a Wirkliche Geheimrath mit dem Pradikat Excellenz. God rest his soul.

CHRIS.

Berlin, Monday, Augst 3d, 1914.

Darling Own Mother:

It's only a matter of hours now before Bernd will have to go, and when he goes I'm coming back to you.

YOUR CHRIS.

Berlin, Monday, August 3d, evening.

Precious Mother:

I want to come back to you—directly Bernd has gone I'm coming back to you, and if he doesn't go soon but is used in Berlin at the staff headquarters, as he says now perhaps he may be for a while, I won't stay with the Koseritzes, but go back to Frau Berg's for as long as Bernd is in Berlin, and the day he leaves I start for Switzerland.

I don't know what is happening, but the Koseritzes have suddenly turned different to me. They're making me feel more and more uncomfortable and strange. And there's a gloom about them and the people who have been here today that sets me wondering whether their war plans after all are rolling along quite as smoothly as they thought. I never did quite believe the Koseritzes liked me, any of them, and now I'm sure they don't. Tonight at dinner the Graf's face was a thundercloud, and actually the Colonel, who hasn't been here all day, but came in late for dinner and went again immediately, didn't speak to me once. Hardly looked at me when he bowed, and his bow was the stiffest thing. I can't ask anybody if there is bad news for Germany, for it would be a most dreadful insult even to suggest there could be bad news. Besides, I feel as if I somehow were mixed up in whatever it is. Bernd hasn't been here since this morning. I shall go round to Frau Berg tomorrow and ask her if I can have my old room. But oh, little beloved mother, I feel torn in two! I want so dreadfully to get away, to go back to you, and the thought of being at Frau Berg's just waiting, waiting for the tiny scraps of moments Bernd can come to me, fills me with horror. And yet, how can I leave him? I love him so. And once he has gone, shall I ever see him again? If it weren't for him I'd have started for Switzerland yesterday, the moment I heard about Kloster, for the whole reason for my being in Berlin was only Kloster.

And now Kloster says he isn't going to teach me any more. Darling mother, I'm so sorry to have to tell you this, but it's true. He sent round a note this evening saying he regretted he couldn't continue the lessons. Just that. Not another word. I can't make anything out any more. I've got nobody but Bernd to ask, and I only see him in briefest snatches. Of course, I knew the lessons would be strange and painful now, but I thought we could manage, Kloster and I, by excluding everything but the bare teaching and learning, to go on and finish what we've begun. He knows how important it is to me He knows what this journey here has meant to us, to you and me, the difficulty of it, the sacrifice. I'm very unhappy tonight, darling mother, and selfishly crying out to you. I feel almost like leaving Bernd and starting for Glion tomorrow. And then when I think of him without me—he's as spiritually alone in this welter as I am. I'm the only one he has, the only human being who understands. Today he said, holding me in his arms—you should see how we cling to each other now, as if we were drowning—"When this is over, Chris, when I've paid off my bill of duty and settled with them here to the last farthing of me that I've promised them, we'll go away forever. We'll never come back. We'll never be caught again."

Berlin, Tuesday, August 4th, 1914.

My Beloved Mother:

The atmosphere in this house really is intolerable, and I'm going back to Frau Berg's tomorrow morning. I've settled it with her by telephone, and I can have my old room. However lonely I am in it without my lessons and Kloster, without the reason there was for being there before, I won't have this horrid feeling of being in a place full of sudden and unaccountable hostility. Bernd came this morning, and the Grafin told him I was out, and he went away again. She couldn't have thought I was out, for I always tell her when I'm going, so she wants to separate us. But why? Why? And, oh, it means so much to me to see him; it was so cruel to find out by accident that he had been! A woman who was at lunch happened to say she had met him coming out of the front door as she came in.

"What—was Bernd here?" I exclaimed, half getting up on a sort of impulse to run after him and try and catch him in the street.

"Helena thought you had gone out," said the Grafin.

"But you knew I hadn't," I said, turning on Helena.

"Helena knew nothing of the sort," said the Grafin severely. "She said what she believed to be true. I must request you, Christine, not to cast doubts on her word. We Germans do not lie."

And the Graf muttered, "Peinlich, peinlich," and pushed back his chair and left the room.

"You have spoilt my husband's lunch," said the Grafin sternly.

"I am very sorry," I said; and tried to go on with my own, but couldn't see it because I was blinded by tears.

After this there was nothing for it but Frau Berg. I waited till the Grafin was alone, and then went and told her I thought it better I should go back to the Lutzowstrasse, and would like, if she didn't mind, to go tomorrow. It was very peinlich, as they say; for however much people want to get rid of you they're

The Recovery of the $250,000 Munro Diamonds

ANOTHER TRUE STORY OF THE BEST WORK OF AMERICAN DETECTIVES

The crime was detected, the criminal arrested and the property recovered in a case where there was not the slightest clew and where the operative was forced to proceed entirely by inductive reasoning—Told by the man under whose direction the mystery was cleared up . :: :: ::

SEVERAL weeks ago, there appeared in the Post-Dispatch Sunday Magazine a symposium of four true detective stories under the caption "Best Work of American Detectives." They were taken from a book compiled by Detective F. Dalton O'Sullivan, of Chicago, "Enemies of the Underworld," which contains information of value to men ambitious to be detectives and in addition recounts in detail more than 60 cases handled with success by the best known "sleuths" in America.

Here is another story from the same volume. It is told by William D. Soule, chief of the Soule Secret Service, of Chicago, and deals with the solution of a famous jewel robbery. There was not a clew, and the mystery was cleared up entirely by inductive theory.

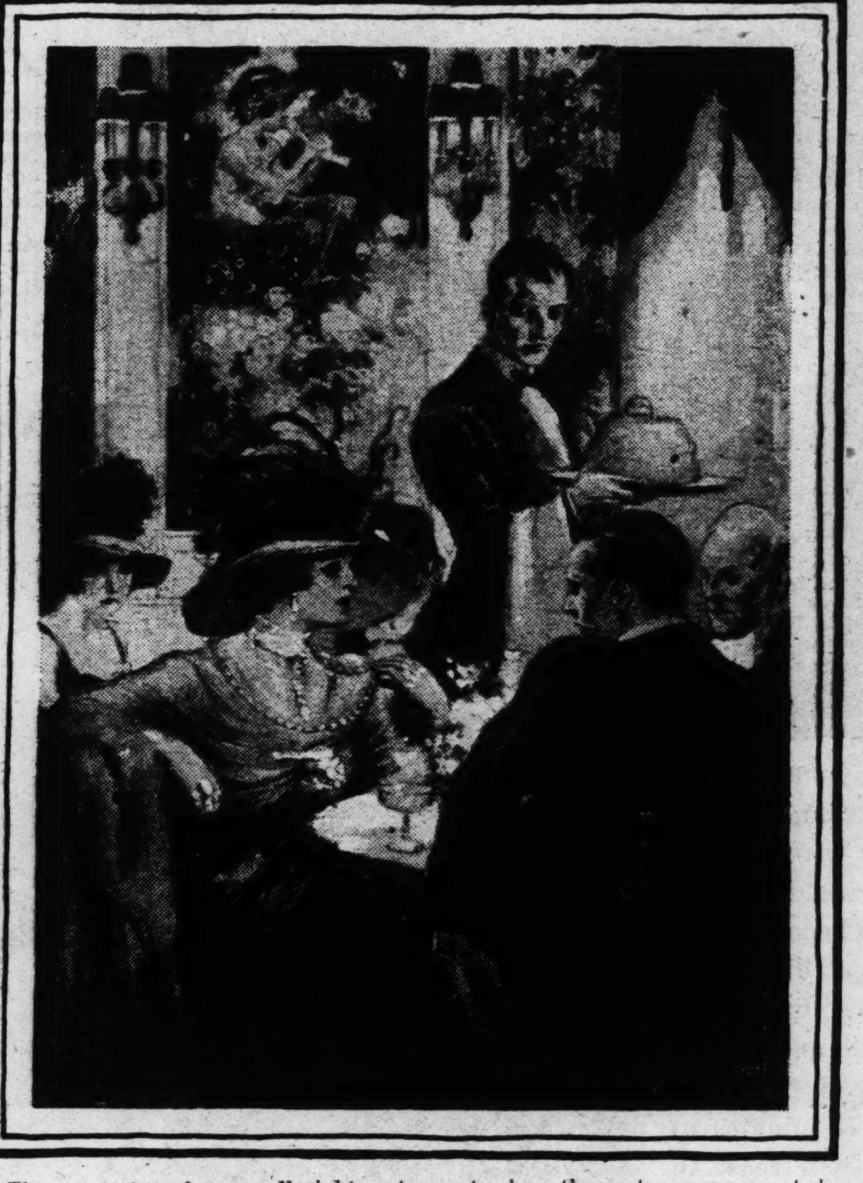
I REGARD the recovery of the Munro diamonds as the most skillful and marvelous piece of detective work that has come under my direction during 20 years of service.

The victim, Mme. Munro, although born and educated in America, had, when quite young, married a wealthy French merchant and gone to Paris to live. During their happy and prosperous married life Munro presented his wife with many jewels including some magnificent pearls and diamonds. But, after a few years, Munro died and his widow decided to visit her native land in order to get away, for the time being, from the scenes of her great bereavement.

Through thoughtlessness or vanity she brought with her jewels moderately estimated at a quarter of a million dollars. With her were two maids, who were really her companions, being connected by birth with the Munro family; and this perhaps added to her feeling of security—she took no particular precaution for the safety of herself or her jewels.

While in Chicago Mme. Munro had a desire to see a schoolgirl friend who had married and taken up her abode there. Our detective agency was employed to locate her, which we did within a short time, a thing which so pleased Mme. Munro that later, when she had most urgent need of assistance, she wired us from San Francisco.

In San Francisco, like all visitors, Mme. Munro and her companions looked forward to a visit to Chinatown. Such visits are made in safety, providing even ordinary precaution is used, and it is seldom that crimes are committed in this section. By some strange freak of fancy, Mme. Munro wore all her jewels on the night of her trip through Chinatown. There was no reason for this, and ordinary caution would have suggested that they be left in a place of safety. Afterward, in relating the matter to me, she could not tell me why she had worn the jewels, but it was clear she had not been pre-influenced. Owing to the heavy fog, Mme. Munro wore a waterproof coat which she kept closely buttoned during the entire trip, so that on no part of this journey through Chinatown was a single jewel exposed.



They went to a famous all-night restaurant, where the party was augmented by the addition of two gentlemen whom they had met through mutual friends. When the party left, Madame was in possession of all her jewels. Two weeks later they disappeared.

The trip was uneventful, and, after paying and dismissing their guide, they went to a famous all-night restaurant. At this place the party was augmented by the addition of two gentlemen whom they had previously met at their hotel through mutual friends. As they sat down to refreshments, the lady's coat was, of course, removed, thus displaying her jewels, which must have attracted attention. When the party left, long after midnight, madame was, nevertheless, in possession of all her jewels and she little suspected that a plan had been laid to dispossess her of them.

Two weeks later, however, they disappeared.

Mme. Munro went one afternoon to visit the Cliff House with her two companions. On this occasion she wore no jewels whatever. Instead, she had placed them all in her jewel box in one of the drawers of her dresser. On her return several hours later she found the box and all the jewelry missing.

As madame did not wish the story to reach her home in France, she decided to avoid the police and put the matter entirely in our hands. I boarded the first train West.

My investigation at the hotel was without reward, for the thief had not forced the door, and had otherwise left not even so much as a finger print. Therefore it was necessary to follow and investigate the lady's every movement from the time she arrived in San Francisco to the time the jewels disappeared, in order to locate, if possible, the locality in which some shrewd thief had conceived the idea of this remarkable robbery.

We went over the trip through Chinatown, taking the same guide and going at the same hour. We found not even the slightest clew. In the meantime I ordered the two gentlemen who had dined with madame to be shadowed, but found not the slightest reason for suspecting them.

On the night following the Chinatown investigation we visited the all-night restaurant where Mme. Munro had displayed her jewels; and, although we had men and women operatives scattered throughout the place, we found no clew on which to work.

We then commenced another line of detective work, probably the most thorough ever undertaken in such a case. We secretly investigated every one of the restaurant employes, and by a process of elimination cast our suspicion upon one waiter, who, without warning, had left the employ of the restaurant the day following the visit of Mme. Munro's party, but still 10 days before the robbery was committed.

We learned that this man had been in and around his old haunts in San Francisco, unemployed, for a period of 10 days after leaving the restaurant, yet showing no desire to return to his work. His place of abode during these 10 days was unknown to his old friends, and he had finally disappeared altogether. But our patient search was rewarded by finding one of his friends, who had received a letter from him dated New Orleans, general delivery.

Our description of the man was perfect, and I at once took the train for New Orleans. Here it was but the work of a day to locate the man through a decoy letter, and our shadows trailed him to a rooming house in an obscure neighborhood in the poor French quarter, where they encamped about him and watched every move for two monotonous weeks. Finally we shadowed him to a pawnshop, where he stood gazing into the window, evidently trying to see whether he could recognize someone inside. This gave our shadows the impression that the man had had dealings at this shop. Our suspicions were further confirmed by the fact that he always had money.

I immediately made inquiries of the pawnbroker, and discovered that only two days before my arrival a man answering the description of the waiter had sold him a loose diamond. This was our first gleam of light, although meantime we had gained access to his room and searched every conceivable place without finding any trace of his jewelry. The landlady, an honest French woman, informed us that only that morning her roomer had returned from downtown apparently much excited, and had spent considerable time in reading a letter which he afterward burned, taking care to remain in the room until it was entirely consumed. The letter was a heap of blackened ashes, but even as I pondered over this, one of my shadows called me on the telephone to say that our man had purchased a second-class ticket for New York and was even then in the train. In a few minutes I and my two shadows were on the same train.

The following of this man to New York was a most arduous task, for he roused himself at every station, giving our shadows the impression that he expected to

Shadow 167 miles wide, hundreds of thousands of miles long, and traveling at the rate of more than 1000 to 5000 miles an hour, caused by the passage of the moon between the sun and the earth, will pass diagonally across the United States during the daylight hours of June 8, and will be visible in every section of the country—Will require only 47 minutes to travel entire distance from coast to coast—Scientists already are making preparations to make exhaustive investigation of great sky phenomenon

AT sunrise on June 9 of this year will occur one of the greatest of sky phenomena. On that day the moon, in its travels around the earth, will cast between the earth and the sun a shadow 167 miles wide, and this shadow, which will appear at a time of day when it will be visible to a large proportion of the world's population, will travel over the earth at the rate of between 1000 and 5000 miles an hour.

The shadow will first appear at sunrise on June 9 (it will be June 8 in the United States) on the little island of Borodino off the coast of Japan. It then will sweep eastward and, having by this time attained a speed of 33 miles a minute, will arrive two hours and 15 minutes later, or at 2:55 p. m., Pacific time, at the mouth of the Columbia River in Washington State.

For the next 47 minutes, people in every part of the United States—in those sections, of course, favored with clear skies—will be privileged to witness an eclipse of the sun such as has not been seen in this country in a great many years.

The last great eclipse observed in America was that of May 28, 1900, but the one of this year will surpass it both in total path length and the available territory which it covers. The same is true with reference to the eclipse of 1878, although the one in 1865 equaled the coming one in total path length.

From the Columbia River the path of the total eclipse will sweep Southeast, will pass the Mississippi River at 5:37 p. m., central time, and will leave the coast of Florida at 6:43 Eastern time. Three minutes later it will be lost in the sunset 400 miles at sea.

Those persons living on the track of the eclipse, or those sufficiently interested who travel to a point in the path, will be the only ones able to see the eclipse in totality. Residents of other sections of the country will see it only partially, according to their distance from the track, but it nevertheless will be an imposing sight. Cambridge, Mass., for instance, as will be seen by a reference to the map on this page, is many hundreds of miles from the path, but the per cent of totality even there will be 63 per cent.

The path of totality is clearly indicated by the lines on the map. The figures at the right give the duration of totality as seen on the central line of the track in minutes and seconds, those at the left are the standard times of the beginning of the total phase for the corresponding points in the central path, and under the latter will be found the sun's altitude. To find the per cent of the eclipse for any place not on the map, deduct 1 per cent for every 30 miles the place is from the middle line of the eclipse track. St. Louis, for instance is 360 miles from the middle of the track, hence the per cent of totality is 88.

Scientists have noted with interest that the coming eclipse is a return of the one of 1900. The length of the Saros, or interval between eclipses, was determined by the ancient Chaldeans as 18 years, 11 1-3 days (10 1-3 days if five leap years had intervened). The eclipse of May 28, 1900, occurred about 8 a. m. If 18 years, 11 1-3 days be added to this, it easily can be seen how it may be expected to return at 4 p. m. on June 8, 1918. As a matter of fact, a strict calculation will throw this in doubt only a matter of some minutes.

The following data, descriptive of eclipses of the sun, has been prepared for the Post-Dispatch by the Rev. Father J. B. Goesse, professor of astronomy at St. Louis University:

"In an eclipse of the sun, the moon's shadow passes over part of the earth. The greatest width of the shadow is 167 miles. It passes over the observer at the equator at the rate of 1060 miles an hour, but for higher altitudes the speed is very much greater and when the shadow falls very obliquely this speed may amount to 5000 miles an hour. The length of the moon's shadow varies between 228,300 and 236,050 miles.

"The longest duration of a solar eclipse is seven minutes and 58 seconds. In our latitude, however, the duration of a total solar eclipse can barely exceed six minutes."

Anyone who has witnessed a solar eclipse under favorable conditions doubtless remembers the feeling of awe which it inspired. Shortly before totality, shadows of foliage assumed a peculiar appearance. The light, coming from the edge of the sun only, produced an effect more like that of oxy-hydrogen light. Animals acted strangely and in a perplexed manner, and birds went to roost.

As a rule, too, the temperature falls a few degrees and sometimes dew appears, Alternating light and dark bands appear on white surfaces, supposed to be due to irregular atmospheric refraction of the light from the sun's still exposed surface. As soon as totality begins the corona and the prominences of the sun

IN St. Louis the sun will be eclipsed 88 per cent. People here will be unable to see the eclipse totally because the city is not in the path of the total eclipse.

The beginning of the eclipse will be at 4:27 p. m.

The middle of the eclipse will be at 5:30 p. m.

The end of the eclipse will be at 6:27 p. m.

Total solar eclipses always are occasions for great preparation among scientists, for opportunity is afforded to correct existing tables of the sun's and moon's motion, search for intramercurial planets and study of fringes around the sun. Measurements also can be taken of the intensity of light and spectroscopic observations made upon the lower atmosphere of the sun. Astronomical photography is afforded a wonderful field, and the coming eclipse doubtless will be productive of some wonderful photographs, made possible by greatly improved instruments since the opportunity of their use was last afforded.

There was a time when such a celestial phenomenon as an eclipse of the sun was believed to be a visitation of the wrath of God, and aroused terror instead of wonderment in the beholder Some thought it presaged an overthrow of states; for others it implied a universal deluge or world-wide conflagration, while some believed it would infect the air. Not so many years ago a negro in the United States killed his wife, family and himself at the time of a solar eclipse because he believed that the end of the world was at hand. But science and education have removed all these fears and now the sight excites in the layman little save to turn his thoughts for an hour or a day to the wonders of the universe.

History records that it was the providential intervention of an eclipse of the moon that saved Christopher Columbus and his little army from possible starvation at Jamaica. They found means of obtaining food from the natives by informing them that that evening they would be deprived of the light of the moon. The eclipse had scarcely commenced when the food was forthcoming. This eclipse, which occurred March 1, 1504, was observed in Europe, and records of it, compiled at Ulm by Stoffer, and at Nuremburg by Bernard Walker, are extant to this day.

An eclipse of the sun and an eclipse of the moon, declares Camille Flammarion, the great French astronomer and perhaps the world's greatest writer on the subject, are phenomena of a different kind. In the former the moon hides the sun wholly or in part for certain points of the earth's surface; in some places it is total and at others partial. In an eclipse of the moon, however, that satellite ceases wholly or in part to be illuminated by the sun, because it then passes through the shadow of the earth, and this aspect of the moon is the same for all the inhabitants of the terrestrial hemisphere where the moon is above the horizon.

"We understand at once from this," he goes on in one of his astronomical textbooks, "that the calculations of an eclipse of the moon present fewer complications than that of an eclipse of the sun, since for the former we have only to indicate the general circumstances of the phenomena, which are the same for all observers, while for the latter the indication of the general circumstances is far from sufficing, on account of the differences of aspect according to the region and the narrowness of the zone in which the eclipse is central. The ancients, who were far from knowing the motion of the moon with as much precision as we do, had not the means of accurately predicting eclipses of the sun. They only predicted eclipses of the moon, relying on the fact that they are reproduced very nearly periodically, presenting the same characters, and with the same interval between them, in the course of 18 years 11 days; so that it was sufficient to have observed and registered all those which were produced in a similar period of time to foretell with certainty those which would be produced in the following period.

"Now, on the contrary, with the much more precise knowledge we have of the moon's motion, we are in a position to calculate and foretell for a great number of years, and even centuries in advance, not only the general circumstances of eclipses of the moon, but even the detailed course of eclipses of the sun. We can even, by a retrospective examination, give an account of all the circumstances which an ancient eclipse should have presented in such or such a locality, and find the precise date of certain historical events of which the epoch is a subject of discussion. An eclipse of the sun is a veritable rarity for any given place. Herodotus relates that at the moment of a battle between the Lydians and the Medes a total eclipse of the sun at once stopped the stupefied combatants and put an end to the war. Till recently historians gave various dates for this event, from the year 626 before our era down to the year 583; astronomical calculations, however, prove that this battle took place on May 28 of the year 585 B. C.

"Eclipses of the sun always happen at the moment of new moon, and eclipses of the moon at the moment of full moon. This circumstance has long since made known the cause to which they are due. At the moment of new moon, the moon, passing between the earth and the sun, can hide from our view a larger or smaller portion of that body. At the moment of full moon, on the contrary, the earth is found between the sun and the moon; it can then prevent the solar rays from reaching the latter body. All this is easily explained.

"If the moon revolved around the earth in the same plane as the earth round the sun, it would be eclipsed in our shadow at every full moon, and it would eclipse the sun at every new moon. But she passes sometimes above and sometimes below the cone of the shadow and she can only be eclipsed when she penetrates into this shadow."

always angry if you want to go. I said all I could that was grateful, and there was quite a lot I could say by blotting out the last two days from my remembrance. I did, being greatly at sea and perplexed, ask what it was that I had done to offend her; though, of course, she didn't tell me, and was only still more offended at being asked.

I'm going to pack now, and write a letter to Bernd telling him about it, in case Helena should have a second unfortunate conviction that I'm not at home when he comes next. And I do try to be cheerful, little mother, and keep my soul from getting hurt, and when I'm at Frau Berg's I shall feel more normal again I expect. But one has such fears—oh, more than just fears, terrors—Well, I won't go on writing in this mood. I'll pack. YOUR OWN CHRIS.

At Frau Berg's August 4th, 1914, very late.

Precious Mother:

I'm coming back to you. Don't be unhappy about me. Don't think I'm coming back mangled, a bleeding thing, because, you see, I still have Bernd. I still believe in him—oh, with my whole being. And as long as I do that how can I be anything but happy? It's strange how, now that the catastrophe has come, I'm quite calm, sitting here at Frau Berg's in my old room in the middle of the night, writing to you. I think it's because the whole thing is so great that I'm like this, like somebody who has had a mortal blow, and because it's mortal, doesn't feel. But this isn't mortal. I've got Bernd and you—only now I must have great patience. Till I see him again. Till war is over and he comes for me, and I shall be with him always.

I'm coming to you, dear mother. It's finished here. I'm going to describe it all quite calmly to you. I'm not going to be unworthy of Bernd, I won't have less dignity and patience than he has. If you'd seen him tonight saying good-by to me, and stopped by the Colonel! His look as he obeyed—I shan't forget it. When next I'm weak and base I shall remember it, and it will save me.

At dinner there were only the Grafin and Helena and me, and they didn't speak a word, not only not to me, but not to each other, and in the middle a servant brought in a note for the Grafin from the Graf, he said, and when she had looked at it she got up and went out. We finished our dinner in dead silence, and I was going up to my room when the Grafin's maid came after me and said would I go to her mistress. She was alone in the drawing room, sitting at her writing table, though she wasn't writing, and when I came in she said, without turning round, that she must ask me to leave her house at once, that very evening. She said that apart from her private feelings, which were all in favor of my going—she would be quite frank, she said—there were serious political reasons why I shouldn't stay even as long as till tomorrow. The Graf's career, his position in the ministry, their social position, Majestat—I really don't remember all she said, and it matters so little, so little. I listened, trying to understand, trying to give all my attention to it and disentangled it, while my heart was thumping because of Bernd. For I was being turned out in disgrace, and I am his betrothed, and so I am his honor, and whatever of shame there is for me there is of shame for him.

The Grafin got more and more unsteady in her voice as she went on. She was trying hard to keep calm, but she was evidently feeling so acutely, so violently, that it was distressing to have to watch her. I was so sorry. I wanted to put my arms round her and tell her not to mind so much, that of course I'd go but if only she wouldn't mind so much whatever it was. Then at last she began to lose her hold on herself, and got up and walked about the room saying things about England. So then I knew. And I knew the answer to everything that has been perplexing me. They'd been afraid of it the last two days, and now they knew it. England isn't going to fold her arms and look on. Oh, how I loved England then! Standing in that Berlin drawing room in the heart of the junker-military-official set, all by myself in what I think and feel—how I loved her! My heart was thumping five minutes before for fear of shame, now it thumped so that I couldn't have said anything if I'd wanted to for gladness and pride. I was a bit of England. I think to know how much one loves England one has to be in Germany. I forgot Bernd for a moment, my heart was so full of that other love, that proud love for one's country when it takes its stand on the side of righteousness. And presently the Grafin said it all, tumbled it all out—that England was going to declare war, and under circumstahces so shameful, so full of the well-known revolting hypocrisy, that it made an honest German sick. "Belgium!" she cried; "What is Belgium? An excuse, a pretense, one more of the sickening, whining phrases with which you conceal your gluttonous opportunism"—— And so she continued, while I stood silent.

Oh, well, all that doesn't matter now—I'm in a hurry. I want to get this letter off to you tonight. Luckily there's a letter box a few yards away, so I won't have to face much of those awful streets that are yelling now for England's blood.

I went up and got my things together. I knew Bernd would get the letter I posted to him this morning telling him I was going to Frau Berg's tomorrow, so I felt safe about seeing him, even if he didn't come in to the Koseritzes before I left. But he did come in He came just as I was going downstairs carrying my violin case—how foolish and outside of life that music business seems now—and he seized my hand and took me into the drawing room.

"Not in here, not in here!" cried the Grafin, getting up excitedly. "Not again, not ever again, does an Englishwoman come into my drawing room"——

Bernd went to her and drew her hand through his arm and led her politely to the door, which he shut after her. Then he came back to me. "You know, Chris," he said, "about England?"

"Of course—just listen," I answered, for in the street newsboys were yelling Kriegserklarung Englands, and there was a great dull roaring as of a multitude of wild beasts who have been wounded.

"You must go to your mother at once—tomorrow," he said. "Before you're noticed, before there's been time to make your going difficult."

I told him the Grafin had asked me to leave, and I was coming here tonight. He wasted no words on the Koseritzes, but was anxious lest Frau Berg mightn't wish to take me in now. He said he would come with me and see that she did, and place me under her care as part of himself. "And tomorrow you run. You run to Switzerland, without telling Frau Berg or a soul where you are going," he said. "You just go out, and don't come back. I'll settle with Frau Berg afterwards. You go to the Anhalter station—on your feet, Chris, as though you were going for a walk—and get into the first train for Geneva, Zurich, Lausanne, anywhere, as long as it's Switzerland. You'll want all your intelligence. Have you money enough?"

"Yes, yes," I said, feeling every second was precious and shouldn't be wasted; but he opened my violin case and put a lot of bank notes into it.

"And have you courage enough?" he asked, taking my face in his hands and looking into my eyes.

Oh, the blessedness, the blessedness of being near him, of hearing and seeing him. What couldn't I and wouldn't I be and do for Bernd?

I told him I had courage enough, for I had him, and I wouldn't fail in it, nor in patience.

"We shall want both, my Chris," he said, his face against mine, "oh, my Chris"——

And then the Colonel walked in.

"Herr Leutnant?" he said, in a raucous voice, as though he were ordering troops about.

At the sound of it Bernd instantly became rigid and stood at attention—the perfect automaton, except that I was hanging on his arm.

"Zu Befehl, Herr Oberst," he said.

"Take that woman's hand off your arm, Herr Leutnant," said the Colonel sharply.

Bernd gently put my hand off, and I put it back again.

"We are going to be married," I said to the Colonel, "and perhaps I may not see Bernd for a long while after tonight."

"No German officer marries an alien enemy," snapped out the Colonel. "Remove the woman's hand, Herr Leutnant"

Again Bernd gently took my hand, but I held on. "This is good-by, then?" I said, looking up at him and clinging to him.

He was facing the Colonel, rigid, his profile to me; but he did at that turn his head and look at me. "Remember"—— he breathed.

"I forbid all talking, Herr Leutnant," snapped the Colonel.

"Never mind him," I whispered. "What does he matter? Remember what, my Bernd, my own beloved?"

"Remember courage—patience," he murmured quickly, under his breath.

"Silence!" shouted the Colonel. "Take that woman's hand off your arm, Herr Leutnant. Kreuzhimmeldonnerwetter nochmal. Instantly."

Bernd took my hand, and, raising it to his face, kissed it slowly and looked at me. I shall not forget that look.

The Colonel, who was very red and more like an infuriated machine than a human being, stepped on one side and pointed to the door. "Precede me," he said. "On the instant. March."

And Bernd went out as if on parade.

When shall we see each other again? Only a fortnight, one fortnight and two days, have we been lovers. But such things can't be measured by time. They are of eternity. They are for always. If he is killed, and the rest of my years are empty, we still will have had the whole of life.

And now there's tomorrow, and my getting away. You won't be anxious, dear mother. You'll wait quietly and patiently till I come. I'll write to you on the way if I can. It may take several days to get to Switzerland, and it may be difficult to get out of Germany. I think I shall say I'm an American. Frau Berg, poor thing, will be relieved to find me gone. She only took me in tonight because of Bernd. While she was demurring on the threshold, when at last I got to her after a terrifying walk through the crowds—for I was afraid they would notice me and see, as they always do, that I'm English—his soldier servant brought her a note from him which just turned the scale for me. I'm afraid humanity wouldn't have done it, nor pity, for patriotism and pity don't go well together here.

I wonder if you'll believe how calmly I'm going to bed and to sleep tonight, on the night of what might seem to be the ruin of my happiness. I'm glad I've written everything down that has happened this evening. It has got it so clear to me. I don't want ever to forget one word or look of Bernd's tonight. I don't want ever to forget his patience, his dear look of untouchable dignity, when the Colonel, because he is in authority and can be cruel, at such a moment in the lives of two poor human beings was so unkind.

God bless and keep you, my mother—my dear, sweet mother. YOUR CHRIS.

Halle, Wednesday night, August 5th, 1914.

I've got as far as this, and hope to get on in an hour or two. We've been stopped to let troop trains pass. They go rushing by one after the other, packed with waving, shouting soldiers, all of them with flowers stuck about them, in their buttonholes and caps. I've been watching them. There's no end to them. And the enthusiasm of the crowds on the platform as they go by never slackens. I'm making for Zurich. I tried for Bale, but couldn't get into Switzerland that way—it is abgesperrt. I hadn't much difficulty getting a ticket in Berlin. There was such confusion and such a rush at the ticket office that the man just asked me why I wanted to go; and I said I was American and rejoining my mother, and he flung me the ticket, only too glad to get rid of me. Don't expect me till you see me, for we shall be held up lots of times, I'm sure.

I'm all right, mother darling. It was fearfully hot all day, squeezed tight in a third-class carriage—no other class to be had. It's cold and drafty in this station, by comparison, and I wish I had my coat. I've brought nothing away with me, except my fiddle and what would go in its case, which was handkerchiefs. Bernd will see that my things get sent on, I expect. I locked everything up in my trunk—your letters and my precious things. An official came along the train at Wittenberg, and after eyeing us all in my compartment suddenly held out his hand to me and said, "Ihre Papiere." As I haven't got any I told him about being an American, and as much family history not till then known to me as I could put into German. The other passengers listened eagerly, but not unfriendly. I think if you're a woman not being old helps one in Germany.

Now I'm going to get some hot coffee, for it has turned cold, I think, and post this. The one thing in life now that seems of desperate importance is to get to you! It will be like getting to heaven, like getting at last, after many wanderings, and batterings, to the feet of God.

We ought to be at Waldshut, on the frontier, tomorrow morning, but nobody can say for certain, because we may be held up for hours anywhere on the way. YOUR CHRIS.

It's a good thing being too tired to think.

Wurzburg, Thursday, August 6th, 1914, 4 p. m.

I've only got as far as this. I was held up this time, not the train. It went on without me. Well, it doesn't matter really; it only keeps me a little longer from you.

We stopped here about 10 o'clock this morning, and I was so tired and stiff after the long night wedged in tight in the railway carriage that I got out to get some air and unstiffen myself, instinctively clutching my fiddle case; and a Bavarian officer on the platform, watching the train with some soldiers, saw me and came over to me to once and demanded to see my papers.

"You are English," he said; and when I said I was American he made a sound like Tcha.

I can't tell you how horrid he was. He kept me standing for two hours in the blazing sun. You can imagine what I felt like when I saw my train going away without me. I asked if I mightn't go into the shade, into the waiting room, anywhere out of the terrible sun, for I was positively dripping after the first half hour of it, and his answer to that and to anything else I said in protest was always the same: "Krieg ist Krieg. Mund halten."

There was no reason why I shouldn't be in the shade, except that he had power to prevent it. Well, he was very young, and I don't suppose had ever had so much power before, so I suppose it was natural, he being Ger-

WHEN THE CITY FELLER "SET UP" WITH AN OZARKER'S "GAL"

He didn't really do it, because her "steady" made it necessary for him to seek surgical attention, but his intentions were of the best, for hadn't he "set up" on previous occasions, and how was he to know that the words had a double meaning?—Emroe uses the "dude's" experience as an argument against suffrage :-: :-: :-: :-: :-: :-:

HE put his hat on the back of his head, placed one hand on his hip, rested a foot backward against the fence, said his first name was Emroe and declared himself ready to talk.

"It ain't that I jist don't want women to vote," he began. "I ain't down on women takin' any part in the world that they're prepared fer, same as men. It's jist that I don't believe the people in the city is compertent to take a hand in things, men ner women nuther. I ain't never been to a city, and what's more, I don't aim to. But if I ain't mightily mistaken, the city folks ain't got no business a-votin'. I've got a heap . reasons fer my belief. Heap of 'em. But the main one is that they're all doods. Yessir! Jist a passel of doods. Men and women both. Take Tommie Beck, fer example. Sort of relation to my woman. Ain't got time to talk to you so very long this mornin', but reckon I'll jist have to tell you about Tommie.

"I'm fixin' to take a couple of hawgs to town this evenin', and want to git back before supper time. It's a right smart piece to haul 'em, but once I git 'em there, I don't have to think about 'em agin till they're ready to butcher. I reckon I'll ride in once in a while to see how they're a-gittin' along, but I won't have to feed 'em none. I've heerd they don't allow the hawgs and cattle to run loose on the streets in Sent Louis. That's another thing I've got agin the city. Why, they ain't no tellin' how many hawgs gits fat right here in our county seat, jist a-pickin up their livin' around, and think how many more could be fattened where the pickin' was jist so much bigger. We shore know how to treat our hawgs down here. Why, they jist ain't nothin' too good fer 'em. In the summer time, when it's hot, we see to it that they have their wallers located in a suitable place. Right in front of the stores is ginerally selected fer wallerin' places.

Barney Bent's Flossie.

"But as I was a-sayin', Tommie, he come down to visit us oncet, all dressed up in a little mustache and a part in the middle of his head. The minute I seen him I jist natcherly ached to land him one. I reckon he seen my fists all doubled up, and he says: 'You cannot hit me with impunity,' he says. 'Then how'll a club do?' I axes him, 'er my fists,' I says. I sorter hated to light into him the fust thing, though, so I let him go on into the house, where he stayed the most of the time that fust day, but in the course of a week he was goin' out fer walks, 'along the beautiful highways,' he said, meanin' the roads.

"Luke Stokes was at my house a day or two after Tommie come. 'Pitch at me,' says Luke, a'offerin' his hand when I made 'em acquainted. 'I'm right-handed and red-headed,' he says. Luke has always got somethin' funny to get off, but Tommie, he couldn't see through a stone wall with a hole in it big enough fer him to crawl through. He looked after Luke as he rid away and 'lowed that it shore was too bad that Mr. Stokes was color blind. His hair was plumb black, he said, and 'lowed that he'd write off to some doctor institution right away to find out how to treat it. Said maybe he could git him plumb over the disease while he was down here.

"'Where do you keep your sheep?' he axed me one day.

"'In the fur pasture,' I told him, meanin', of course, that they was in the pasture furdest away.

"'Oh!' he says. 'Do you also raise fur? That is a new industry. And, indeed, it must be quite profitable,' he says. 'How do you raise it?' he axes.

"'Yes,' I says, 'it's awful profitable. Shore is. We jist sow fur seed like it was timothy. Comes up awful thick,' I tells him. 'Ginerally git two cuttin's a year off of a patch of it. And we keep a bee, too,' I says. 'It's shore nice to have all the honey you want. And one of our cows gives buttermilk,' I tells him.

"He was jist plumb tickled to git all that information. 'Lowed he'd heerd it talked about and disputed a heap of times, and now he knowed the truth about it at last. Said he'd shore put everybody right on the subject of them two pints, soon as he got back to the city.

"But that settin'-up business was the funniest and the foolest thing he done. Haw! haw! haw! I'll jist natcherly take the time to tell you. It all come about frum me a-takin' him with me one night to set with Jim Blunt. Jim had the fever and the neignbors was a-takin' turns a-settin' up with him. Blame me if Tommie didn't git right interested somehow. You know how some folks jist sorter takes to nussin' the sick. The neighbors was all tard out and we jist let Tommie take the case, since he didn't have nothin' else to do and enjyed it so well. I'll have to give him credit, too, fer the way he tuck keer of Jim, blame if I don't. I always believe in givin' the devil his dues, and I ain't agin sayin' that Jim moughtn't a-got well like he did if it hadn't a-been that they was jist one person a-handlin' the medicine and a-stickin' to the job.

He put his hat on the back of his head, placed one hand on his hip, rested a foot backward against the fence, and said his first name was Emroe.

"Well, one day, after Jim was up and around, Tommie, who kept on a visitin' us, heerd somebody say somethin' about Barney Bent a-settin' up with Flossie Stiver. Barney had been a-goin' with Flossie a long time and fer purty nigh a year he'd been a-settin' up with her steady. We was expectin' 'em to git married most any day. They ain't no sign so sure, hardly, as a feller a-walkin' eight mile to set up with a girl till midnight and then a-trackin' it back over them eight miles agin. Heap of nights Barney wouldn't more than git home by the time he had to git to work in the cornfield, his folks bein' great hands to git to work at daylight.

"Well, that night, after hearin' about it, Tommie, he up and commenced a-gittin' ready fer to go down to Stiver's to take his turn a-settin' up with Flossie. When I axed him where he was a-goin' he shore give me a piece of his mind. 'Lowed it was mighty quare that a stranger had to come into the neighborhood and learn the people their duty. Said frum what he heerd 'em a-sayin' he reckoned that feller had been a-settin' up with that girl purty nigh a year, hand-runnin', without nobody to relieve him. The pore feller must be plumb tuckered out, he 'lowed.

"I told him that Barney didn't want nobody to relieve him. Like as not, I said, he wouldn't be tickled a-tall if anybody undertuck to set up with Flossie. But the blame fool couldn't tumble if a house fell on him. Said he reckoned that the pore feller felt so hurt that nobody didn't come to take turns with him that he had jist wrapped hisself up in his pride and wouldn't let on. But that no doubt he would be awful glad if somebody would jist offer to he'p him out a little.

"I got a pitcher of Barney in my mind while Tommie was a-talkin'—Barney a-wantin' somebody to take turns with him a-settin' up with Flossie. I called to mind the skinned head Jake Fullerton packed around with him fer a month after tryin' to take Flossie home frum the spellin' at the schoolhouse. I 'membered how he purty nigh squeezed the life out of Sam Tubbs when he tried to buy Flossie's pie at the pie supper. My mind went back to how Barney used to mule-up as a kid and grit his teeth and light into somebody twicet his size if they got him mad. I 'membered how the whole

BY MARY ROBERTS RINEHART

CHAPTER V.

AT THE RIDING SCHOOL.

HIS ROYAL HIGHNESS, the Crown Prince Ferdinand William Otto was in disgrace.

He had risen at 6, bathed, dressed and gone to mass, in disgrace He had breakfasted at 7:30 on fruit, cereal and one egg, in disgrace. He had gone to his study at 8 o'clock for lessons, in disgrace. A long line of tutors came and went all morning, and he worked diligently, but he was still in disgrace. All morning long and in the intervals between tutors he had tried to catch Miss Braithwaite's eye.

Except for the most ordinary civilities, she had refused to look in his direction. She was correcting an essay in English on Mr. Gladstone, with a blue pencil, and putting in blue commas every here and there. The Crown Prince was amazingly weak in commas. When she was all through, she piled the sheets together and wrote a word on the first page. It might have been "good." On the other hand, it could easily have been "poor." The motions of the hand are similar.

At last, in desperation, the Crown Prince deliberately broke off the point of his pencil, and went to the desk where Miss Braithwaite sat, monarch of the American pencil sharpener, which was the beloved of his heart.

"Again!" said Miss Braithwaite shortly. And raised her eyebrows.

"It's a very soft pencil," explained the Crown Prince. "When I press down on it, it—it busts."

"It what?"

"It busts—breaks." Evidently the English people were not familiar with this new and fascinating American word.

He cast a casual glance toward Mr. Gladstone. The word was certainly "poor." Suddenly a sense of injustice began to rise in him. He had worked rather hard over Mr. Gladstone. He had done so because he knew that Miss Braithwaite considered him the greatest man since Jesus Christ, and even the Christ had not written "The Influence of Authority in Matters of Opinion."

The French tutor was standing near a photograph of Hedwig and pretending not to look at it. Prince Ferdinand William Otto had a suspicion that the tutor was in love with Hedwig. On one occasion, when she had entered unexpectedly, he had certainly given out the sentence, "Ce dragon etait le vieux serpent, la princesse," instead of "Ce dragon etait le vieux serpent, le roi."

Prince Ferdinand William Otto, did not like the French tutor. His being silly about Hedwig was not the reason. Even Nikky had that trouble, and once, when they were all riding together, had said, "Canter on the snaffle, trot on the curb," when he meant exactly the opposite. It was not that. Part of it was because of his legs, which were inclined to knock at the knees. Mostly it was his eyes, which protruded.

His taste of liberty had spoiled the Crown Prince for work. Instead of conjugating a French verb, he made a sketch of the scenic railway. He drew the little car, and two heads looking over the edge, with a sort of porcupine effect of hairs standing straight up.

"Otto!" said Miss Braithwaite sternly.

So he went to work in earnest. He worked at a big desk which had been his father's. As a matter of fact, everything in the room was too big for him. It had not occurred to anyone to make any concessions to his size. He went through life, one may say, with his legs dangling, or standing on tiptoe to see things.

The sun came through the deep embrasures of the window and set Prince Ferdinand William Otto's feet to wriggling. It penetrated the gloomy fastnesses of the old room and showed its dingy furniture, its great desk, its dark velvet portieres and the old cabinet in which the Crown Prince kept his toys on the top shelf. He had arranged them there himself, the ones he was fondest of in the front row, so he could look up and see them; a drum which he still dearly loved, but which made Miss Braithwaite's head ache; a locomotive with a broken spring; a steam engine which Hedwig had given him, but which the King considered dangerous, and which had never, therefore, had its baptism of fire; and a dilapidated and lop-eared cloth dog.

He was exceedingly fond of the dog. For quite a long time he had taken it to bed with him at night, and put its head on his pillow. It was the most comforting thing, when the lights were all out. Until he was 7 he had been allowed a bit of glimmer, a tiny wick floating in a silver dish of lard-oil, for a night light. But after his eighth birthday that had been done away with, Miss Braithwaite considering it babyish.

The Crown Prince Ferdinand William Otto found the sun unsettling. Besides, he hated verbs. Nouns were different. One could do something with nouns, although even they had a way of having genders. Into his head popped a recollection of a delightful pastime of the day before—nothing more nor less than flipping paper wads at the guard on the scenic railway as the car went past him.

Prince Ferdinand William Otto tore off the corner of a piece of paper, chewed it deliberately, rounded and hardened it with his royal fingers, and aimed it at M. Puaux. It struck him in the eye.

Instantly things happened. M. Puaux yelled, and clapped a hand to his eye. Miss Braithwaite rose. His royal highness wrote a rather shaky French verb, with the wrong termination. And on to this scene came Nikky for the riding lesson. Nikky, smiling and tidy, and very shiny as to riding boots and things, and wearing white kid gloves. Everyone about a palace wears white kid gloves, except the royalties themselves. It is extremely expensive.

Nikky surveyed the scene. He had, of course, bowed inside the door, and all that sort of thing. But Nikky was an informal person, and was quite apt to bow deeply before his future sovereign, and then poke him in the chest.

"Well!" said Nikky.

"Good-morning," said Prince Ferdinand William Otto, in a small and nervous voice.

"Nothing wrong, is there?" demanded Nikky.

N. Puaux got out his handkerchief and said nothing violently.

"Otto!" said Miss Braithwaite. "What did you do?"

"Nothing." He looked about. He was quite convinced that M. Puaux was what Bobby would have termed a poor sport, and had not played the game fairly. The guard at the railway, he felt, would not have yelled and wept. "Oh, well, I threw a piece of paper. That's all. I didn't think it would hurt."

Miss Braithwaite rose and glanced at the carpet. But Nikky was quick. Quick and understanding. He put his shiny foot over the paper wad.

"Paper!" said Miss Braithwaite. "Why did you throw paper? And at M. Puaux?"

"I—just felt like throwing something," explained his royal highness. "I guess it's the sun, or something."

Nikky dropped his glove, and miraculously, when he had picked it up the little wad was gone.

"For throwing paper, five marks," said Miss Braithwaite, and put it down in the book she carried in her pocket. It was rather an awful book. On Saturdays the King looked it over, and demanded explanations: "For untidy nails, five marks! A gentleman never has untidy nails, Otto. For objecting to winter flannels, two marks. Humph! For pocketing sugar from the tea tray, 10 marks! Humph! For lack of attention during religious instruction, five marks. Ten off for the sugar, and only five for inattention to religious instruction! What have you to say, sir?"

Prince Ferdinand William Otto looked at Nikky and Nikky looked back. Then Ferdinand William Otto's left eyelid drooped. Nikky was astounded. How was he to know the treasury of strange things that the Crown Prince had tapped the previous afternoon? But, after a glance around the room, Nikky's eyelid drooped also. He slid the paper wad into his pocket.

"I am afraid his royal highness has hurt your eye, M. Puaux," said Miss Braithwaite. Not with sympathy. She hated tutors.

"Not at all," said the unhappy young man, testing the eye to discover if he could see through it. "I am sure his royal highness meant no harm." M. Puaux went out, with his handkerchief to his eye. He turned at the door and bowed, but as no one was paying any attention to him, he made two bows, one to Hedwig's picture.

While Oskar, his valet, put the Crown Prince into riding clothes, Nikky and Miss Braithwaite had a talk. Nikky was the only person to whom Miss Braithwaite really unbent. Once he had written to a friend of his in China, and secured for her a large box of the best Chinese tea. Miss Braithwaite only brewed it when the Archduchess made one of her rare visits to the Crown Prince's apartment.

But just now their talk was very serious. It began by Nikky stating that she was likely to see him a great deal now, and he hoped she would not find him in the way. He had been made aide de camp to the Crown Prince, vice Count Lussin, who had resigned on account of illness, having been roused at daybreak out of a healthy sleep to do it.

Not that Nikky said just that. What he really observed was: "The King sent for me last night, Miss Braithwaite, and—and asked me to hang around." Thus Nikky, of his sacred trust! None the less sacred to him, either, that he spoke lightly. He glanced up at the crossed swords, and his eyes were hard.

So now he entered the boudoir of the Archduchess Annunciata, and the Countess went out another door and closed it behind her, immediately opening it about an inch.

And Miss Braithwaite knew. She reached over and put a hand on his arm. "You and I," she said. "Out of all the people in this palace, only you and I! The Archduchess hates him. I see it in her eyes. She can never forgive him for keeping the throne from Hedwig. The court? Do they ever think of the boy, except to dread his minority, with Mettlich in control? A long period of mourning, a regency, no balls, no gayety—that is all they think of. And whom can we trust? The very guards down below, the sentries at our doors, how do we know they are loyal?"

"The people love him," said Nikky doggedly.

"The people! Sheep. I do not trust the people. I do not trust anyone. I watch, but what can I do? The very food we eat"——

"He is coming," said Nikky softly. And fell to whistling under his breath.

Together Nikky and Prince Ferdinand William Otto went out and down the great marble staircase. Sentries saluted. Two flunkies in scarlet and gold threw open the doors. A stray dog that had wandered into the courtyard watched them gravely.

"I wish," said Prince Ferdinand William Otto, "that I might have a dog."

"A dog! Why?"

"Well, it would be company. Dogs are very friendly. Yesterday I met a boy who has a dog. It sleeps on his bed at night."

"You have a good many things, you know," Nikky argued. "You've got a dozen horses, for one thing."

"But a dog's different." He felt the difference, but he could not put it into words. "And I'd rather have only one horse. I'd get better acquainted with it."

A small crowd lined up and watched the passing of the little Prince. As he passed, men lifted their hats and women bowed. He smiled right and left, and took two short steps to one of Nikky's long ones.

"I have a great many friends," he said with a sigh of content, as they neared the riding school. "I suppose I don't really need a dog"

"Look here," said Nikky, after a pause. He was not very quick in thinking things out. He placed, as a fact, more reliance on his right arm than on his brain. But once he had thought a thing out, it stuck. "Look here, highness, you didn't treat your friends very well yesterday."

"I know," said Prince Ferdinand William Otto meekly. But Prince Ferdinand William Otto had thought out a defense. "I got back all right, didn't I?" He considered. "It was worth it. A policeman shook me!"

"Which policeman?" demanded Nikky in a terrible tone, and in his fury quite forgot the ragging he had prepared for Otto.

"I think I'll not tell you, if you don't mind. And I bought a fig lady. I've saved the legs for you."

Fortune smiled on Nikky that day. Had, indeed, been smiling daily for some three weeks. Singularly enough, the Princess Hedwig, who had been placed on a pony at the early age of 2, and who had been wont to boast that she could ride any horse in her grandfather's stables, was taking riding lessons. From 12 to 1—which was, also singularly, the time Prince Ferdinand William Otto and Nikky rode in the ring—the Princess Hedwig rode also. Rode divinely. Rode saucily. Rode, when Nikky was ahead, tenderly.

To tell the truth, Prince Ferdinand William Otto rather hoped, this morning, that Hedwig would not be there. There was a difference in Nikky when Hedwig was around. When she was not there he would do all sorts of things, like jumping on his horse while it was going, and riding backward in the saddle, and so on. He had once even tried jumping on his horse as it galloped past him, and missed, and had been awfully ashamed about it. But when Hedwig was there, there was no skylarking. They rode around, and the riding master put up jumps and they took them. And finally Hedwig would get tired, and ask Nikky please to be amusing while she rested. And he would not be amusing at all. The Crown Prince felt that she never really saw Nikky at his best.

Hedwig was there. She had on a new habit, and a gardenia in her buttonhole, and she gave Nikky her hand to kiss, but only nodded to the Crown Prince.

"Hello, Otto!" she said. "I thought you'd have a ball and chain on your leg today."

"There's nothing wrong with my legs," said Prince Ferdinand William Otto, staring at the new habit. "But yours look rather queer."

Hedwig flushed. The truth was that she was wearing, for the first time, a cross-saddle habit of coat and trousers. And coat and trousers were forbidden to the royal women. She eyed Otto with defiance, and turned an appealing glance to Nikky. But her voice was very dignified.

"I bought them myself," she said. "I consider it a perfectly modest costume, and much safer than the other."

"It is quite lovely—on you, highness," said Nikky.

In a stiff chair at the edge of the ring Hedwig's lady in waiting sat resignedly. She was an elderly woman and did not ride. Just now she was absorbed in wondering what would happen to her when the Archduchess discovered this new freak of Hedwig's. Perhaps she would better ask permission to go into retreat for a time. The Archduchess, who had no religion herself, approved of it in others. She took a soft rubber from her pocket and tried to erase a spot from her white kid gloves.

Nikky looked gloomy. The prospect, although remote, was dreary. But, as the horses were led out, and he helped Hedwig to her saddle, he brightened. After all, the future was the future, and now was now.

"Catch me!" said Hedwig, and dug her royal heels into her horse's flanks. The Crown Prince climbed into his saddle and followed. They were off.

The riding school had been built for officers of the army, but was now used by the court only. Here the King had ridden as a lad with young Mettlich, his close friend even then. The favorite mare of his later years, now old and almost blind, still had a stall in the adjacent royal stables. One of the King's last excursions abroad had been to visit her.

Overhead, up a great runway, were the state chariots, gilt coaches of inconceivable weight, traveling carriages of the post-chaise periods, sleighs in which four horses drove abreast, their panels painted by the great artists of the time; and one plain little vehicle, very shabby, in which the royal children of long ago had fled from a Karnian invasion.

In one corner, black and gold and forbidding, was the imposing hearse in which the dead sovereigns of the country were taken to their long sleep in the vaults under the cathedral. Good, bad and indifferent, one after the other, as their hour came, they had taken this last journey in the old catafalque, and had joined their forbears. Many they had been—men of iron, men of blood, men of flesh, men of water. And now they lay in stone crypts, and of all the line only two remained.

One and all, the royal vehicles were shrouded in sheets, except on one day of each month when the sheets were removed and the public admitted. But on that morning the great hearse was uncovered, and two men were working, one at the upholstery, which he was brushing. The other was carefully oiling the wood of the body. Save for them, the wide and dusky loft was empty.

One was a boy, newly come from the country. The other was an elderly man. It was he who oiled.

"Many a King has this carried," said the man "My father, who was here before me, oiled it for the last one."

"May it be long before it carries another!" commented the boy fervently.

"It will not be long. The old King fails hourly. And this happening of yesterday"——

"What happened yesterday?" queried the boy.

"It was a matter of the Crown Prince."

"Was he ill?"

"He ran away," said the man shortly.

"Ran away?" The boy stopped his dusting and stared, open-mouthed.

"Aye, ran away. Grew weary of back-bending, perhaps. I do not know. I do not believe in Kings."

"Not believe in Kings?" The boy stopped his dusting.

"You do, of course," sneered the man. "Because a thing is, it is right. But I think. I use my brains. I reason. And I do not believe in Kings."

Up the runway came sounds from the ring, the thudding of hoofs, followed by a child's shrill, joyous laughter. The man scowled.

"Listen!" he said. "We labor and they play."

"It has always been so. I do not begrudge happiness."

But the man was not listening.

"I do not believe in Kings," he said sullenly.

CHAPTER VI.

THE CHANCELLOR PAYS A VISIT.

THE Archduchess was having tea. Her boudoir was a crowded little room. Nikky had once observed confidentially to Miss Braithwaite that it was exactly like her, all hung and furnished with things that were not needed. The Archduchess liked it because it was warm. The palace rooms were mostly large and chilly. She had a fire there on the warmest days in spring, and liked to put the coals on, herself. She wrapped them in pieces of paper so she would not soil her hands.

This afternoon she was not alone. Lounging at a window was the lady who was in waiting at the time, the Countess Loschek. Just now she was getting rather a wigging, but she was remarkably calm.

"The last three times," the Archduchess said, stirring her tea, "you have had a sore throat."

"It is such a dull book," explained the Countess.

"Not at all. It is an improving book. If you would put your mind on it when you are reading, Olga, you would enjoy it. And you would learn something, besides. In my opinion," went on the Archduchess, tasting her tea, "you smoke too many cigarettes."

The Countess yawned, but silently, at her window. Then she consulted a thermometer. "Eighty!" she said briefly, and, coming over, sat down by the tea-table.

The Countess Loschek was 30, and very handsome, in an insolent way. She was supposed to be the best-dressed woman at the court, and to rule Annunciata with an iron hand, although it was known that they quarreled a great deal over small things, especially over the coal fire.

Some said that the real thing that held them together was resentment that the little Crown Prince stood between the Princess Hedwig and the throne. Annunciata was not young, but she was younger than her dead brother, Hubert. And others said it was because the Countess gathered up and brought in the news of the court—the small intrigues and the scandals that constitute life in the restricted walls of a palace. There is a great deal of gossip in a palace where the King is old and everything rather stupid and dull.

The Countess yawned again.

"Where is Hedwig?" demanded the Archduchess.

"Her royal highness is in the nursery, probably."

"Why probably?"

"She goes there a great deal."

The Archduchess eyed her. "Well, out with it," she said. "There is something seething in that wicked brain of yours."

"Settin' Up" With an Ozarker's "Gal"

Sunday school came a-bilin' out one Sunday when it heerd his voice above all the others when they was havin' a rucas over a dawg fight.

"I could jist see what might happen to Tommie when he went a-bustin' over there to take a turn with Barney a-settin' up with Barney's girl. But blame me if I wasn't jist that disgusted with him, I didn't say another word. I jist pinted out the way to old man Stiver's and let him go.

"I kinder laid awake, though, a-listenin', and along about midnight I heered a slow, tired kind of a step at the well and a sound like somebody was a-fumblin' with the pump. I lit the lantern that I always keep a-hangin' over the head of the bed by my shotgun and went out to see. And blame me if he didn't need somebody to see—his own eyes a-seemin' like they didn't aim to do none of it theirselves fer a right smart spell. Barney had shore done a worse job than I 'lowed he would do.

"'The ungrateful wretch,' spluttered Tommie. 'The ungrateful wretch,' he said agin. 'Look what he done to me when I offered to set up with her in his place tonight. Do you call that gratitude? Do you call it common politeness? Do you call it good manners? Do you call it—— Do you call it'——

"I 'lowed I wasn't goin' to call it nothin' he could think of, but said I'd set up with him the balance of the night, seein' that settin' up seemed to be all the style these days, and try to git the swellin' out of his nos fer him.

"'Blame me,' he says, 'blame me, Cousin Emroe. Blame me if I believe they's a consarned thing wrong with that there girl. She didn't look to me as if she needed any settin' up with. It's all tomfollery fer that feller to be a-spending' his time that-a way,' he says, 'and I don't aim to stay round here no longer, where they is sich a small display of good sense and good manners,' he says.

"So, the next mornin' I tuck him to the railroad and we ain't seen him sense, but the whole thing goes to show you why I ain't in favor of city people a-havin' a hand in the gov'ment. They jist ain't compertent. Shore ain't.

"But I ain't the narrer-minded kind that judges other people by jist one person, and if you and La Belle ain't been invited to dinner anywheres, me and the old woman would be plumb glad to have you eat with us today. You ain't to blame, maybe, fur bein' frum the city. Leastways, I ain't a-goin' to hold it agin you when it comes to eatin' together and bein' sociable. But as to votin'—well, that is another question. Shore is."

Former Newsboy Now R. R. President

to the Pittsburg Coal Co., and Kenney was promoted to the place from which he retired. That was in 1911. After a year he was made vice president in charge of traffic, which place he held until his promotion to the presidency.

Long after he could illy afford the time required to travel to and from the general offices of the Great Northern in St. Paul, Kenney clung to his residence in Minneapolis, where he had grown up from boyhood and had married. When he was appointed general traffic manager, however, his duties became so heavy that he was compelled to remove to St. Paul. The drain of nearly two hours of travel daily was too much for a man who spent 10 hours each day in his office and several hours outside of it at his labors.

Louis W. Hill is giving up the presidency of the Great Northern and the executive direction of its 8000 miles of line for the second time. First he turned it over to Carl R. Gray, who formerly was vice president of the Frisco Railroad, in St. Louis. When Gray left the road about four years ago Hill again took up the duties of the presidency and carried them, in connection with those of chairman of the board, until Kenney's appointment.

The presidency came to Kenney almost as a birthday gift. He was 48 years old in the middle of January and his new appointment was announced in the early part of February.

The exact mileage of the lines over which Kenney will preside, according to statistical records of 1917, is 8197.82. Of more than 175 railways in the United States the mileage of the Great Northern lines is exceeded by only three. These are—Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul, 10,207.94 miles; Chicago, Burlington & Quincy, 9373.65 miles, and Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fe, 8648.21 miles. The Great Northern's rival, the Northern Pacific, has but 6688.66 miles of lines. The Southern Pacific has 7065.14 miles.

2,064,679 tons. Complete returns from France, Italy, Japan and other nations were not available, but the British authorities did not believe that their combined output would equal that of the United States. In that case submarine sinkings more than doubled all tonnage produced.

It has been variously estimated that the amount of tonnage produced in the United States in 1918 would be from 2,500,000 tons to 4,000,000 tons. Shipping Board members have declared that at least 3,500,000 tons would be completed. No estimate of Great Britain's output has been received, but that country is expected to materially increase its 1917 figures. Japan's operations just now are hampered by a lack of steel, but this handicap is expected to be overcome shortly. That country also is expected to increase its output this year, but other countries are building few ships.

leave the train at any moment. We dared take no sleep, and arrived in New York very nearly exhausted.

It was late at night when we finally found ourselves in a dilapidated house in the ghetto. But we felt thankful to him, for he had located where we could also secure rooms surrounding him.

We were forced to change the shadows in order to obtain operatives familiar with the language spoken in this district, and we also thought it best to don old clothes and disregard the laws of cleanliness for the time being. One of the rooms secured by us had a communicating door with that of the waiter. As our room was always in darkness, he never once suspected our presence.

The man was in the habit of going out to telephone frequently, but, as he never used the same telephone twice, and we never could hear one word of his conversation or any number he called, we could set no trap for him.

At the end of the first week two men called at his room, and we soon decided from the conversation we overheard, that these men were engaged in dealing in stolen jewelry. They seemed to be dickering on paper, for there appeared to be not a jewel in the room. When the list had been gone over for the hundredth time, the final offer for the entire lost was $2500, to which the thief naturally objected, for it appeared that in the letter he had burned they had assured him a fair treatment.

At this point we burst into the room, though not without misgivings. We knew we were dealing with desperate men, but it was then or never, we felt.

We broke open the door, covered three men with our guns and backed them against the wall.

We accused our man of the theft, which he strenuously denied. We stripped all three of them of their clothing, finding nothing concealed about them. It was only after a search of several hours—our prisoners huddled together in the closet, with an armed guard over them—that we found the jewels beneath the floor in a small black satchel. Everything was there except the small diamond pawned in New Orleans. The waiter had taken up the carpet and removed a board in the floor, placing the jewels in what he believed to be an absolutely secure place.

As we wished to avoid publicity on account of our client, we were obliged to let the thief go, but before we did so we forced him to tell the story of the theft.

The waiter had previously been sentenced to a penitentiary as a thief, and after his release had become a waiter in this night restaurant. When the jewels of Mme. Munro were displayed that night in the restaurant, the waiter was amazed at their magnificence, and the old instinct of the thief took possession of him. He was relieved of duty shortly after midnight and shadowed the women to their hotel.

He hurried in ahead of them, and when they asked for their keys at the desk he noted the number of the room. The next day he dressed in his best clothes—a fellow of no mean appearance—and returning to the hotel was able to secure a room next to Mme. Munro.

In this hotel all the rooms were provided with Yale locks. This troubled the thief at first, but one day he saw the ladies leave for the Cliff House, and determined that this was the time to get to work. He watched the ladies drive away and sauntered over to the elevator to return to his room, when, to his surprise, he noticed a large key ring hanging in the elevator and attached to it the pass keys to every room on his floor. He handed the bellboy a liberal tip, saying: "I've mislaid my key, open my door with the pass key."

The boy agreed. While they were on the way to the room the elevator bell rang. The waiter grabbed the bunch of keys and handed the boy a $2 bill. "There's a call for you. Answer it and hurry back."

The boy forgot himself and left the pass keys in the possession of the thief, who quickly took the impression of the key he wanted. Thirty minutes later, through the aid of a locksmith, he had secured a duplicate key.

In the quiet of the afternoon he entered Mme. Munro's room and located the jewel box. He packed his belongings, paid his bill and left the hotel, having left not a trace behind him. The episode of the pass key entirely slipped the mind of the elevator boy until he was shown the confession.

Mme. Munro recovered all her jewels.

Rheumatism
A Home Cure Given by One Who Had It
In the Spring of 1893 I was attacked by Muscular and Inflammatory Rheumatism. I suffered as only those who have it know, for over three years. I tried remedy after remedy, and doctor after doctor, but such relief as I received was only temporary. Finally I found a remedy that cured me completely, and it has never returned. I have given it to a number who were terribly afflicted and even bedridden with Rheumatism, and it effected a cure in every case.
I want every sufferer from any form of rheumatic trouble to try this marvelous healing power. Don't send a cent; simply mail your name and address and I will send it free to try. After you have used it and it has proven itself to be that long-looked-for means of curing your Rheumatism, you may send the price of it, one dollar, but, understand, I do not want your money unless you are perfectly satisfied to send it. Isn't that fair? Why suffer any longer when positive relief is thus offered you free? Don't delay. Write today.
MARK H. JACKSON, No. 108D Gurney Bldg., Syracuse, N. Y.

Cured His RUPTURE
I was badly ruptured while lifting a trunk several years ago. Doctors said my only hope of cure was an operation. Trusses did me no good. Finally I got hold of something that quickly and completely cured me. Years have passed and the rupture has never returned, although I am doing hard work as a carpenter. There was no operation, no lost time, no trouble. I have nothing to sell, but will give full information about how you may find a complete cure without operation, if you write to me, Eugene M. Pullen, Carpenter, 238D Marcellus Avenue, Manasquan, N. J. Better cut out this notice and show it to any others who are ruptured—you may save a life or at least stop the misery of rupture and the worry and danger of an operation.—ADV.

Long Live the King!

The Countess shrugged her shoulders. Not that she resented having a wicked brain. She rather fancied the idea. "She and young Lieut. Larisch have tea frequently with his royal highness."

"How frequently?"

"Three times this last week, madame."

"Little fool!" said Annunciata. But she frowned, and sat tapping her teacup with her spoon. She was just a trifle afraid of Hedwig, and she was more anxious than she would have cared to acknowledge. "It is being talked about, of course?"

The Countess shrugged her shoulders.

"Don't do that!" commanded the Archduchess sharply. "How far do you think the thing has gone?"

"He is quite mad about her."

"And Hedwig—but she is silly enough for anything. Do they meet anywhere else?"

"At the riding school, I believe. At least, I"——

Here a maid entered and stood waiting at the end of the screen. The Archduchess Annunciata would have none of the palace flunkies about her when she could help it. She had had enough of men, she maintained, in the person of her late husband, whom she had detested. So except at dinner she was attended by tidy little maids, in gray Quaker costumes, who could carry tea trays into her crowded boudoir without breaking things.

"His excellency, Gen. Mettlich," said the maid.

The Archduchess nodded her august head, and the maid retired. "Go away, Olga," said the Archduchess. "And you might," she suggested grimly, "gargle your throat."

The Chancellor had passed a troubled night. Being old, like the King, he required little sleep. And for most of the time between 1 o'clock and his rising hour of 5 he had lain in his narrow camp bed and thought. He had not confided all his worries to the King.

Evidences of renewed activity on the part of the Terrorists were many. In the past month two of his best secret agents had disappeared. One had been found the day before, stabbed in the back. The Chancellor had seen the body—an unpleasant sight. But it was not of the dead man that Gen. Mettlich thought. It was of the other. The dead tell nothing. But the living, under torture, tell many things. And this man, Haeckel, young as he was, knew much that was vital. Knew the working of the secret service, the names of the outer circle of 12, knew the codes and passwords, knew, too, the ways of the palace, the hidden rooms always ready for emergency, even the passage that led by devious ways, underground, to a distant part of the great park.

At 5 Gen. Mettlich had risen, exercised before an open window with an old pair of iron dumbbells, had followed this with a cold bath and hot coffee, and had gone to early mass at the Cathedral. And there, on his knees, he had prayed for a little help. He was, he said, getting old and infirm, and he had been too apt all his life to rely on his own right arm. But things were getting rather difficult. He prayed to Our Lady for intercession for the little Prince. He felt, in his old heart, that the Mother would understand the situation, and how he felt about it. And he asked in a general supplication, and very humbly, for a few years more of life. Not that life meant anything to him personally. He had outlived most of those he loved. But that he might serve the King, and after him the boy who would be Otto IX. He added, for fear they might not understand, having a great deal to look after, that he had earned all this by many years of loyalty, and besides, that he knew the situation better than anyone else.

He felt much better after that. Especially as, at the moment he rose from his knees, the cathedral clock had chimed and then struck 7. He had found seven a very lucky number. So now he entered the boudoir of the Archduchess Annunciata, and the Countess went out at another door, and closed it behind her, immediately opening it about an inch.

The Chancellor strode around the screen, scratching two tables with his sword as he advanced, and kissed the hand of the Princess Annunciata. They were old enemies and therefore always very polite to each other. The Archduchess offered him a cup of tea, which he took, although she always made very bad tea. And for a few moments they discussed things. Thus: The King's condition; the replanting of the place with trees; and the date of bringing out the Princess Hilda, who was still in the schoolroom.

But the Archduchess suddenly came to business. She was an abrupt person. "And now, General," she said, "what is it?"

"I am in trouble, highness," replied the Chancellor simply.

"We are most of us in that condition at all times. I suppose you mean this absurd affair of yesterday. Why such a turmoil about it? The boy ran away. When he was ready he returned. It was absurd, and I dare say you and I both are being held for our sins. But he is here now, and safe."

"I am afraid he is not as safe as you think, madame."

"Why?"

He sat forward on the edge of his chair, and told her of the students at the university, who were being fired by some powerful voice; of the disappearance of two spies; of the evidence that the Committee of Ten was meeting again, and the failure to discover their meeting place; of disaffection among the people, according to the reports of his agents. And then to the real purpose of his visit. Karl of Karnia had, unofficially, proposed for the Princess Hedwig. He had himself broached the matter to the King, who had at least taken it under advisement. The Archduchess listened, rather pale. There was no mistaking the urgency in the Chancellor's voice.

"Madame, after centuries of independence we now face a crisis which we cannot meet alone. Believe me, I know of what I speak. United, we could stand against the world. But a divided kingdom, a disloyal and discontented people, spells the end."

And at last he convinced her. But, because she was built of a contrary mold, she voiced an objection, not to the scheme, but to Karl himself. "I dislike him. He is arrogant and stupid."

"But powerful, madame. And—what else is there to do?"

There was nothing else, and she knew it. But she refused to broach the matter to Hedwig.

She stated, and perhaps not without reason, that such a move was to damn the whole thing at once. She did not use exactly these words, but their royal equivalent. And it ended with the Chancellor, looking most ferocious but inwardly uneasy, undertaking to put, as one may say, a flea into the Princess Hedwig's small ear.

As he strode out, the door into the next room closed quietly.

man. But it was a most ridiculous position. I tried to see it from that side and be amused, but I wasn't amused. While he went and telephoned to his superiors for instructions he put a soldier to guard me, and, of course, the people waiting on the platform for trains crowded to look. They decided that I was no doubt a spy, and certainly and manifestly one of the swinish English, they said. I wished then I couldn't understand German. I stood there doing my best to think it was all very funny, but I was too tired to succeed, and hadn't had any breakfast, and they were too rude. Then I tried to think it was just a silly dream, and that I had really got to Glion, and would wake up in a minute in a cool bedroom with the light coming through green shutters, and there'd be the lake, and the mountains opposite with snow on them, and you, my blessed, blessed little mother, calling me to breakfast. But it was too hot and distinct and horribly consistent to be a dream. And my clothes were getting wetter and wetter with the heat, and sticking to me.

I want to get to you. That's all I think of now. There isn't a train till tonight, and then only as far as Stuttgart. I expect this letter will get to you long before I do, because I may be kept at Stuttgart.

Another officer, higher up than the first one, let me go. He was more decent. He came and questioned me and said that as he couldn't prove I wasn't American he preferred to risk believing that I was, rather than inconvenience a lady belonging to a friendly nation, or something like that. I don't know what he said really, for by that time I was stupid because of the sun beating down so. But he let me go, and I came here to the restaurant to get something to drink. He came after me, to see that I was not further inconvenienced, he said, so I thought I'd tell him I was going to marry one of his fellow officers. He changed completely then, when I told him Bernd's name and regiment, and was really polite and really saw that I wasn't further inconvenienced. Dear Bernd! Even just his name saves me.

I went to sleep on the bench in the waiting room after I had drunk a great deal of iced milk. My fiddle case was the pillow. Poor fiddle. It seems such a useless, futile thing now.

It was so nice lying down flat, and not having to do anything. The waiter says there's a place I can wash in, and I suppose I'd better go and wash after I've posted this, but I don't want to particularly. I don't want to do anything, particularly, except shut my eyes and wait till I get to you. But I think I'll go out into the sun and warm myself up again, for it's cold in here. Dear mother, I'm a great deal nearer to you than I've been for weeks. Won't you borrow a map and see where Wurzburg is?

YOUR CHRIS.

THE END.

Romance of Leeds "Tin Plate" Millions

With this wealth, Mrs. Leeds became one of the world's most famous partis. After a period of mourning she went to London and entered at once into the highest social circles. She leased the house of George Keppel in Grosvenor Square, and there, guided by Lady Paget, a former New York woman, and Lady Sarah Wilson, an aunt of the Duke of Marlborough, she entertained all the notables in English social life and was entertained in return. She was a guest at the homes of the Duchess of Marlborough, the Earl of Winterton, the Earl of Kintore, Lady Lister-Kaye and Ambassador and Mrs. Reid.

Titled suitors fluttered about her, among them Prince Joachim Murat, the Prince de Faucgny-Lucinge, Lord Falconer, heir to the Earl of Kintore; Lord Alexander Thynne, uncle of the Marquis of Bath, and Sir Abe Bailey, the South African millionaire. Even the late Earl Kitchener is said to have been a candidate. But one by one she dismissed them. The most persistent was Prince Joachim, who was about 20 years younger than she. But finally he, too, became convinced that his suit was hopeless. Mrs. Leeds was quoted by friends at the time as saying she was unwilling to wed a foreigner on account of her son, William B. Leeds Jr., whom she wished to rear as an American. Then persistent reports were circulated of her engagement to "Jimmie" Cutting, a popular young New York clubman, nephew of Mrs. I. Townsend Burden. But the rumors proved groundless.

Recent dispatches from London stated that Prince Christopher of London was on the way to that city for the purpose of wedding a wealthy American widow. Rumor identified Mrs. Leeds as the bride-to-be, but she issued a denial through the press. Then came the positive announcement that the wedding had taken place in Switzerland, where former King Constantine and his relatives have lived since he was driven from the throne of Greece.

No information is at hand concerning the status the former Mrs. Leeds will obtain through her marriage; but the opinion of most is that it can be no other than a morganatic union. Such a marriage is legal; but the wife does not assume her husband's title and rank.

La-May Face Powder Is Harmless to the Most Delicate Skin

A specialist has at last perfected a pure face powder that really stays on until you wash it off. It does not contain white lead or starchy rice powder to make it stick. White lead poisons the skin and rice powder turns into a gluey paste that encourages enlarged pores, blackheads and rice powder pimples. This improved formula contains a medicinal powder doctors use to heal the skin. In fact, this new powder helps to prevent and reduce enlarged pores, blackheads and pimples. It is also astringent, discouraging flabbiness, crow's feet and wrinkles. It is called La-may (French Poudre L'Ame). Because it is pure and because it stays on better than any other it is already sold by thousands of dealers everywhere, like Nugents in St. Louis. There are two sizes. The large size is only fifty cents and the half size is twenty-five cents. This same powder is wonderful for evening wear. It can be used both as a face powder and a liquid powder. To use it as a liquid powder just dip a damp sponge in the dry powder and apply it to your neck, shoulders and arms. It gives a natural whiteness that defies detection under the strongest light. When you use this delightfully pure La-may and see how splendidly it beautifies your complexion you will understand why it so quickly became the most popular beauty powder sold in New York. Save this notice.
